EDITORIAL PREFACE.

THE favourable judgment which was passed upon the first volume of this work, not only by the unanimous voice of the literary press, but also by individual readers who were well qualified to pass an opinion upon its merits or demerits, has stimulated me to make every effort to preserve the good opinion of these kind critics. I have tried to win even greater appreciation for the present instalment of the "Cardiff Records," by including in it documents of more general interest than was practicable in the case of Vol. I. There can be little doubt that the fine series of Calendar Rolls and Gaol Files, extending from the reign of Henry the Eighth to that of George the Fourth, the Corporation Vouchers, 1789—1803, and the Records of the Custom House, ranging from the year 1686—1806, will interest every reader. The Gaol Files are replete with thrilling stories of great crimes, of religious persecution and of terrible penalties, while amusing details about petty offenders supply the humorous relief which is essential to every drama. The Vouchers are a striking example of the historical interest with which time often vests insignificant memoranda; and the narratives of adventure on sea and land, given to us in the matter-of-fact reports of the Customs officers, equal anything to be found in the pages of Marryat.

The chapter on the Manors has been compiled from various manuscript sources. Originally written by me at the request of the Royal Commissioners on Lands in Wales and Monmouthshire, and printed in the Appendix to their Report, it was afterwards so considerably amended and enlarged, as to be practically re-written. I have in this matter received so much valuable help from Mr. John Stuart Corbett, and been by him saved from so many antiquarian pitfalls, that I cannot sufficiently acknowledge my indebtedness to his wide knowledge and accurate judgment. To the same antiquary's skill and care the public are indebted for the treatise on the Lords of Cardiff, which forms the second chapter of this volume. It can hardly fail to be appreciated by every student of our local history.

The chapter on Manorial Records forms a useful sequel to the Ministers' Accounts and other feudal documents printed in Vol. I., while Town Clerk Wood's Memoranda furnish some unique information respecting the municipal constitution of Cardiff Borough. The great Sessions Miscellanea comprise some of the earliest existing papers of the Civil side of that Court. The South Wales Chantries Certificate of 1548 will be read with keen interest by those whose studies lie in the direction of Welsh ecclesiastical history, while all persons concerned in any way with the public life of the Borough will be pleased with the varied information afforded by the Corporation Miscellanea. So many of Cardiff's inhabitants are connected with the Docks, that the Earliest Record Book of the Cardiff Customs will not lack readers curious to see what manner of business was transacted in this Port in the days when the names of Quay Street, the "Cardiff Boat" and the "Ship on Launch" were less inappropriate than they are now that their locus in quo is about five hundred yards from the river and a mile from the shipping.

Thomas Morgan's Commonplace Book is a delightful repertoire of curious information upon the domestic life of a Welsh country gentleman of the olden time. The editing of this decayed old manuscript has been a most pleasing task, in spite of the difficulty which I experienced in ascertaining its compiler's place in the genealogical tree of the great Morgan family.

To turn now to the embellishments which accompany the present text: The illustrations have been arranged (as was the case with the previous volume) by Mr. John Ballinger, Librarian of the Cardiff Free Library, who has been at great pains to obtain a satisfactory series of seals of the Lords of Cardiff, and whose services have in various ways been placed at the disposal of the Records Committee. Mr. John Ward, F.S.A., has again given to the Committee the benefit of his knowledge and skill, in preparing the head and tail pieces. In this second volume they carry on the series of designs from mediæval tiles found at Cardiff. I have more than once been asked, by gentlemen familiar with the proprieties of heraldry—most exact of arts—why in some of these tiles the lions and other animal charges are turned "to the sinister," in other words, are looking the wrong way. It will therefore be well to explain here that the original designs were transferred to the tiles directly, from the front, thus necessarily assuming the position which is heraldically incorrect, or at least unusual. The initial letters to the chapters in this volume are by the artistic pen of Mr. J. A. Sant, architect, of Cardiff. They impart a welcome addition of "local colour" to a book which is essentially and entirely a production of Cardiff.

CHAPTER I.

Notes on the Manors of the Cardiff District.

BEFORE dealing with the Manors in the immediate neighbourhood of Cardiff, it appears desirable to offer a few general observations upon the history of Glamorgan, so far as it bears upon the subject, and to notice the way in which the various classes of manors in the County had their origin.

In mediæval times Glamorgan, part of the district over which the Lords of Glamorgan claimed authority (leaving out of consideration Morganwg, which had a much wider signification, explained by the late Mr. Clark in his Land of Morgan), extended only from the river Rhymny on the east to the Crymlyn brook, a short distance west of Neath. It, in fact, corresponded with that portion of the Diocese of Llandaff which is in Glamorganshire.

This district, again, was divided into the "body" of the County, and the "members"; which latter were not considered as forming part of the County until the passing of the Statute 27 Hen. VIII., cap. 26. Down to that time, the word "county," as used in Inquisitions, &c., ordinarily means what we now call the Vale; and not the whole of that, for Llanbleddian and Talavan (and perhaps also Llantwit), were "member" lordships, and Llandaff, the lordship of the Bishop, was not considered as forming part of the "body" of the County.

The member lordships were ten in number, viz., Senghenydd, Miscyn, Glynrhondda, Llanbleddian, Talavan, Ruthyn, Avan Wallia, Tir-y-iarll, Coyty and Neath.

Senghenydd was divided into Senghenydd Supra and Senghenydd Subtus, and Neath into Neath Citra and Neath Ultra.

In the Inquisition on the death of Gilbert de Clare, 8 Edw. II., the manor of Llantwit is treated with Ruthyn as forming a member, and it is included in the list of lordships to be added to the County in the Statute of Henry VIII.

Each of these members is stated, in the Inquisition just mentioned, to have "royal liberty of itself;" and the Courts of the members had jurisdiction even in matters of life and death.

The lordship of Glamorgan, as is well known, was obtained by conquest by Robert Fitzhamon, in the reign of William Rufus, from Iestyn ap Gwrgan, Prince of Glamorgan and Morganwg; but many generations elapsed before it can be regarded as having been completely subdued.

The hill lordships, the boundaries of which no doubt corresponded with those of Welsh commotes, remained in the hands of Welsh chieftains, whose allegiance to the Lords of Glamorgan was of a very precarious character, and who frequently rose in rebellion. Senghenydd, Glynrhondda and Avan (or Baglan) were, at the date of an Extent attributed by Mr. Clark to the year 1262, in the hands of Welsh lords, who are recorded as owing no service save a heriot of a horse and arms at death. As to Miscyn, there is some doubt whether it was under a Welsh lord at that time. Morediht ap Griffith is stated (in the Extent referred to) to hold a commote in "Machhein," and it has not been ascertained with certainty whether this refers to Miscyn or Machen. But if Miscyn was not then in the hands of a Welsh lord, there seems to be no doubt that a part of it, at least, had been so up to a short time before. However, by the time of the death of Gilbert de Clare in 1295, the lordships of Senghenydd, Miscyn and Glynrhondda had all come into the immediate possession of the Lord of Glamorgan, and were administered by his officers; but they still retained their separate courts and, it seems, their old Welsh laws and customs. These great lordships, founded upon old Welsh territorial divisions, became the manors of those names. Of the member lordships, all but Coyty at one time or another passed to the chief Lord.

In the body of the County, as distinguished from the members, the Lord retained in his own hands Cardiff Castle (the seat of his government) and the manors of Roath and Leckwith, though the latter was at one time granted out to the Sandfords. He also continuously held the manor of Llantwit, which, as we have seen, perhaps ought to be regarded as a "member." The remainder of the Vale (except what was given to religious houses, and the Bishop's lordship) was granted to various persons to be held of the Lord by knight's service. The manors so formed were the "knight's fees" of the Inquisitions.

The Lords of these manors in some cases granted out portions to be held of them, thus forming sub-manors. The Bishops of Llandaff also made grants out of their lordship, which formed manors. Lastly, the Abbots of the various monasteries, in many instances, took to calling their scattered possessions "manors," and they became accepted as such.

The different classes of manors in Glamorgan may be shortly described as follows:—

(1) The old member lordships in the hill country, held, no doubt, in theory at least, of the chief Lord until they actually passed into his hands; but never held by military tenure, as in the body of the County. Such a manor was Senghenydd.

(2) Manors constituted by the chief Lord, probably for convenience of administration, but retained in his hands, as Roath Dogfield.

(3) The knight's fees or manors held of the chief Lord as of his Castle of Cardiff. Such a manor was Cogan.

(4) Sub-manors formed by grants out of the member lordships, as Radyr out of Miscyn.

(5) Sub-manors formed by grants made by the holders of the knight's fees, as Michaelston, held under Dinas Powis.

(6) The manors granted out of the lordship of the Bishop, as (probably) Caerau.

(7) The manors of the Abbeys, as Roath Keynsham.

It seems also that some separate manors were formed by subdivision of older manors, though the way in which this was effected is obscure.

In addition to the manors always recognised as such, the term "manor" is found to be occasionally applied to lands which, so far as is known, never really constituted distinct manors at all. In many instances this could be accounted for, but a discussion of the subject hardly comes within the scope of the present work.

The Lordship of Glamorgan, after the death of Fitzhamon, passed to Robert, "Consul," or Earl, of Gloucester; who was a natural son of Henry I., and married Mabel, a daughter of Fitzhamon. From her descendants the Lordship came by marriage to the de Clares, Earls of Gloucester and Hertford; then to the Despencers, Beauchamps and Nevills successively. Anne, daughter of Richard Nevill, Earl of Salisbury and Warwick, married Richard, Duke of Gloucester (afterwards King Richard III.), who was Lord of Glamorgan in her right. After his death the lordship came to Henry VII., who granted it to Jasper Tudor, Duke of Bedford. He dying without issue, it reverted to Henry VII., and descended from him to Henry VIII.; and from him to Edward VI., who in 1550 granted the Castle and Lordship of Cardiff to Sir William Herbert, afterwards Earl of Pembroke, and by this and a previous grant of 1547 conferred upon Sir William nearly the whole of the manors and estates in Glamorganshire of the old Lords of Glamorgan.

The Castle and Lordship of Cardiff, on the death of Philip, Earl of Pembroke, in 1683, passed to his daughter, Lady Charlotte

Herbert; who married, as her second husband, Thomas, Viscount Windsor. Their son Herbert, Viscount Windsor, died in 1758 leaving a daughter, Charlotte Jane Windsor; who in 1766 married John, son of the Earl of Bute. He was created Marquess of Bute in 1796, and was the great-grandfather of the present Marquess.

The following notes of some ancient customs and payments may be of interest.

The custom of mises, which Strype says was derived from the Welsh princes, was paid at the death of Henry VIII., Edward VI. and Queen Mary. It is stated to have been originally an honorary payment of corn by each commote (cwmwd) to the prince on his accession. This was afterwards commuted for a fixed money payment; and, in the case of the member lordships of Glamorgan, at least, was not regarded as a sum due to the King as such, but to the Lord of the particular lordship.

In a Survey of the Lordship of Miscyn in 1638, occurs the following:—

“They (the jury) present and say that their custom is, and time out of mind hath been, that the sum of One Hundred and Twenty-three pounds, six Shillings and Eight Pence is due and payable upon the death of any Lord of this Manor to the succeeding Lord and Heir of this Manor, as Myses, upon the Inhabitants and Occupiers of Lands of this Manor, the Manor of Glynrhondda and the Manor of Pentyrch and Clunn; to be paid unto each succeeding Lord and Heir of this Manor in five years, by equal portions, the first payment thereof to begin at the first Saint Barnabee day that shall next be after demand thereof made by the Lord or his officers; to be divided and collected between the said Manors, according to to the ancient accustomed manner rateably.”

Senghenydd and Glynrhondda Surveys of about the same date contain similar statements. The Senghenydd Survey adds that the Lord is to discharge all fines and americiaments due in the lifetime of the former Lord.

It has been also stated that the grant of mises was in consideration of the seignorial or royal confirmation of the ancient free customs of the Welsh people. Mises were collected by the Lords of Cardiff subsequently to 1550 in all the old member lordships which were held by them, the last occasion being on the death of Lord Windsor in 1758. It is believed to have been proposed to levy mises early in the present century, but it was found that the difficulty of assessment and collection would be more than the sum to be raised was worth.

Other payments due to the Lord were the Ward-silver, payable by the holders of the knight's fees, who were formerly also bound to perform "Castle guard" at Cardiff Castle. These payments have gradually become obsolete. They were made in the time of Charles II. in respect of about a dozen manors.

The comortha was an "aid" of small amount, paid, in every alternate year, by the landowners in the member lordships. It was not charged upon those in the body of the County, and appears to have been a purely Welsh custom derived from the times of the early Welsh lords.

The chence, cense, or "towl" was paid both in the body of the County and in the members. It was a small annual payment by each freeholder. (Miscyn Survey.)

The rent of avowry, usually, if not always, 4*d.* per head, was paid by Welsh residents in a manor who held no land, or none directly of the Lord. Women as well as men paid it, but the exact circumstances which rendered a person liable to the payment have not been fully ascertained.

One of the duties of the inhabitants of Miscyn was to watch, when required, at certain beacons; and in the Survey of 1638 it is said that the "inhabitants of Llantrissent, Llantwitvairdre, Pentyrch and Radyr do use to watch at the Beacon of the Garth."

Rice Merrick, writing about 1578, describes the Courts of the member lordships, and says that in judging matters of life and death, the Steward was assisted by two tenants of the manor; and these tenants, not the Steward, passed sentence of death in this form:—

"Gwynt a gwydden a phen blaidd, a chrogi hyd marw," which may be Englished thus:

"The wind, and a tree, and a wolf's head,

"And to hang by the neck till thou be dead."

It is added that on every wrongful judgment the tenants were fined. According to the Surveys, this privilege of sitting with the Steward was not confined to matters of life and death, but extended to other causes. In Miscyn, for instance, no Court can be formed without "affectors" to sit with the Steward, "to see the ancient customs of this manor duly and truly observed." No person could be amerced without the consent of the affectors.

These, and other customs referred to in the Surveys of the hill lordships, show that the retention of their ancient liberties by the inhabitants of these districts was no mere form.

By the customs of all the old member lordships, heriots are due on the death of freehold tenants. They usually consist of the best beast; but by the custom of some manors a money payment may be made instead, at the option of the tenant. At one time it was the practice in this neighbourhood to reserve heriots in leases for lives, and even in leases for terms of years, on the death of each tenant. Thus, in a lease granted by the Cardiff Corporation in 1675, of "two cotts and  $1\frac{1}{2}$  acre of land near the Dawpin Pitts" (Dobbinpits, just north of Crockherbtown), to William Thomas, for 94 years, there was reserved a rent of 11s. 8d. per annum, and a heriot of 5s. on the death of every tenant dying in possession.

In former times the manors in the neighbourhood of Cardiff mostly included some copyhold lands. It is stated by some authorities that according to the custom of Roath Dogfield, copyholds descended to the youngest son and, failing sons, to the youngest daughter. An early Survey, however, made 12th Eliz. and referring to another of 32 Hen. VIII., does not support this.

Copyhold tenure has now completely disappeared in the manors adjoining Cardiff. The nearest manor to Cardiff in which it exists is Pentyrch and Clun, a sub-manor or member of Miscyn.

NOTE.—In the following notes reference is frequently made to documents printed in the work of the late Mr. G. T. Clark, Cartae et alia munimenta quae ad Dominium de Glamorgan pertinent. In the references the word Cartae alone is used. The Glamorgan Genealogies collected and published by Mr. Clark are also referred to. It should, however, be explained for the information of those not acquainted with the latter work, that the statements contained in it have not the weight of Mr. Clark's great authority. The pedigrees were collected by him from various sources.

KIBBOR.

Cardiff itself, and the manors surrounding the Borough, east of the Taff, are within the district known as Kibbor (Cibwr). This must not be confused with the modern Hundred of Kibbor, originally called Cardiff Hundred, which comprised the parishes of Saint John Baptist, Saint Mary, Roath, Llanedern, Llanishen, Lisvane, Whitchurch, Llandaff, Radyr and Caerau. According to Leland's description, the old Commote of Kibbor lay entirely east of the Taff and did not include even that part of the parish of Llandaff which is east of that river; but with this exception it comprised all between the rivers Taff and Rhymny and south of Senghenydd. The northern boundary of Kibbor coincides with the northern boundaries of Llanedern, Lisvane and Llanishen, till we come to Thorn Hill, when it follows the course of the Brunant southward (being the boundary between Llanishen and Whitchurch) for some distance; and then leaving this boundary, passes through the parish of Whitchurch in a somewhat intricate line only possible to explain by means of a map, and joins the river Taff at the boundary of the parishes of Whitchurch and Llandaff.

It is perhaps doubtful whether Leland's description is correct in not including in Kibbor those portions of the parishes of Saint John Baptist and Saint Mary which are west of the Taff.

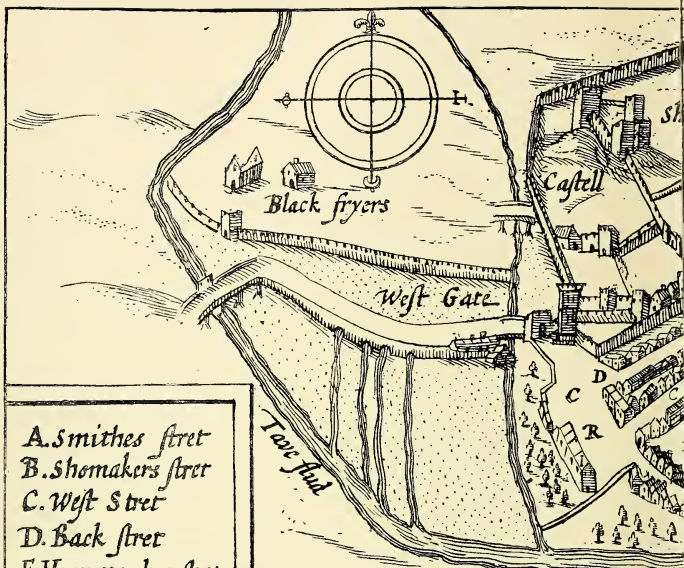

Kibbor, though sometimes referred to as a "lordship" or a "fee," clearly never was a manor in the ordinary sense. It will be seen that it could not be so, when it is understood that the whole of it (except the "patria Wallensium") was either within the Borough of Cardiff or constituted various manors carved out of the old Commote.

The manors constituted out of Kibbor were Roath Dogfield, Roath Keynsham, Llystalybont, Roath Tewkesbury, the Margam manor of Kibbor and Cardiff, Splott, and Spittle or Spittal. It also contained Griffith-Moor, some lands of the Austin Canons, the possessions of the Friars, and some other lands of the Church.

In the Inquisitions, the country (patria) of the Welshmen of Kibbor is referred to. This consisted of the north-eastern portion, the greater part of Llanedern and parts of Lisvane and Llanishen.

in Speede's Map of Glamorgan.

Rice Merrick describes certain privileges of the freeholders of Kibbor, and says that two of the suitors of Kibbor must, of necessity, be sitting on the lower bench in the Shire-hall at the giving of judgment upon life and death. In another place he states that the holders of the knight's fees, and also the freeholders of Kibbor, were in every Court called by a roll of their names. There is no doubt that this refers to the Welsh freeholders of the patria; for in the Inquisition on the death of Joan de Clare we find (after going through a list of the knight's fees):—

“And all the aforesaid tenants owe suit at the County [Court] of Glamorgan from month to month, together with 63 Welshmen of Kibbor who do no other service for their lands and tenements which they hold in Kibbor except suit at the County [Court] aforesaid from month to month.”

This sitting in the County Court was probably regarded as a valuable privilege, giving these Welsh tenants the means of seeing justice done to their countrymen.

Thus the term “Kibbor” was used in two senses, sometimes as meaning the Commote, but often referring only to the land of the Welshmen.

There was a Bailiff of Kibbor, and there were also some very small rents, which possibly may have arisen from forfeited lands; but it seems clear that there was no “manor” of Kibbor, and the Welsh freeholders there appear to have been subject to no service whatever, except the attendance at the Court.

1126. In the agreement between Robert Consul and the Bishop of Llandaff, the Bishop is to have wood from the woods of the Earl “except Kibbor.” The Welshmen of the Bishop are to have pannage and pasture with the Welshmen of the Earl, and the Normans and Englishmen of the Bishop with the Normans and Englishmen of the Earl, outside Kibbor. (Cartae I., p. 2.)

1183—89. Henry II. (probably while the lordship was in his hands, on the death of William, Earl of Gloucester,) directs a Writ to Roger de Sumeri and all who cultivate lands in the forest of Kibbor, requiring them to pay their tithes to Tewkesbury. (Cartae I., p. 23.) Tewkesbury had the tithe of the whole district; for a confirmation by Bishop Nicholas, 1153—83 (Cartae I., p. 20), shows that the Abbey held the parish church of Saint Mary, and the then chapels of Saint John, Saint Thomas (which has disappeared, but which was at Cardiff,) Roath, Saint Denis of Kibbor (probably Lisvane), Liffenni (perhaps Llanishen), Saint Edern (Llanedern), and Llanbordan (long since desecrated).

KIBBOR AND CARDIFF.

The manor of "Kibbor and Cardiff" was the term for those scattered properties, in Kibbor and the Borough, which had been given to Margam Abbey. It comprised a grange within the franchise of Cardiff, and 30 acres of arable land. Also 4 acres of meadow in the marsh of Roath, together with the common to the same pertaining, a tenement and one acre of meadow in "Roath More," and land in "Listellapont, Roffistow and Portmansmore." In the reign of Henry VIII. a grant of this manor was made to Sir Thomas Heneage and Lord Willoughby, but they seem either to have acquired it for the benefit of Sir George Herbert, or to have sold it to him, for he certainly possessed it shortly afterwards.

1201—1215. Isabella, Countess of Gloucester, confirmed to the monks of Margam all they had of the gift of burgesses of Cardiff or free men in the same town or outside. (Cartae III., p. 273.)

1516. The Abbot of Margam granted to Germanus ap Harolde Kybo 14 acres of arable land called Roffistowe, 4 acres of meadow in Rothismore, and a close lying in Portmannis-more in the fee of Kibor. (Cartae II., p. 249.)

1586. The manor of Kibur (meaning Kibbor and Cardiff) had been granted to Sir William Herbert by Sir George Herbert. This was Sir William Herbert, grandson of Sir George.

1618. The Crown granted to two grantees the lordship and manor of Kibworth and Cardiffe (except the chantry lands of Cardiff.) This was at the request of Sir W. Doddington, who had married a Herbert heiress, viz., Mary, dau. of Sir John Herbert, brother of Sir William. The grantees were no doubt trustees, as the consideration was paid by Doddington.

Kibbor and Cardiff was purchased by the Earl of Bute in 1793, from the successors in title of the Herberts of the Friars, and the Marquess of Bute is now Lord.

The Grange of Moor may be mentioned conveniently here, as Margam property. Though in the parish of Llandaff and not within Kibbor or Cardiff, it was, perhaps, to some extent, connected with the manor so called.

1193—1218. Henry Bishop of Llandaff granted to Margam all the land from the Great Pill to the Taff which lay near the Bishop's sheepfold from wall to wall. According to the endorsement the land lay "in mora de Kerdif." (Cartae III., p. 218.)

This property became known as Grange of Moor, and after the Dissolution was acquired by the family of Lewis of the Van.

1594. Thomas Lewis of the Van, Esquire, died seised of the Grange of Moor, held of the Queen in chief. (Inquisition 1595).

The property remained in the Lewis family till their heiress married the 3rd Earl of Plymouth. From them Lord Windsor, the present owner of the Grange, is descended.

The Abbot's Grange is the only old building in the south-western suburb of Cardiff, called after it, Grangetown.

MANOR OF ROATH DOGFIELD.

Roath (in Welsh, y Rhâth) is a parish adjoining Cardiff on the east. There is some reason to think its name is more ancient than that of Cardiff.

The manor formerly known as Roath, but for about 300 years called Roath Dogfield, is one of the manors carved out of the old Commote of Kibbor, though it comprises certain lands (Taff Mead, Merches, &c.) west of the Taff, which were not within that Commote according to Leland's description. It seems to have been always in the hands of the Lord of Cardiff Castle. Its principal house was anciently fortified and moated, and was no doubt on the site occupied by the present Roath Court, the seat of C. H. Williams, Esq. Rice Merrick says:—"Within it stood an old Pyle, compassed with a "Mote, which is called The Court; but now in ruyne." This manor comprises lands in the parishes of Roath, Llanishen, Lisvane, Saint John Baptist and Saint Mary.

Merrick says that in this manor is a place called Bedd-y-ci-du ("the grave of the black dog"), and this place is also mentioned in Ministers' Accounts and a Survey temp. Hen. VIII. and Elizabeth. The same curious name is still borne by a field situate a little to the north of Llanishen church. After referring to this place, Merrick adds:—"Whereof it is supposed the lordship was named Dogfield."

This, however, is a very doubtful point. The name in the early documents is always "Roath," without addition. "Dogfield" first appears as part of the name of the manor in the time of Henry VIII.

It has been thought that it may be connected with the name Docgeuel or Doggevel (see below) a mediæval form of the ancient Welsh Docmail and Dogvael.

In the Inquisition of Isabel, Countess of Warwick, 18 Henry VI., mention is made of a placé called "DogowylDESCROFT."

In this manor is Ty Mawr (otherwise Llys Du), which in 1748 was in the occupation of Sir George Howells. It stands close to Roath church.

Among the early inhabitants of this manor was, it appears, a family named Roth, no doubt deriving their name from it. Alice, daughter and heir to David Roth, was married to Jenkyn ap Adam ap Cynaethwy ap Herbert, who was great-grandfather to Sir William ap Thomas, and so ancestor of the great Herbert family. This appears from an Elizabethan pedigree of Roberts of Cardiff, preserved at the Free Library.

1155 (c). Richard Bulchart granted to Margam Abbey 5½ acres of meadow lying between the meadow of William Docgevel and the meadow of the men of Rad (Roath). (Cartae III., pp. 89—90.)

1186 (c.) William Doggeuel notified to the Bishop of Llandaff his grant to the monks of Margam of his field under Rahat (Roath), in the marsh towards the south, and any acre they might choose in his land at Lisbonit. (Cartae III., p. 118.)

1200 (c.) In an agreement between Margam and Caerleon "the land Duc of the fee of Dogefel" is mentioned. (Cartae IV., p. 601.)

1307. Roath and Leckwith are called members of the town and castle of Cardiff. (Inquisition on death of Joan de Clare.)

Rents of a pound of cummin, a pound of pepper and a pair of gilt spurs are mentioned in early Inquisitions as paid for different tenements.

1395—1307. From the Inquisitions of Gilbert de Clare and Joan de Clare, the curious fact appears that it was the duty of the tenants of Llantwit to mow and make the hay of Taff Mead.

1316. A compotus of the possessions late of Gilbert de Clare includes lands "in the manor of Roath and the vill of Kaerdif with the castle."

1325. Grant, Walter Balle to John Mody, of one acre of meadow lying in the fee of Kaerdif at Westmor, in width between a meadow of the lord on the south, &c. (Cartae I., p. 260.)

1550. Minister's Accounts. "A certain rent paid to our lord the King as in his demesne of Dogfield."

1550. Roath was one of the manors included in the grant by the King to Sir William Herbert, knight. (Vol. I., p. 463.)

One of the customary tenements was called "Alyce hill," containing 20 acres. (Chanc. Proc., Series II., bdle. 101, No. 12.) A Survey of the 12th year of Elizabeth shows that there were then only five copyhold tenements, and one of these was claimed to be held freely.

1678. MS. Glam. pedigrees. "The said Earl [of Pembroke] hath the castle of Cardiff, which stands in the manor of Roath."

The tenants of this manor held by freehold, sergeantry, kitchenhold and bond tenure. Copyhold tenure in Roath has long ceased to exist.

The Marquess of Bute is now Lord of Roath.

A Court Baron for Lord Bute's manors of Roath Dogfield, Roath Tewkesbury, Kibbor and Cardiff (called in recent times "White Friars and Kibbor"), and Llystalybont, was held, till the middle of the present century, at the Cross Keys inn, just outside the east gate of Cardiff. It was then removed to the old Angel inn and then to the Cardiff Arms (now the Angel), within the town walls, and is still held there. The Court was formerly held every six months, but now meets only once a year.

MANOR OF ROATH TEWKESBURY.

This comprises the lands in Kibbor and the town of Cardiff which were granted to Tewkesbury Abbey, Gloucestershire; but it has been sometimes confused with Roath Dogfield on account of its often being referred to simply by the name of "Roath."

1102 (c.) The mill of Raz (Roath) was given to Tewkesbury by Robert de Haia. What mill is here referred to is doubtful; for although an ancient mill was standing in Roath, not far from the church, until 1897, that mill was in Roath Keynsham.

In this manor is an old thatched cottage, in the parish of Llanedern, known as Ty'r Capel, which was originally a chapel—probably the Lanvorda and Lanbordan of mediæval records.

1236. Tewkesbury Abbey gave up the church of Llanedern to the Bishop and Chapter of Llandaff, retaining the tithes of Lanbordan for the use of the Prior of Cardiff. (Annals of Tewkesbury, p. 100.)

1578 (c.) Rice Merrick says (p. 103 Corbett's edition) speaking of Llanedern: "William Herbert hath a manor therein . . . . . "within it is the chappell of Lanvorda." This "manor" would probably be part of Roath Tewkesbury—though the fact of Ty'r Capel being described in the Roath Keynsham Survey as held under Saint Austin's on the Green, Bristol, renders the point doubtful.

1546. James Gunter and William Lewis applied for the farm of the manor of Cardiff, late in Tewkesbury Monastery.

1550. The Minister's Accounts mention "a certain rent paid to George Herbert, knight, at his demesne or manor of Cardiff and Roth, formerly belonging to the monastery of Tewkesbury." A modern writer (Arch. Camb.) says that this manor was purchased in 1546 by Sir George Herbert, and held in capite.

1586. The manor of Rothe Tewxburie was held by Sir William Herbert (grandson of Sir George); as also the free chapel of Roath, lately dissolved, with the tithes, profits, lands and tenements to the same chapel belonging.

THE CARDIFF FRIARS.

The estates of the Friars, whether Franciscan, Dominican or Carmelite, do not appear to have been called manors; but as the name of "Friars," or "White Friars," has been connected with that of the manor properly called "Kibbor and Cardiff," it may be well to give some facts with respect to them.

With regard to the White or Carmelite Friars, it is stated in Dugdale's Monasticon (1846 edition, VIII. 1582), that there is "said to have been" a house of White Friars at Cardiff; adding, "It was probably destroyed by Owen Glyndowr."

It would seem clear that the White Friars' house at Cardiff had disappeared before the dissolution of the monasteries in the time of Henry VIII.

The house of the Black Friars, Dominicans, or Friars Preachers, was between the Castle and the river Taff. It was acquired by Sir William Herbert, grandson of Sir George Herbert, and again sold by him between 1570 and 1586. The site now belongs to the Marquess of Bute.

The Grey Friars, Franciscans, or Friars Minors, had their house at Crockherbtown, south of what is now Cathays Park.

Sir George Herbert acquired this site, and from him it passed to his grandson Sir William; who built the mansion known as the Friars, the ruins of which yet remain.

The Herberts acquired also the Margam Abbey manor of "Kibbor and Cardiff;" and the fact of their mansion house being situate on the land of the Friars may probably account for the manor in later days being called "Kibbor and Cardiff, otherwise Friars," and more recently "White Friars and Kibbor."

It is more curious, however, that the name "White Friars" was frequently used, apparently by mistake, and was applied to the house which was in fact built on the site of the Grey Friars.

The Herberts of "Cardiff Friars," or of "White Friars," who are referred to in the Cardiff Parish Registers and other documents, were really of the Grey Friars—or rather the house built by Sir William Herbert on the site of the Grey Friars.

1649. "William Herbert, of Cardiff Friars," is mentioned in the Parish Registers of Saint John Baptist, Cardiff; and the Herberts were living at the "Friars" down to about 1730, as appears from the same registers. The Grey Friars house is in ruins; of the Black Friars only the foundations remain, in the grounds just west of the Castle. The sites belong to Lord Bute.

MANOR OF ROATH KEYNSHAM.

This comprised the estates in Kibbor of Keynsham Abbey (Somersetshire)—founded by William, Earl of Gloucester, between 1167 and 1172. The grant of the estates constituting the manor of Roath Keynsham was by Gilbert de Clare (1217—30).

1250 (c.) In a pledge of five acres of meadow in Eastmore called Stockcroft, a rent of 2*d.* was reserved to the Earl of Gloucester and the Abbot of Keynsham. (Cartae I., p. 157.)

1275. King Edward confirmed Earl Gilbert's grant to Keynsham of (inter alia) "the whole Park of Rumeysa and the whole fishery and fishing of Rumeysa, and both the vivaries of Raz (Roath), with the mill and the great vivary below Kibur to the west, and all the lands (landas) of Raz, and the whole forest of Kibur." (Cartae I., p. 190.)

1291. In the Taxatio of Pope Nicholas, the Abbot of Keynsham has a carucate of land in Roath, with certain rights and rents, a weir and a water mill.

After the dissolution this manor was purchased by Sir Edward Lewis of the Van, and held in capite as church land.

1563. Lands originally part of this manor were granted by the Crown to William Morgan esq. and William Moris gent.

1593. Thomas Lewis of the Van died seised (inter alia) of the manor of Roath Keynsham, held of the Queen; annual value, 8*s.*

1596. Edward Lewis of the Vann, esquire, was the lord. The manor had demesne and copyholds of indenture for three lives.

1650. William Lewis of the Van, esquire, was presented as the undoubted lord of the manor of Roath Keynsham.

1661. William Lewis died leaving a son, Edward Lewis, and a

Lord Tredegar is the present Lord.

1650. "The Survey and Presentment of the Manor of Roath Keynsham in Glamorgan" (Arch. Camb., 1883, p. 109), sets forth in detail the mears and bounds of the manor. The boundaries cannot be described without a plan, the manor being in so many scattered portions.

The principal tenements named in this Survey are the following:—

Roath Mill.

Field called Ystafell-y-cwn (or Stabell-y-cwm).

Llwyn-y-Grant.

Tir-y-Capel, in Llanedern, in the tenure of Thomas Mathew (held in fee under the College of Saint Austin on the Green, Bristol, and forming parcel of the estate called Coed-y-gores).

Wedal Uchaf, in the parish of Llandaf.

Cefn Coed.

1703. A Survey of the manor adds the following tenements:—
Cwrt Bach.

Pengam; bounded east by the river Rhyminy, and south-west by lands of the Lord of the Friars.

The Back, alias Abbot's Land.

Goose Lease.

The Survey further states that there is a pinfold or pound belonging to the manor; and that all the tenants are entitled to free pasture on the commons there, called Mynydd Bychan, Y Waun Ddyfal and Treoda. Mynydd Bychan is called in English the Great Heath; Y Waun Ddyfal is the Little Heath, and Gwaun-treoda is termed Whitchurch Common.

Coed-y-gores was anciently the home of a branch of the old Morgan family, the last of whom, David Morgan ("the Pretender's counsellor"), was beheaded at Kennington in 1746, and his estates forfeited for high treason.

Cefn-coed is an old abode on the top of the hill, north of Pen-y-lan.

Cwrt Bach, now called Roath Court Farm, is situate a little to the south of Roath Church.

Pengam is an ancient farmhouse on the margin of Roath Moor, a little south of the high road to Newport.

Pedair Erw Twc was a messuage and land between Roath and Llanishen, on the west side of the Nant Mawr; the messuage has been demolished.

Goose Lease is now the name of a goose pasture by Roath mill and the Deri farm.

In this manor is Ty Gwyn (otherwise Pen-y-lan Farm), now the Convent of the Good Shepherd.

In the latter part of the 17th century, William Morgan of Tredegar bought Roath Keynsham from Richard Lewis of the Van, and Lord Tredegar is now Lord of the Manor.

MANOR OF LLYSTALYBONT.

On the eastern bank of the Glamorganshire canal, where the canal approaches within about a hundred yards of the Taf, stands a rambling thatched farmhouse popularly known as Lislabont or Islabont (Llystalybont.) Although it looks so insignificant to-day, this is one of the most ancient residences in Glamorgan and possessed great importance in early times. The lands of this manor were scattered, and though the mansion lies a mile to the north of Cardiff, houses in the suburb outside the south gate of that town, called Soudrey, were reputed to be parcel of the manor of Llystalybont; and part of the manor lay in the parish of Llanishen. A Survey of 1653, after giving the bounds of the main portions, says that the manor lay in the several parishes of Llandaff, Whitchurch, St. John's in Cardiff, Roath, Llanishen and Lisvane. The mediæval manor of Llystalybont consisted of only half a knight's fee.

Early in the 13th century, Sir Ralph Maelog was lord of Llystalybont in Kibbor.

Sir William Maelog was lord of Llystalybont, Wysam and Maelog's Fee, temp. Hen. III. (1216—72). This knight is said, in Mr. Clark's Genealogies of Glamorgan, to have married a daughter of Rhys ap Griffith ap Ifor Bach, Lord of Senghenydd. His daughter married Sir Gwrgi le Grant.

Circa 1216 Isabel, daughter of William, Earl of Gloucester, confirmed to the abbot and monks of Margam Abbey (inter alia) the possessions which they had of the free men of Kaerdif at Listelebon. This may have included the grange of Llystalybont. (Cartae III., p. 308.)

1261. Pope Alexander IV. confirmed to Margam Abbey (inter alia) their possessions at Lestelebont. (Cartae III., p. 473).

1291 circa. Pope Nicholas' Taxation shews that the Abbot of Caerleon had at Lestalelond certain rents of assize (probably in Mynachdy), and the Abbot of Margam one carucate of land there. The possessions of Caerleon in this county appear to have passed to Llantarnam previous to the Dissolution of the Monasteries. Lands which formerly belonged to Caerleon appear in the rolls of the Augmentation Office as the property of Llantarnam. The various lands "at Llystalybont" belonging to Caerleon (afterwards Llantarnam), and Margam respectively, adjoined lands which are still part of the manor, and were probably granted to the Abbeyes either by former lords, or freeholders with the consent of the lords.

As to the respective estates of the two Abbeyes, the matter is not free from difficulty; but from what is known of the subsequent history of the property, it appears probable that Mynachdy lands belonged to Llantarnam, while the Grange farm (near Cathays) was the property of Margam.

1314. William Maylok (Maelog) held half a fee as Lord of Lestilbont by Cardiff. (I.P.M. of Gilbert de Clare.)

He seems to have been succeeded by Ralph Maelog, and the latter by William Maelog who was Lord of Llystalybont, temp. Edw. III.

1319. Roger ap Ievan de Lustelbont granted to Thomas Moryn half an acre of land, less nine yards, with the appurtenances in Overham, between the land of Richard de Lustelbont on the east and land of Kenewrek ap Ievan on the west; one rood, one yard, and three-quarters of a yard of land with the appurtenances in Nitherham, between the land of John Dobin on the south, and land of Kenewrek ap Ievan on the north. (Cartae I., p. 255.)

1332. William Maelog and his wife vainly endeavoured to enforce in the Bishop's Court their claim to have Mass said "at their house on the other side of the Taf," at Christmas and Easter. They alleged an ancient grant by the Bishop and Chapter in consideration of certain lands given to the See by their ancestors. (Lib. Land.)

1336. Extent by Margam Abbey, directed to their superior the Abbot of Clairvaulx, of their possessions, mentions "Apud Listelbone j carucatam terre. Et de prato ibidem vij acras." (Cartae IV., p. 152.)

1348. Madoc ap Ruyn held half a knight's fee in Lustelbond of Hugh le Despenser. (I.P.M. 1349.)

In the Glamorgan Genealogies it is stated that Arnold, an advena, married the heiress of Morgan ap Madoc, Lord of Llystalybont; that the estate was held by his descendants for five generations, and that the heiress of the last married William Yelor. This last statement would seem to be inaccurate if intended to imply that Llystalybont passed by marriage from the Arnold family. (See below, under date 1542.)

1516 The Abbot of Margam granted to Germanus ap Howel of Kibbor (inter alia) "a tenement built situate at Listallapont, commonly called Puppit." (Cartae II., p. 249).

1542. John Arnold, of Gloucester, 14 April 1542, sold the manor of Llystalybont to Sir Edward Carne of Ewenny.

"Llystelabonte—Firma Grangiae 2li.
Managhtyrwyn—Redditus Grangiae 2li."

1578. John William of Listalabone, gentleman, was one of the principal freeholders of Cardiff.

1596. Listalabounte had free tenants, and copyholds for three lives.

1610. George Lewis of Llystalybont, Esquire, was M.P. for Cardiff and Sheriff of Glamorganshire. The manor at this time belonged to Carne.

1622. John Carne sold the manor to the Earl of Pembroke.

1649. The manor of Llystalybont belonged to Philip, Earl of Pembroke. The mill of Listellabont having been forfeited to the Earl as felon's goods, an action was brought by John Williams against Anne Herbert, widow of William Herbert, who had seized it on behalf of the Earl. (See Exch. Dep., 24 Car. I., East. 1 and 2.) This action was dismissed 5 May 1651. (Exch. Decrees and Orders, Vol. V., col. 234*d*.)

1653. A Survey of the manor in this year shows that the free tenants then were Sir Charles Kemeys of Cefn Mable; William Lewis of the Van, Esq.; Thomas Lewis of Lanishen, Esq.; George Williames of Lanishen.

1673. For customs of the manor of Lystallaboone, belonging to the Earl of Pembroke, see Exch. Dep., 25 Car. II., East. 25. This document shows that several large tenements in Llanishen parish were part of this manor, and paid rent and rendered heriots of the best beast to the Lord. Lewis of Llanishen were copyhold tenants there. Two of the tenements were called Coed Cae and Tir-y-Maerdy.

1678. MS. Glam. Ped. The Earl of Pembroke has (inter alia) the manor of Llystalybont, which are free, copyhold and demesne lands.

1715. Viscount Windsor conveyed (inter alia) a parcel of land lying in Sowdry, reputed parcel of the manor of Listalbont.

1818. Llystalybont manor-house and hamlet are in the parish of Llandaff. In this manor is Heol Hir Farm.

From the Earls of Pembroke the manor descended to the Marquess of Bute, who is the present Lord.

MANOR OF LLANDAFF.

This manor belonged to the Bishop of Llandaff from ancient times, and constituted him one of the Lords Marchers, but subject to the Lord of Glamorgan; of whom, for nearly two centuries, the Bishop was supposed to hold his temporalities.

1205. King John granted to the Bishop of Llandaff an annual fair at Whitsuntide, and a weekly market on Sundays, to be held in the manor. The fair was discontinued about 1880.

1218 (c). The Bishop of Llandaff granted to Margam Abbey all the land from Thaf to the Great Pill, which lies by the Bishop's sheepfold, from wall to wall. According to the endorsement the land granted lay in "in mora de Kerdif." (Cartae III., p. 218).

1290. Gilbert de Clare claimed to hold the temporalities of the See of Llandaff during the vacancy of the See; but this was resisted by King Edward I., who desired to restrict the excessive powers of the Marcher Lords. The result was that the Earl had to give up his claim to the temporalities except for the lives of himself and Joan his wife, a daughter of the King.

1291 circa. Pope Nicholas' Taxation shews that the Manor of Llandaff comprised three ploughlands, with free and villein tenants, mills, fishery, and a Court.

1439. John Daldeyn, gentleman, agrees with his brother David concerning the possessions they inherited from their father, Edmund Daldeyn, "within the said counte of Glamorgan and within the libertie of the towne of Cardeff, and in the lordship of Llandaff, in Suth Walys." (Cartae, vol. II., p. 140.)

1535. In the Valor Ecclesiasticus the Lordship of Landaffe is valued at 50*l.* 2*s.* The Steward, Mr. Maunxell, received 5*l.* a year.

1553. Bishop Kitchin granted Llandaff Manor to Sir George Mathew of Radyr, knight, his heirs and assigns. This greatly impoverished the See, and even comprised the Bishop's Castle, which seems to have been dismantled shortly afterwards.

Near the castle stands the ancient mansion of the family of Mathew of Llandaff. It was formerly called Bryn-y-gynen, but now Llandaff Court, and is supposed to have been built by David Mathew ap Ieuan Gruffydd Gethin (Rice Merrick.) It was rebuilt in the 18th century and is now the palace of the Bishop of Llandaff.

1578. Rymbron Mathew was in possession of Bryn-y-gynen.

1596. William Mathew, esquire, was supposed to hold this manor in socage of the Bishop. His demesne extended to the Taff bank, almost as far as Cardiff bridge. (Herbert Abbreviate.)

1646. The Parliamentary Survey contains only an account of a fee farm rent issuing out of this manor.

1740. According to a Survey of this year, the boundaries of Llandaff Manor take in, on the north-east side, Maendy and Mynachdy, and lands formerly part of the Great Heath. It mentions chief rents as being payable (inter alia) for the manor of Caerau, and Splott Farm in Roath.

1763. The Manor of Llandaff was in the hands of Thomas Mathew of Thomastown, County Tipperary; who this year appointed his kinsman, Anthony Mathews of Leckwith, gamekeeper of the manor.

1777. Francis Mathew of Thomastown demised the Lordship of Llandaff for a term of years to Anthony Mathew of Leckwith.

1818. Francis James Mathew, Earl of Llandaff, and others, conveyed this manor to Sir Samuel Romilly, knight.

1819. Sir S. Romilly's Will was proved at Canterbury, and his estates were divided among his children in equal shares.

1852. The sons of Sir Samuel Romilly sold to William Sheward Cartwright: All that the Manor or reputed Manor of Llandaff in the County of Glamorgan, with the appurtenances thereto belonging, extending over the whole Parish of Llandaff; which parish comprises the Hamlets of Canton, Eley, Fairwater, Gabalva and East Laboon [Llystalybont] and includes the commons or waste lands called Llandaff Common 39a. 1r., Canton Common 41a. 3r. 8p., Wayn Gron 2a. 2r. 7p., Eley Green 3a. Or. 16p., waste on Eley Road 1a. 2r. 9p. or thereabouts, and all other the wastes of the said Manor. Together with the fishery in the river Taff within the said Parish of Llandaff, extending from the confines of the Parish of Reider near Llandaff to the river Taff to the north, to the sea towards the south. And also a fishery in the river Eley, from the confines of Leckwith Parish to the confines of Saint Fagans Parish held by Anthony Mathews, Esquire, his heirs and assigns for ever at the yearly rent of 5s. And also all the tolls and pickages of the fairs held at Llandaff and Eley in the County of Glamorgan. And also all that pound, being the Lord's Pound of the Manor or Lordship of Llandaff, situate in the City of Llandaff, with the profits arising from the empounding of estrays within the said Manor (which said tolls and pickages of the said fairs at Llandaff and the said pound were with other hereditaments, by Lease dated 15 January 1808, demised by Francis Lord Landaff to the Reverend Powell Edwards from the date thereof for the lives of the said Powell Edwards, Thomas Williams Richards and Edward Windsor Richards at the yearly rent of 130*l.*) And also all those several chief rents of the several amounts scheduled thereunder and payable to the Lord of the said Manor of Llandaff. Together with all houses &c (inter alia) feedings, commons, common of pasture and herbary, Courts Leet, views of frank pledge and all that to view of frank pledge doth belong and appertain, Courts Baron, Customary or Copyhold Courts and all other Courts &c.

Penhill House and one acre called Erw-yr-apothecary in Llandaff, formerly held by Lewis Charles and then by Edward Bevan gent. 5*d.*

Several freehold houses, gardens, orchards, &  $\frac{3}{4}$ a. in Llandaff. John Charles, innkeeper. 2*d.*

The Survey of 1740 above referred to contains a somewhat different description of the fisheries, that in the Taff being described as extending down the river to below a pool called Pwll-y-Stapse, and that in the Ely as being from Coed Groes to the lower end of Ely Moor.

1885. The Cartwrights conveyed to the Cardiff Corporation Ely Common, Canton Common, Waungron, Ely Green, and the wastes on the Ely Road; otherwise known by the more modern names of Ely and Canton Commons. The Corporation paid compensation to the commoners.

1895. The Manor of Llandaff now belongs to Thomas George Cartwright, Esq., of Fairwater, near Cardiff.

TREASURER'S MANOR OF LLANDAFF.

This comprises lands which from ancient times have belonged to the Treasurer for the time being of Llandaff Cathedral. A fragment of the Treasurer's House remains in the Lower Close at Llandaff, by the Bishop's Castle and Saint Teilo's well.

1291 (c.) Pope Nicholas' Taxation shews that this manor comprised 32 acres of land. Also that the other principal officials of the diocese held lands which the Taxation styles manors, viz., the Archdeacon, the Chancellor, the Precentor and the Chapter.

1535. The Valor Ecclesiasticus names the following as parcels of this manor:—Glebe at David Melans close, the Smale close, Pant Crappull, y Weyn Gron and Kaye y Dyntur; a close called Kae y Goboye, and two acres at Kae Johan vergh Ievan Bagh. Miles Mathew was tenant at will of a close by Mylstret, an acre of arable land at Whitt close, a parcel of arable land under Penhyll, and three quarters of land at Hungrys Hyll. Tenants for terms of years held various lands and messuages at the Heyn, Penhill (by copy of Court Roll), Berland, Canton and Saltmede. Free tenants were George Mathew and Miles Mathew; the latter held three acres at Tyr y Cutler at 3*d.* per annum, and Saint Teilo's Acre at a penny a year. George Mathew was Steward, Owen David Clerk of the Court, and Jankyn Dyo Bailiff there.

It appears that the Prebends of Llandaff were also accounted manors. At all events in 1548 the Prebend of Saint Andrew, alias Bassetchurch, was conveyed to James Button of Worleton as a "prebend, manor or lordship," except the "capital house" &c near the cathedral. It comprised 140 acres. (Chanc. Proc. Series II., bdl. 18, No. 80.)

In a petition to Queen Mary Tudor the parishioners of Llandaff complained that these lands had lately been let out to friends of the residentiary Canons, whereby the revenues had been greatly spoiled and diminished. (See Vol. I., p. 380.)

1649. Sir John Wollaston, knight, and Robert Tichborn, esquire (trustees under two Acts of Parliament) for 68*3*l. 9*s*. 6*d*. granted to Stephen Deare of Llandaffe, gent., "all that manor commonly called the Treasurer's Manor in the county of Glamorgan, with the capital messuage or mansion house called the manor house in the coom'd; and all that parcel of arable land called Kaeda Malan, on the highway from Llandaff to Ely; and arable land called the Five Acres; and the pasture ground called Kae Damter, on the highway from Llandaff to Fairwater; and arable land called Kae-yr-vroes Lloyd, on the highway from Llandaff to Ely; and one meadow called Werne Grove or the Treasurer's Close, and a meadow near the Watrell, called Kae-yr-Gayll, on the highway from Llandaff to Place Mawr; and one meadow called Kae Whuan Verch Evan Bach; and two meadows between the old Salt Mead, Tophes Mead, and the marshes called the Heaves." Also the following tenements:—

Treasurer's White Acre.

Treasurer's Black Acre.

Treasurer's Acres (meadow), on Ely Moor;

all in the parish of Llandaff, in the occupation of Marmaduke Mathew.

The Brovey, arable field on the highway from Fairwater to St. Fagan's, late in the occupation of Miles Mathew.

Cottage and orchard at Fairwater.

Two houses adjoining Llandaff churchyard.

Pant-y-Crapall, meadow.

Kae-yr-Croes, arable field near the highway from Llandaff to Rayder.

Kae-yr-Oven, arable field;

all being late parcel of the possessions of the Treasurer of the cathedral church of Llandaff. (Close Rolls 1649, part 49.)

1714. This manor was annexed to the bishopric by 12 Anne, 2, cap. 6.

1895. It is now vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, with other ecclesiastical property at Llandaff; but no Court is held, and the manor is practically extinct.

MANOR OF SPLOTT.

This was a parcel of land holden of the Lord of Llandaff. It paid suit to the Bishop's Court in Leland's time, and was anciently held by the Bawdrips of Penmark. It consists mainly of two farms, called the Upper and Lower Splott, situate between Roath village and the sea.

1440. The Splott is mentioned as bounding certain lands of Isabel, Countess of Warwick.

1540 (c). Leland writes: "Spot, a maner place longging to Baudrem, lyith from the mouth of Remny on the shore, and is taken as land holden of the Bisshop of Landaf, and resortith to the Bisshopes court. So it is in the commote of Kibworth, but not of the Court of it."

Towards the end of the 16th century Splott was in the hands of Thomas Bawdripe, freeholder.

1596. William Bawdrippe of Penmark, esquire, built a fair house at the Splott and made the same his chief residence. (Abbreviate.)

1626. William Bawdrip of Splott, esquire, was M.P. for Cardiff. This year, or soon after, he sold Penmark and Splott to Sir Edward Lewis of the Van.

1638. Sir Edward Lewis of the Van died seised of the Lordship of Splott, described as being in the parishes of Saint Mary (Cardiff) and Roath.

1740. The Llandaff Survey of this year mentions a chief rent of 4s. as payable in respect of Splott Farm in Roath.

The Splott now belongs to Lord Tredegar.

MANOR OF THE SPITTAL.

Spittal Manor was attached to a religious guest-house or almshospital at Crockherbtown. It was situate in the parish of Saint John Baptist, and may possibly have been a dependency of the Order of Saint John of Jerusalem, or Knights Hospitallers. Its tithe was afterwards held by the Dean of Gloucester. Crockherbtown was the eastern suburb of Cardiff.

1550. The Ministers' Accounts refer to "3½ acres of land in the field called le Spyttes close," claimed by William Bawdrib, esquire, as parcel of his inheritance; and to "4 acres of arable land near the channel called the Spittell lane."

It does not appear from the public records that the Spittal itself was ever in the hands of the Crown. Possibly, like the Spittal close above mentioned, the Spittal itself was claimed by Bawdrib as having been originally granted by his ancestors. Sir William Herbert, the Crown grantee of 1550, or his son Henry, second Earl of Pembroke, purchased this manor of William Bawdrippe ante 1570. "It hath free tenant leases and cobby houlds for iij lives." (Abbreviate.)

In an account of Edmund Rowland, Receiver General of Henry, Earl of Pembroke, 1573—4, the Spittal is described as having been purchased of William Bawdrippe.

1610. Speed's map shows the "Spittle" as a building standing east and west in the middle of the Newport Road.

1666 (Cardiff Survey). Schedule of the bounds and rents of the Lordship of Spittle. James Herbert esq. possessed the capital house called the Spittle, and 5a. of land, late in the tenure of William Bawdripp esq. deceased. Herbert Evans esq. held 8a. with 5 cottages & gardens, and the barn and orchard, all at Crockherbtown.

In 1782 Lord Cardiff was rated to St. John's for the "Spittle Barn," and in 1783 a Mr. Hurst and Mrs. Jones were in possession of "Spittle House and Garden."

In 1804 part of the Spittal property was valued at 200*l.* and conveyed in exchange from Lord Bute to the Cardiff Corporation. In 1835 it was conveyed to Mr. Edward Priest Richards, and it afterwards formed portion of the Stacey estate. The Gaol stands on another part of the Spittal lands.

A block of old tenements known as the Spital Buildings was demolished in 1885, and the same name is now borne by a row of new shops on the Queen Street frontage of the land.

GRIFFITHSMOOR.

Griffithsmoor, or Griffithmore, is the name given to certain lands the main part of which lies on the west side of the road from Cardiff to Newport, and extends to Rumney bridge. Though sometimes styled a "lordship," it appears to be usually treated in the Inquisitions, &c., as parcel of, or at least connected with Whitchurch, itself a "member" of Senghenydd. It is partly bounded by the manor of Roath Keynsham. Griffithsmoor, probably, was never a distinct manor. Its name may have been derived from Griffith ap Rhys, the last Welsh Lord of Senghenydd. He was Lord at the date of the Extent of Glamorgan which Mr. Clark attributes to the year 1262, but by 1295 the lordship was in the hands of the Chief Lord. In some Annals (Cartae III., p. 558) under the date 1266 it is stated that "Griffinus ap Reys" was sent to Kilkenny to be imprisoned.

1307. Griffithsmoor is entered in Inquisitions on the death of Joan de Clare as composed of 60 acres of arable land and 16 acres of meadow, and in the same document "the moor of Griffith" is called a member of the Castle and Vill of Kayrfilli (in Senghenydd).

1314. Gruffismor is valued as a parcel of Whitminster. (I.P.M. of Gilbert de Clare.)

1316. In a Minister's Account the accountant answers (among other dependencies of the Manor of Whitchurch) for 30s. received from the pasturage of 60 acres of arable land in cultivation this year in Griffithsmor. (Cartae I., p. 222.)

1376. The Custodian accounts for 66s. 8d. of the issues of a certain pasture called Griffithesmore." (Vol. I., p. 154.)

1440. An Inquisition names "the lordship of Griffithmore." (I.P.M. of Isabella, Countess of Warwick.)

1492. Morgan ap John Gwyn farmed the pasture of Griffithmore.

1550. The Particulars for the royal grant to Sir William Herbert include "the farm of a pasture "called Griffithmore in Kybor; eight acres whereof are in Enormore amongst the lands of Lord Herbart, and the rest is near the causey leading from Romney to Cardiff, containing by estimation 53 acres."

1807. In this year Griffithsmoor was conveyed in exchange by the then Marquess of Bute to Mark Wood, Esquire, and is now understood to belong to Colonel Amelius Richard Mark Lockwood.

MANOR OF CANTON.

Canton (in Welsh, Treganna) is a hamlet in the parish of Llandaff, and now forms the western suburb of Cardiff. The manor is under the Manor of Llandaff. (q.v.)

Early 13th century. Lucia de Kanetune possessed a field near the Earl's wall. (Cartae III., p. 206.)

1230 (c.) Walter de Canetune is named in a Cardiff charter, and witnessed same. (Cartae III., p. 369.)

1290. Richard de Canetone witnessed a Cardiff charter. (Cartae I., p. 197.)

1290 (c.) John, son of Robert de Landaf, granted to Milo de Regny "a rent of sixpence arising out of three acres of land with the appurtenances, which John de Lake, formerly bailiff of la Lekwiffe, had of my fee under Kanetone, in Sudcrofte. As also one penny rent from John, son of John Godman of Kaerdif, for three other acres in the same Sudcrofte under Kanetone." Richard de Kaneton was one of the witnesses to this charter. (Cartae I., p. 294.)

1450 (c.) The reversion of Caneton was granted to Sir David Mathew of Llandaff.

1899. An old messuage called the Manor House is still standing, on the west side of Canton Common. It is in the occupation of Mr. Richard Williams. The Common is in process of being converted into a public recreation ground.

MANOR OF PLASTURTON.

Plasturton was a farmhouse demolished 1895. It stood on the site of an ancient house near the Cowbridge Road and the Taff west bank, on the west side of the present Cathedral Road. "The Manor or Lordship of Placestourton, otherwise Glasspoole," was held by Bawdrip in the 17th century. It was in 1753 the subject of a Chancery suit in the family of Mathew of Llandaff. (Chanc. Proc. 1714—58. Winter, No. 592.) It is, however, doubtful whether Plasturton was actually a manor.

MANOR OF WHITCHURCH.

Whitchurch was called in Latin Album Monasterium ("Whitminster.") Its Welsh name is Eglwys-newydd (Newchurch). It is a parish adjoining that of Llandaff on the north, but was anciently only a chapelry under Llandaff. Most of the modern parish of Whitchurch is in Senghenydd Subtus, but a part is in Cibwr (Kibbor). The whole of the old "Album Monasterium" was in Senghenydd. The remains of the castle are near the old church. Whitchurch is a member of the great Lordship of Senghenydd, and not strictly a manor of itself. Parts of the modern parish are in adjoining manors.

1295. Gilbert de Clare died seised of Whitchurch manor.

1307. In the Inquisition on the death of Joan de Clare, Whitchurch is referred to as a member of the Castle and Vill of Kayrfilli.

1314. In an official document Whitchurch tower is spoken of as a "forcelletum" called Blankminster, "in nullo edificatum," with a mill and other profits thereunto appurtenant. It stood close to the chapel. The name Album Monasterium points to an early monastic establishment. A little to the south-east of Whitchurch, in Llandaff parish, is a farmhouse called Mynachdy ("the monastery"). This place, however, seems to have belonged to Llantarnam Abbey, and it is very doubtful whether the name "Album Monasterium" was derived from it.

1316. Griffithsmoor (q.v.) was held under Whitchurch. An account of the possessions late of Gilbert de Clare includes a "Comptus de exitibus Albi Monasterii," in which is mentioned (inter alia) "30s received from the pasturage of 60 acres of arable land in cultivation this year in Griffithesmor. And of 3s. received from the pasturage of 5½ acres of land in cultivation, beyond the water of Rempni. And of 6s. received from the pasturage of a certain 'hame' there." The same account shows that the Whitchurch mills were burnt in the war of Llewelyn Bren.

1440. The Castle and Manor of Whitminster otherwise Whitchurch, were in the hands of the Countess of Warwick. (I.P.M.)

1550. The Particulars for the grant to Sir William Herbert mention, under the head of "Whitchurch," rents arising from a certain customary service called Commorth, at 4s. 1d., falling to our lord the king every other year to be paid by the tenants aforesaid." Cymorth was a Welsh custom, noticed in the introductory remarks.

1578. Rice Merrick says the old castle is so decayed "that scarce the Foundac'on and Rubbish appeareth. It is said that to it belonged a customary mannor in Whitchurch. But now, by what meanes I could not learn the certeinty, reputed a parcell of Seynghenith and annexed to it."

1596. Abbreviate. "Whitchurch . . . . . butteth to thest p'te of Pentirghe and hath free tenants and leases."

In this manor was Treoda (now destroyed), the seat of Yorath Mawr, a descendant of Iestyn ap Gwrgan. Gwaun Treoda is the Welsh name for Whitchurch Common.

Rice Merrick says Yorath left four daughters, between whom the estate was divided. It is said that it soon came entirely into the hands of one son-in-law, Morys Vychan, and continued in his line until the sons of Ieuan ap Robert ap Morys Vychan sold it to David ap Jenkyn ap Ieuan ap David; whose sons parted with it to David ap Richard Gwyn, whose son Edward enjoyed the same in 1578. This account, however, is of doubtful authority.

For the last three centuries Whitchurch has been treated as a member of Senghenydd, of which the Marquess of Bute is the present Lord.

MANOR OF PENARTH.

Penarth parish embraces the bold headland in the Bristol Channel, west of the mouth of the river Ely.

1189—1199. John, Earl of Mortaine (afterwards King) confirmed to the Augustine Canons (inter alia) "and by the gift of Osbert of Pennard the land of Pennard with its appurtenances and liberties." (Dugdale's Monasticon.)

1290. (c.) "The land of the lord of Pennarth" is mentioned in a charter by which Henry Worgan granted to William Wallot a message and 20 acres of arable land and wood, &c., lying at a place called Nordon within the fee of Pennarth. (Cartae I., p. 204; also II., p. 304.)

1291. (c.) Pope Nicholas' Taxation shews that the Abbot of St. Augustine's of Bristol had three ploughlands at Pennard, with rents of assize, and a dovecote. No doubt this was the manor. He also had the pasture of the Holms, not, however, part of the manor.

1600 (c.) Sir William Herbert seems to have held Penarth under the Dean and Chapter of Bristol, probably by lease.

1635. A new pound was made at Penarth, "for the Lord of the Mannor and his Tenants." (Excheq. Dep.)

On the suppression of the monasteries, Penarth was given to the Dean and Chapter of Bristol, and was sold by them to Lord Windsor's family in 1853. Lord Windsor is Lord of the Manor.

MANOR OF COGAN.

Cogan is a parish bounded on the east by the parish of Penarth. Its manor was anciently accounted as two knight's fees.

The manor belonged to the de Cogan family who came to Glamorgan from Somerset at an early date, and held it for several generations.

Mr. Clark, in a note (Cartae III., p. 117), considers it probable that it at one time belonged to the De Sumeris, Lords of Dinas Powis.

A William de Cogan witnesses two deeds in the time of Nicholas, Bishop of Llandaff, 1148—83. (Cartae III., pp. 86—92.)

1262. In the Extent attributed to this year, the manor is stated to be held by John de Cogan.

1290. (c.) Maurice of Landoch granted to Margam Abbey his marsh of Coganesmor, bounded by Brodeslyme, Sammeliswere, Pennardismor and La Niwere. (Cartae III., p. 541.)

1307. John de Cogan held here one message and two ploughlands, by military service, rendering yearly at the feast of Saint Andrew 13s. 4d. "to the ward of the Castle of Kairdif." (I.P.M. of Joan de Clare).

1314. A John de Cogan appears in the Inquisition on the death of Gilbert de Clare.

1544. On 19th April King Henry VIII. granted the manor which had by that time come into the hands of the Chief Lord of Cogan to Sir George Herbert.

1586. The manor of Cogan belonged to Sir William Herbert, who had it from his grandfather, Sir George Herbert.

1596. Cogan had freehold, demesne and copyhold tenants.

For several generations after this time the manor of Cogan, with the mansion of Cogan Pill, was in the possession of the Herberts.

1767. The manors of Dinaspowis, Landough East and Cogan (with other manors), were in the hands of William Hurst of Gabalva and Calvert Richard Jones of Swansea. They had married two ladies who had become entitled to the estates of this branch of the Herbert family.

1793. Cogan was purchased by the Earl of Bute. The Marquess of Bute is now the lord.

MANOR OF COSMESTON.

This lordship, anciently called Costinston, comprises all Lavernock and a small part of Penarth parishes. It was one of the manors granted by King Edward VI. to Sir William Herbert. Lord Bute is the present lord.

MANOR OF LLANDOUGH.

Llandough parish is situate on the eastern slope of the Leckwith range, and is bounded on the south by the parish of Cogan.

It is supposed to have been the seat of an Abbey in very early times. The Abbot "Sancti Docunni" is frequently referred to in the Liber Landavensis.

1106. "The little vill which is called Landochan" was confirmed to Tewkesbury Abbey by King Henry I. (Cartae III., p. 39.) There can be little doubt that the original grant was by Fitz-Hamon.

1275. (c.) Walter Thorgot granted to William de Regni a messuage in Landoch, lying on the south side of the church of Saint Doguin, near the cemetery, to hold of the Abbot of Tewkesbury.

(Cartae I., p. 182.) The de Reigny family purchased a large number of small holdings in Llandough and adjoining parishes about this time. Nearly 60 conveyances to them exist.

1290. (c.) Maurice de Landoch made a grant of Cogan Moor to Margam Abbey. (See manor of Cogan.)

1535. The Valor Ecclesiasticus shews that the manor of Llandough Est belonged to the Abbot of Tewkesbury, who there had free and villein tenants paying rents of assize.

1543. King Henry VIII. granted Llandough manor to Lord Clynton and Say and Robert Turwitt. By the year 1545 it had been acquired by Sir George Herbert, as appears by a rent-roll of that date.

Sir George Herbert appears to have conveyed the manor to Sir William Herbert, his grandson.

1596. The manor of Landoche-juxta-Cardif had free tenants, demesnes and copyholds. (Abbreviate.)

The subsequent history of Llandough is the same as that of Cogan. It was purchased in 1793 by the Earl of Bute, and the Marquess of Bute is the present lord.

MANOR OF LECKWITH.

Leckwith (y Llechwedd) is a parish on the Leckwith hills, bounded by Llandough on the south.

Circa 1179. Griffin, son of Ifor (bach), granted to Margam 100 acres of land in Lecwithe and certain fisheries "de Helei" (Ely). The deed expresses doubt as to his being able to warrant the title, and if he cannot the monks are to have lands in "Seinhenit" (Senghenydd). (Cartae III. p. 112.)

1153—83. Charter of Bishop Nicholas confirmed to Tewkesbury the Chapel of Leotwtha (Leckwith). (Cartae I., p. 20.)

1207. Walter de Sully, who had farmed the mill of Leckwith, paid 20 marks to King John in respect of its being out of repair. (Cartae I., p. 52.)

1242—62. Richard de Clare granted his manor of Leckwith to Nicholas de Sanford at the service of one fourth of a knight's fee. (Cartae I., p. 109.) Nicholas de Sanford afterwards granted it to his brother Lawrence (Cartae I., p. 117), and Lawrence granted it to Philip Basset. (Cartae I., p. 118.) However, at the time of the Extent of circa 1262 it was held by Fulk de Sanford. (Cartae I., p. 108.)

1295. Leckwith had come back to the Chief Lord, as shown by the Inquisition of that date, and it has so remained ever since.

1305. Roath and Leckwith were called members of the Town and Castle of Cardiff.

1492. In this manor, between the grange and the Bishop's land, was Rusham Mead, a ditch dividing it from the grange.

1550. Rusham Mead was in the occupation of Sir William Herbert as Constable and Chamberlain of Cardiff Castle, it being "parcel of the commoditie of his office, as sufficiently appears." (Ministers' Accounts.)

1596. Leckwith manor "hath free tenants leases, cobby houlds, "and customary lands and tenaunts to them and their heires for ever." (MS. Herbert Abbreviate.)

Leckwith Bridge is the most ancient bridge in the neighbourhood of Cardiff.

Leckwith Manor has belonged to every Lord of Cardiff, from the de Clares to the present Marquess of Bute.

MANOR OF CAERAU.

Caerau is a parish on the north-western spur of the Leckwith range, and is bounded on the south by Wenvoe and Michaelston-le-pit.

Towards the close of the sixteenth century, Merrick wrote that there were in the chapelry of Caerau two little manors "besides that which is within the lordship of Llandaff."

At this same period Sweldon was an ancient mansion in this manor, inhabited by a junior branch of the Mathew stock. In 1731 it paid tithes to Cadoxton-juxta-Barry.

1596. "The tenants doe their suite of court at michellston' together with the tenaunts thereof they are free tenaunts and cobby houlders." It belonged to the Earl of Pembroke. (Abbreviate.)

1601. The manor of Kayry is mentioned among the possessions of Henry, Earl of Pembroke, in the Inquisition on his death.

In 1678 the manor of Cayre belonged to the Earl of Pembroke.

This manor, under the term "Mr. Mathews' manor of Caire," is referred to in the will of Admiral Thomas Mathews of Llandaff, dated 1749 and proved in London 1751.

MANOR OF BEGANSTON.

This name is equivalent to "Began's town," i.e., the residence of Pegan or Payne. The manor house was the old farm-house called Began or Beganston, between Leckwith and Caerau but in Llandaff parish. There was a chapel here before the Reformation. (Lib. Land.)

Towards the close of the sixteenth century Merrick writes of this manor as Beganstone, a bailiwick containing 2 ploughlands, and paying dues called "mises" to the lordship of Glamorgan.

1699. For the dispute re tithes of the manor of Beganstone in the hamlet of Canton in the parish of Llandaff, see Exch. Dep. Glam. and Oxon., Trin. 11, Wm. III., 1. The parties were Jesus Coll., Oxon. v. James Jenkin. These papers also speak of "Beganstone farm or manor, now or late belonging to Jesus Coll., Oxon."

It is now claimed by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, by devolution from the Dean and Chapter of Llandaff.

MANOR OF BEGANSLEY.

The demesne of this manor was situate on the Monmouthshire bank of the Rhymany, not far above Rumney Bridge, near Cardiff. The manor was held under the lords of Wentloog. The heiress married Kemeys, and the Kemeys family resided there previous to fixing their abode at Cefn Mabli.

MANOR OF RADYR.

Radyr is a parish in the Commote of Meisgyn or Miskyn, on the right or western bank of the Taff, below the Garth range of hills.

The manor of Radyr is or was a sub-manor of Miskyn. In a Survey of 1638 it is treated as parcel of that lordship, and seems to have been so considered since that time.

1307. The house at Radur was valued at 12*d.* a year. (I.P.M. of Joan de Clare.)

1314. It is valued at the same amount. (I.P.M. of Gilbert de Clare.)

1315. "The whole exterium of Radur" paid 14*l.* farm to the Earl, and was not otherwise accounted for by the Custodian.

1316. For "Radour" the Custodian "answereth nothing," in the Account from 1 October, 1315, to 20 April 1316; but in the Account from 20 April to 29 September, 4*l.* is accounted for as received for the "farm of Radur."

1350. Hugh le Despenser, Lord of Glamorgan, died seised of Radyr Manor. (I.P.M.)

1376. The manor of Radour was worth by the year 101*s.*

1401. The "Hamlet" of Radur formed part of the dower of Constance, widow of Thomas le Despenser. (Cartae IV., p. 311.)

1440. The manor of Radur was in the hands of the Countess of Warwick. (I.P.M.)

1492. The demesne of Radure was farmed by David Mathew.

1503. 29 April, 1503, Henry VII. leased the manor of Radyr by letters patent to David Matthew for 99 years from Michaelmas 1501. (Rental temp. Hen. VIII.)

1550 May 7. King Edward VI. granted the manor (with others) to Sir William Herbert.

1553. Sir George Mathew held the manor of Radyr (no doubt under this lease), and this year acquired the manor of Llandaff (q.v.)

1596. The lordship belonged to the Earl of Pembroke. It had free and customary tenants and leases, with demesnes and copyhold lands for three lives; also a deer-park. (Abbreviate.) Rees Merrick (c. 1578) says of the Park of Radyr "now ended."

Captain George Mathew of Radyr sold his lands there and removed to Ireland. From him descended the Mathews of Thomasstown, afterwards Earls of Landaff. He died October 1636.

1628. Sir Edward Lewis of the Van died seised of the capital messuage of Le Radyr.

1630. William, Earl of Pembroke, died 10 April seised of the manor of Radure. (I.P.M.)

1696. Anthony Mathew of Splott in the parish of Roath, gent., directed his body to be buried in "Radir Tomb" within the nave of Llandaff Cathedral.

MANOR OF PENTYRCH.

The manor of Pentyrch constitutes a sub-manor or member of Miskyn, bounded on the south-east by Radyr.

It has for centuries been in the hands of the Lord of Miskyn, and has long been regarded as one manor with Clun, under the name of "Pentyrch and Clun." In the Miskyn Survey of 1638, "the said Jurors do present and say that all the Lordship and Manor of Pentyrch and Clun, being the Lord's Manor, doth extend and lie within this Manor of Miskin."

The tenants of this lordship rendered a service called Commorth Glanmai, on the first of May in every other year.

1262. The manor was at this date granted out; for the Extent attributed to this year says that Henry de Sulye holds a fourth (of a knight's fee) in Pentirech.

1317. Writ of the Escheator to deliver a share of Gilbert de Clare's lands to Hugh le Despenser mentions the "Hamlet" of "Pentyrgh." Pentyrch seems thenceforth to have remained continuously in the hands of the Chief Lord, and is mentioned in several Inquisitions.

1547 July 10. King Edward VI. granted Pentyrch together with Miskyn to Sir William Herbert.

The Marquess of Bute is now Lord of Pentyrch and Clun.

There are still copyholds held of this manor.

The ancient house of Castell-y-Myneich, long the seat of a branch of the Mathew family, is within this manor.

MANOR OF WENTLOOG.

The manor or lordship of Wentloog (Y Waunllwch) seems to have embraced nearly the whole of the low country between the Rhymny and the Usk, besides a large hill district, and to have had under it the inferior manors which follow in these notes. It was the name of an ancient Cantrev mentioned in the Liber Landavensis under the name Gunliuiuc, which extended to the boundary of Brecknockshire.

MANOR OF ROMPNEY.

This seems to have embraced the parish of Rhymny or Rumney, in the angle between the estuary of the river Rhymny and the Bristol Channel. The manor was held under Wentloog, which was anciently parcel of the Lordship of Glamorgan and Morganwg, being within Morganwg though not within Glamorgan. "Rempni," as it was then styled, had in 1315 a Reeve and two Beadles. The lowlands of the manor were termed the Warth—now corruptly called the Wharf.

1295. In the Inquisition taken after the death of Gilbert de Clare, who died in this year, Wentloog is called a Comitatus or County. The jury was formed of six freemen of the "County," and six Burgesses of Newport. They deal with the town of Newport and the various manors in Wentloog.

1402. The manor of Rempney belonged to Edmund, Earl of Stafford.

1544. David Morgan Kemmys was Steward and Bailiff of the Lordship of Rompney in the Marches of Wales, from the time of the attainder of Thomas, Lord Cromwell, lately convict of high treason. (Augmt. Misc. 12.)

1545. See Exch. Dep. 36 Hy. 8 p. 65, d. Glam., for particulars concerning the manor of Rompney in the lordship of Newport, South Wales, formerly granted to Thomas, Earl of Essex, attainted; a moiety thereof being now leased to Gregory, Lord Cromwell.

1585. See Exch. Dep. 27 Eliz., for "the Queen's manor of Rompney, Monmouthshire."

1703. Rowland Williams (see post) devised unto Roger Lewis six acres of customary lands in the parish of Peterston (Monm.) and manor of Rumney.

1716. The manor of Rumney belonged to Philip Herbert.

1775. William Hugh of Rumney, yeoman, devised to his son John three acres of customary lands, commonly called Tair Erw'r Wall in the parish of Rumney, which descended to him as customary heir on the death of his brother Gibbon.

1776. Thomas David of Lanedarn, yeoman, devised certain customary lands in the parish of Peterston (Monm.) in the manor of Rompney.

1899. Colonel Lockwood is now the lord.

MANOR OF MANNOCKS HOLD.

This was a sub-manor within the royal manor of Rompney and parish of Rumney. Part of it anciently belonged to certain chapels and chantries. In 1610 it was described as forty acres of land and seven "coveries," called Mallocks Hold in the parish of Rompney. Edward Kemeys was a tenant. William Morgan was the Steward. See Exch. Dep. 9 Jac. 1, 1610, for particulars of the customs of the manor of Mannocks Hould. The youngest son inherited. The manor comprised "inground," and "wharf" or warth, the latter being the lands by the Severn shore.

MANOR OF WENTLOOG alias KEYNSHAM

SOMETIMES CALLED LANRUMNEY.

In a letter received from the lord of this manor by the writer, it is spoken of as "the manor of Llanrhydney, or, properly called, Wentloog, alias Keynsham."

It was situate in the several parishes of Rumney, Saint Mellon's and Llanedern, Monmouthshire.

In 1507 it belonged to the Abbey of Keynsham, and David Kemeys was bailiff thereof. At the dissolution his family acquired it.

A junior branch of Morgan of Tredegar held this manor in the 17th century, as may be seen by the tombs of Morgans of "Landrumney" in the north transept of Saint Mellon's church, Monmouthshire.

1899. George Crofts Williams, Esq., is now the lord.

The Lords of Cardiff.

ROBERT FITZ HAMON—

1093—1107.

UBDUEDED Glamorgan in the reign of William Rufus. He received the "Honour" of Gloucester to enable him to undertake the conquest.

Wounded at the Battle of Tinchbrai, 1106.

d. March 1107, and was buried at Tewkesbury.

m. Sybel, dau. of Roger de Montgomery, Earl of Arundel.

Left four daughters, Cicely, Abbess of Shaftesbury; Hawise, Abbess of Wilton; Amice, said to have married the Earl of Bretagne; and Mabel, who became sole heir of the Honour of Gloucester and Lordship of Glamorgan.

From the death of Fitz-Hamon the lordship was in the hands of the King (Henry I.) until about 1118, but no custodian is known.

WILLIAM, EARL OF GLOUCESTER (1147).

ROBERT CONSUL—1118 (or earlier)—1147.

Robert, Consul, or Earl, of Gloucester was a natural son of King Henry I.

m. Mabel, dau. of Fitz-Hamon.

He is known to have borne the title of Earl of Gloucester in 1119.

d. October 1147, at Bristol.

Mabel, his Countess, d. 1157.

After the death of the Earl, Mr. Clark says, she "seems to have acted with authority in Glamorgan."

Their children were—(1) William; (2) Roger, Bishop of Worcester; (3) Hamo; (4) Probably Richard, said to have been Bishop of Bayeux; (5) Maud, m. Ralph Gernons, Earl of Chester.

WILLIAM, EARL OF GLOUCESTER—1147—1183.

m. Hawise, dau. of Robert Bossu, Earl of Leicester.

d. 23 November 1183.

His Countess died 24 April 1197.

Their children were—(1) Robert, born and died at Cardiff, buried at Keynsham; (2) Mabel; (3) Amice; (4) Isabel.

Robert having died young, the three sisters became co-heirs.

The lordship fell into the custody of the Crown, and Richard I., in 1189, seems to have determined the wardship in favour of Isabel, who m. John, Earl of Mortaine, afterwards King.

During the wardship Maurice de Berkeley and Hamo de Valoynes were custodians.

Mr. Clark, in the Land of Morgan, says that Dugdale, following Walsingham, states that Earl William had adopted John as his heir.

The other daughters of Earl William were married—Mabel, to Almaric de Montfort, Earl of Evreux, and left issue a son Almaric, who died 1213, and who is sometimes described as Earl of Gloucester, but never as Lord of Glamorgan; and Amice, to Richard de Clare. From this marriage the de Clare lords were descended.

JOHN, EARL OF MORTAINE (afterwards King)—1189—1214.
 m., in 1189 (Annals of Tewkesbury), Isabel, dau. of William, Earl of Gloucester, and obtained the Lordship of Glamorgan.
 He divorced her in 1200 (Annals of Tewkesbury), but seems to have acted as Lord wrongfully till 1214, when, Isabel having married Geoffrey de Mandeville, Earl of Essex, John gave up the lordship to him. (Writ, Cartae I., p. 67.) During the usurpation of John, William de Braose and Falkes de Breauté were successively custodians.

GEOFFREY DE MANDEVILLE, EARL OF ESSEX AND GLOUCESTER, and his COUNTESS, ISABEL—

1214—1217.

Geoffrey died childless before June 1216, and the Countess before October 1217.

Isabel seems to have acted as Lady of Glamorgan.

A charter was granted by her "consensu et assensu domini mei Galfridi de Maundevilla," and others during her widowhood.

After the death of Geoffrey she married Hubert de Burgh; and 13 August 1217 her lands were committed to him, but he does not appear to have acted as Lord. This is probably due to the fact that the Countess died so shortly after.

GILBERT DE CLARE (1)—1217—1230.

Son of Amice, dau. of William, Earl of Gloucester.

Succeeded 1217, on the death of the Countess Isabel (Annals of Margam), though his mother, Amice, was living. She survived him, not dying till 1236, and granted a charter by which (inter alia) she confirmed certain grants of her "son and heir," the Earl.

He m. Isabel, dau. of the Earl Mareschal.

He died at Penros, in Brittany, 25 October 1230.

His Countess, Isabel, m. 30 March 1231, Richard, Earl of Cornwall, and died 17 January 1239—1240.

The children of Gilbert de Clare and Isabel his Countess were—(1) Richard; (2) William; (3) Gilbert; (4) Amice; (5) Agnes; (6) Isabel.

RICHARD DE CLARE—1230—1262.

Was an infant at his father's death, and became a ward of King Henry III.

His estates were in the hands of various custodians during his infancy: Hubert de Burgh, Henry de Turberville, Peter de Rivaux, Ranulph and Toran de Herle, Richard Syward, and Gilbert, Earl Mareschal.

Richard attained 21 on the 4th August 1243, and had possession of his lands on the 29th of that month.

He is said to have m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Hubert de Burgh. She d. 1237.

Earl Richard m. 2nd (1237—9), Maud de Lacy, dau. of the Earl of Lincoln.

He died July 1262; buried at Tewkesbury.

His Countess survived till about 1289.

GILBERT DE CLARE (2) "The Red"—1262—1295.

Son of Richard, born 2 September 1243. (Annals of Tewkesbury).

Being a minor, the wardship was in the King's hands. Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford, and Walter de Sully were successively custodians.

The Earl, not yet of age, appears to have had possession of his lands in 1263.

He m. 1st, Alice de la Marche, or d'Angoulême, who was divorced (apparently in 1283); 2nd, in 1290, Joan, dau. of King Edward I. By his first wife he had a daughter, Isabel, who m. Maurice, Lord Berkeley.

He died 7 December 1295, and was buried at Tewkesbury.

His widow, the Countess Joan, survived and married Ralph de Monthermer in 1296. She died March 1307.

By Joan, Earl Gilbert had—(1) Gilbert; (2) Eleanor; (3) Elizabeth; (4) Margaret.

The Earl built Caerphilly and Morlais Castles and Castell Coch.

RALPH DE MONTHERMER and JOAN, his COUNTESS—

1297-8—1307.

Ralph de Monthermer m. the Princess Joan, widow of Gilbert de Clare (2), and would, according to the course usually followed in such cases, have become in her right Lord of Glamorgan; inasmuch as she and her first husband, Earl Gilbert de Clare, had been jointly enfeoffed, with remainder to his heirs.

However, the King (Edward I.) at first seized his daughter's lands on account of her marriage with Monthermer without his consent. He was shortly reconciled, and Monthermer was summoned to Parliament as Earl of Gloucester and Hertford, and became Lord of Glamorgan, no doubt in right of his wife; though some authorities treat him as only administering the estates on behalf of his stepson, the young Earl Gilbert.

That he was Lord in right of his wife is confirmed by the fact that his interest in the estates ceased in 1307, on her death. He afterwards sat in Parliament as Lord Monthermer.

GILBERT DE CLARE (3)—1307—1314.

Born May 1291, and therefore only 4 years old at his father's death. Succeeded his mother on her death in 1307, and is stated in Sandford's Kings of England to have been then of age and to have had possession of his estates. The statement as to his age is undoubtedly erroneous, though it appears that he in fact had possession of his estates in November 1307.

Earl Gilbert m. Maud, dau. of John, son of Richard de Burgh, Earl of Ulster; and had one son, John, who died in infancy, in his father's lifetime.

The Earl was killed at Bannockburn, 1314 (buried at Tewkesbury), and with him ended the male line of the de Clares, who had held the Lordship of Glamorgan for nearly 100 years.

After his death Bartholomew de Badlesmere, Roger Turberville, and John Giffard de Brimmesfeld were custodians.

The estates devolved upon his three sisters:—

Eleanor, or Alianora, m. in 1312 Hugh le Despenser, and secondly William, Lord Zouche of Mortimer.

Margaret m. Piers Gaveston, and secondly Hugh D'Audley the younger.

Seals of the Lords of Cardiff. (2.)

WILLIAM DE LA ZOUCHE (1331).

ELEANOR DE LA ZOUCHE (1331).

Elizabeth m. John, son and heir of John de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, and secondly Theobald Verdon, and thirdly Roger D'Amory.

A partition took place in or before 1317, and the Lordship of Glamorgan fell to Eleanor. The writ to the Escheator to give possession to Hugh le Despenser is dated 1317.

HUGH LE DESPENSER (1) and ELEANOR, his wife—

Hugh le Despenser, in right of his wife, Eleanor, Lord of Glamorgan, was executed at Hereford November 1326.

He left two sons, Hugh and Edward.

WILLIAM LA ZOUCHE and ELEANOR, his wife—

1329?—1338?

William la Zouche m. Eleanor, after the death of Hugh le Despenser, and became Lord of Glamorgan in her right.

In the interval between the execution of Hugh le Despenser and the accession of William la Zouche, Roger D'Amory, la Zouche himself, and others, were custodians.

William la Zouche is named as Lord in a Charter of 1329. (Cartae IV., p. 132.)

HUGH LE DESPENSER (2)—1338?—1349.

EDWARD LE DESPENSER—1349—1375.

Son of Edward, brother of Hugh (2), succeeded his uncle.

According to the I.P.M. of Hugh, Edward was 12 years old at his uncle's death, and therefore a ward for a time. The names of John Golafre, Simon Basset, Roger de Berkeley, Bartholomew de Burghersh and Guy de Brian are mentioned as custodians.

m. Elizabeth Burghersh, and died 11 November 1375 at Cardiff, leaving a son, Thomas. He was buried at Tewkesbury.

THOMAS LE DESPENSER—1375—1400.

Born 22 September 1373, and therefore long a ward; during part of which period Richard, Duke of York, seems to have had the lordship.

m. Constance, dau. of Edmund of Langley, Duke of York, and had two children, Richard and Isabel.

He was beheaded at Bristol, January 1400, for a conspiracy against Henry IV.

RICHARD LE DESPENSER.

Mentioned by Mr. Clark (Cartae IV., 653) as Lord "de jure non de facto;" died while under age, and was succeeded by his sister Isabel, then a minor.

RICHARD BEAUCHAMP, EARL OF WORCESTER, and ISABEL, his wife—1411?—1422.

Isabel la Despenser, born St. Ann's day 1400 (Dugdale); married, 1411, Richard Beauchamp, 4th Earl of Warwick (Dugdale).

The Earl died (from a wound received in France) in March 1422.

ISABEL, COUNTESS OF WORCESTER—1422—1423.

Isabel during her widowhood was Lady of Glamorgan, and granted charters, describing herself as "Domina la Despenser Glamorgancie et Morgancie."

RICHARD BEAUCHAMP, EARL OF WARWICK, and ISABEL, his wife—1423—1439.

After the death of her first husband, the Earl of Worcester, Isabel, on the 26th November 1423, married Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, who became in her right Lord of Glamorgan.

A document in Dugdale's Monasticon refers to him as "filius patris Ricardi quarti Comititis Wigorniae," and the marriage as taking place "habitâ dispensatione Papali."

d. at Rouen 30 April 1439. Isabel, his widow, d. December 1439. They had two children—(1) Henry, Earl (afterwards Duke) of Warwick; (2) Ann, m. Richard Nevill, Earl of Warwick.

Seals of the Lords of Cardiff. (3.)

EDWARD LE DESPENSER (1358).

THOMAS LE DESPENSER (1397).

HENRY BEAUCHAMP, DUKE OF WARWICK—1439—1445.

He was aged 15 at his mother's death, and therefore a ward for a time. Mr. Clark gives Richard, Duke of Gloucester, as custodian.

d. 1445, leaving a daughter, Ann, who d. an infant, 1449.

There was an Inquisition on her death, which describes her as "Anna filia et heres Henrici Ducis Warr' defuncti."

RICHARD NEVILL, EARL OF SALISBURY AND WARWICK, and ANN, his wife—1449—1471.

Ann, dau. of Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, and Isabel, his wife, became heir of the Lordship of Glamorgan on the death of her niece, the infant daughter of the Duke of Warwick.

She m. Richard Nevill, Earl of Salisbury and Warwick (the "King-maker"), who became Lord in her right.

He was killed at the Battle of Barnet, 14 April 1471.

He left two daughters—Isabel, m. George, Duke of Clarence, and Ann, m. Richard, Duke of Gloucester, brothers of King Edward IV., and the latter afterwards King Richard III.

The widow of the Earl of Warwick also survived him.

GEORGE, DUKE OF CLARENCE, and ISABEL, his wife—

1471—1477.

On the death of the Earl of Warwick the right to the Lordship of Glamorgan remained in Ann, his widow; but a Statute, 14 Edw. IV., enacted that "George Duke of Clarence and Isabel his wife, Richard Duke of Gloucester and Anne his wife, the daughters and heirs of Richard Earl of Warwick, and daughters and heirs apparent of Anne Countess of Warwick, late wife to the said Earl, shall have as in right of their said wives all commons, lordships, castles, towns, manors, lands, tenements, liberties, franchises, possessions and enheriments which were or be belonging to the said Anne Countess of Warwick . . . . . To hold to the said Dukes, their wives and the heirs of their said wives . . . . . as if the said Anne Countess of Warwick were naturally dead . . . . . and that the said Dukes and their said wives may make partition of the said premises and every part thereof." (Rolls of Parliament VI., 100A.)

17 Edw. IV. A petition of Richard, Duke of Gloucester, for establishing a College, recites the last Act, and that a partition had been made. (Rolls of Parliament VI., 172A.)

It would appear that before the Act of 14 Edw. IV. George, Duke of Clarence, became in fact Lord of Glamorgan; and in a document of 11 October 1471, addressed to Sheriffs, &c., (Cartae IV., p. 384), he styles himself "Georgius dux Clarencie et dominus Glamorgancie et Morgancie."

The Duke of Clarence was put to death 11 March 1477, his wife having died shortly before.

He left two children, Edward, created Earl of Warwick by Edward IV. and beheaded 21st November 1499, and Margaret, afterwards Countess of Salisbury, beheaded 27 May 1541.

The Lordship of Glamorgan passed to Richard, Duke of Gloucester.

RICHARD, DUKE OF GLOUCESTER (Richard III.), and ANN, his wife—1477—1485.

Richard held the lordship after the death of the Duke of Clarence, in right of his wife, who joined with him in granting charters.

Ann d. 16 March 1484, having had one son, who died about the same time.

King Richard was killed at Bosworth 22 August 1485.

KING HENRY VII.—1485—1509—(except during the time of Jasper Tudor, Duke of Bedford).

King Henry is above treated as Lord from 1485. It does not appear that Ann, Countess of Warwick, widow of the Kingmaker, obtained actual possession; though for a short time she appears, from what follows, to have been Lady of Glamorgan de jure.

RICHARD BEAUCHAMP, EARL OF WARWICK (1421).

RICHARD NEVILLE, EARL OF WARWICK (1451).

2 March 1 Hen. VII. (1486) the King granted (inter alia) "the castles, lordships and manors of Glamorgan and Morgannok" to Jasper, Duke of Bedford. (Patent Rolls, 1 Hen. VII.) The title was perhaps regarded as incomplete; for in the Parliament of 3 Hen. VII. Ann, Countess of Warwick, petitioned for the repeal of the Act of Edw. IV., in favour of the Dukes of Clarence and Gloucester, which was done accordingly. (Parliament Rolls VI., No. 391*b*.)

The effect of this would be to vest the right to the lordship in the Countess.

Very shortly after, by deed dated 13 December 3 Hen. VII. (1487), Ann, Countess of Warwick, granted to the King (inter alia), the Lordship of "Glamorgan Morganok," in tail male. (Close Rolls, 3 Hen. VII., No. 11.)

On 21 March 3 Hen. VII. (1488), the King made another grant of the lordship to Jasper, Duke of Bedford.

JASPER TUDOR, DUKE OF BEDFORD—1486—1495.

Under the grants before mentioned, this Duke was Lord from 1486 until his death, 21 December 1495.

He died without issue, and the lordship reverted to the King.

A mandate of King Henry VII. to the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex, dated 15 November 14 Hen. VII. (1498), among the Close Rolls, recites that by Act of Parliament of 11 Hen. VII. (October 1495) it was enacted that the possessions which Jasper, Duke of Bedford, had by grant of Henry VII. should go, after the death of the Duke, to Henry, Duke of York, the King's second son, afterwards Henry VIII.

Under the above circumstances it might perhaps be strictly correct to treat Prince Henry as Lord from 1495.

But this has not been done, because the Prince was under age and the King continued to act as Lord until his death.

KING HENRY VIII.—1509—1547.

Succeeded on the death of Henry VII.

He styled himself, in grants relating to Glamorgan, "Rex Anglie et Francie et Dominus Hibernie ac Dominus Glamorgancie et Morgancie."

d. 28 January 1547.

KING EDWARD VI.—1547—1550.

Succeeded to the lordship on the death of King Henry VIII., and granted Cardiff Castle and most of his manors &c. in Glamorgan to Sir William Herbert. (See below.)

SIR WILLIAM HERBERT, afterwards 1st Earl of Pembroke, K.G.—1550—1570.

7 May 4 Edw. VI. (1550) the King granted the Lordship of Cardiff to Sir William Herbert, to whom, by this and a previous grant of 10 July 1547, nearly all his manors in Glamorgan (though not the Lordship of Glamorgan itself), were granted by this King.

Sir William was created Baron Herbert of Cardiff 10 October 1551, and Earl of Pembroke on the following day.

The Earl of Pembroke m. 1st, Ann, dau. of Thomas, Lord Parr of Kendal (sister of Queen Catherine Parr), and had issue Henry, 2nd Earl.

d. March 1570.

HENRY, 2nd EARL OF PEMBROKE, K.G.—1570—1601.

m. 1st, Catherine, dau. of George Talbot, Earl of Shrewsbury; 2nd, Mary, dau. of Sir Henry Sidney.

Issue—(1) William, 3rd Earl; (2) Philip, 4th Earl.

d. 19 January 1601.

Seals of the Lords of Cardiff. (5.)

RICHARD, DUKE OF GLOUCESTER (1477).

HENRY VII. AS LORD OF MORGAN AND GLAMORGAN (1503).

WILLIAM, 3rd EARL OF PEMBROKE, K.G.—1601—1630.

m. Mary, dau. of Gilbert, Earl of Shrewsbury.

Issue—Henry, who died in infancy.

d. 10 April 1630, and was succeeded by his brother Philip.

CHAPTER III.

Manorial Records.

MANORIAL Records are those which, appertaining to the government of a manor or lordship, are or have been in the legal custody of the Lord or his Steward. They are to be sought among the private muniments of the landed gentry, or in the offices of their stewards or estate agents; but the gradual effacement of feudal incidents in land tenure has resulted in the dispersion and destruction of a vast number of these precious archives, invaluable as they are to the student of local history.

The documents which compose the present Chapter are a miscellaneous collection which I have with much difficulty gathered from various sources. Arranging them in chronological order, I begin with a Minister's Account of the Lordship of Leckwith, dated 1456. It will be seen that this differs from the Ministers' Accounts transcribed in the preceding Volume, solely in that the Accounts in

ENTRANCE TO CASTLE, FROM HIGH STREET AND DUKE STREET, 1877.

Vol. I. are made to the Crown, while this one is made to the Lord. Instead of being sent to London, therefore, and of being ultimately included among the national archives at the Record Office, this Account must have been originally filed at Cardiff Castle, with the other records in the Lord's Chancery of Glamorgan. I am indebted, for permission to copy it, to Mr. R. W. Llewellyn, of Baglan Cottage; who was also so kind as to lend me four other documents used in this Chapter. The Leckwith Account is made by Patrick Crispy, no doubt identical with the Patrick Cryspe mentioned in the great Lordship Account of 1492 as a former occupier of land near the "Dawbyngepytts" (Vol. I., p. 183). I have here, and henceforward, given "Reeve" as the translation of the Latin Prepositus, rendered "Prevost" in the preceding Volume. I have retained the literal sense of Messor, translating it "Reaper," though that official was probably what would now be termed a farm bailiff.

The next document is a Manorial Survey—one of a class of records which were put forward at certain intervals by the jury of tenants assembled in the Court Baron of the Lord of the Manor, mainly for the purpose of renewing and perpetuating an authoritative declaration of the customs and boundaries of the lordship. This one is dated 7 September 1666, and was given at Cardiff Guildhall.

Article 1 defines the bounds of the Liberties of Cardiff, as laid down in the Charter of 1340, and describes the constitution and powers of the Town Court. It states that the Lord is Constable of the Castle and has the nomination of a Deputy Constable. This is important, because, not very long after the date of this Survey, the Lord of Cardiff Castle appointed a Constable, who in turn appointed a Deputy to himself. The Article further says that the Lord has the nomination of the Town Clerk, the swearing and appointing of the Bailiffs and Serjeants, and the swearing of the Aldermen. Inferior "ministerials" of the Corporation are sworn and appointed by the Bailiffs. Every Burgess owes suit of court to the Lord's Court Leet, or Curia Regis, holden four times a year in the town (the old Borough Quarter Sessions).

To the second Article the Jurors return a presentment in which they were directed to declare what were the privileges and liberties of (a) the Corporate Town of Cardiff, and (b) of the Lord of the Manor and Borough of Cardiff. They reply that they know nothing of the latter, but are well acquainted with the former, which they proceed to specify.

The information which this document affords relative to the property of individual burgesses within the town renders it an interesting sequel to the very similar record of 1542, among the Ministers' Accounts, ante. It is the only document I have met with which gives adequate particulars of the Manor of Spittal, for which we have here a separate Survey.

The Jurors conclude Article 6 with a pathetic appeal to Lord Pembroke to protect them against the usurpations of Squire Lewis of the Van, who had enclosed sixty acres of the Burgesses' common land on the Great Heath.

To the 13th Article they say that the inhabitants of Cardiff still usually grind their corn in the Lord's mill, but they cannot tell whether this was obligatory or no. They imply that it was not; and indeed all such feudal incidents had been abolished by Statute at the beginning of Charles the Second's reign.

The Survey shows that the Earl of Pembroke took escheats of felons' goods, and had the royalty of fishing in the Taff from Blackweir to the river's mouth.

This document was, at the middle of the 19th century, in the custody of Mr. Thomas Dalton, Solicitor, of Cardiff, Clerk of the Peace for the County of Glamorgan. It was accidentally destroyed about the year 1860; but a copy of it (printed rather inaccurately) appeared in the Cardiff and Merthyr Guardian, February 1862. The present version was copied from that last mentioned, and was afterwards corrected by an old copy kindly lent to the Corporation by Oliver H. Jones, Esq., of Fonmon Castle.

The Miscyn Rent Roll of 1666, and that of Clun and Pentyrch for circa 1670, are interesting from their enumeration of heriots, and of rents paid in kind—mostly capons, sometimes distinguished as "fatt capons."

The next record is a Survey of the Manor of Roath Keynsham, dated 25 May 1702, derived from the same source as the Cardiff Survey of 1666. John Morgan of Tredegar, esquire, is presented as the Lord. The boundaries are laid down with minuteness, though the Welsh place-names are mutilated until, in some cases, they are almost unrecognisable. Among the many curious items in this Survey is the entry concerning the tenement of Mrs. Alice William, adjoining Gwaun Treoda (Whitchurch Common), the annual chief-rent payable for which was "a red rose on every Midsummer Eve."

Minister's Account of the Lordship of Leckwith. 1456.

(One long skin of parchment, written on one side; in good condition.)

Leckwith.

Account of Patrick Crispy, exercising the office of Reeve there, from Michaelmas in the 33rd year of the reign of King Henry VI. until the same feast in the 34th year of the aforesaid King, namely, for one entire year.

Arrears. He answers for 11*l.* 3*s.* 2¼*d.* arrears of the last Account there of the year last past, as appears at foot of the said Account.

Rents of Assize. And for 70*s.* 7½*d.* received of rent of freeholders there by the year; whereof at the term of Christmas 23*d.*, at the term of "hokeday" 23*d.*, at the term of the Nativity of Saint John Baptist 23*d.*, and at Michaelmas 64*s.* 10½*d.*, as appears by a certain new Rental. And for 63*s.* of the rent and works of 13 customars and a half, by the year; whereof at the term of Christmas 11*s.* 3*d.*, at the term of "hokeday" 14*s.* ½*d.*, at the term of the Nativity of Saint John Baptist 16*s.* 10½*d.*, and at Michaelmas 20*s.* 10*d.*, as appears by the said Rental, namely, for each customar 4*s.* 8*d.* And for 4*s.* 8*d.* received of the rent and works of John Watts for one acre of bondsman's land formerly of William Davy, so unto him demised during the lord's estate, as appears by roll of Court. And for 2*d.* received of the rent of William Hogges for one cot so unto him demised by the year. And for 11*d.* received of the rent of John Danyell for one acre of land and half an acre of meadow, formerly of John Hogges, so unto him demised by the year. And for 8*d.* received of the rent late of William Smythe, for half an acre of meadow of bondsman's land by Wynnyweye. And for 18*d.* received of John ap Robyn for half an acre of meadow by Liquyth bridge, so lately demised unto William Carriour and afterwards to Henry Hogges, and now demised to the aforesaid John as above.

Issues of lands and tenements in the hands of the Lord. But for issues of the tenure formerly of William Sturmy he answers nothing here, because it is demised with other bond tenures. But he answers for 20s. 4d. received of the farm of all the demesne lands and bondsmen's lands being in the Lord's hands, on the west side of the river Elye, so demised unto John Mascolde, Joan his wife and Maurice their son, for the term of their life and of the longest liver of them, by record of the Exchequer of the 21st year preceding. And the aforesaid farmers will build on the said demesne or bondsmen's lands one house three couples at their own costs and charges, besides that the Lord shall find them big timber for the building of the said house when it shall be necessary, by the view and delivery of the Constable of the Lord of Kardyff for the time being; and so the said house well and fittingly built, repaired and maintained will demise; and after the decease of each of them one heriot shall fall to the Lord, as is contained in the said record, at the term of Saint Michael by the year. And for 16s. 8d. received from a certain pasture of the demesne land and bondsmen's lands by Bolecrofte, lately demised unto Meureke ap Grono ap Ivor, so now demised unto Thomas ap Grono ap Ivor, Margaret his wife and Grono ap Thomas their son, for the term of their life, by record of the Exchequer of the 23rd year preceding, at the usual terms. And for 2s. 4d. received of 6 acres of land and meadow of the half tenure, formerly of Walter Porter, late in part demised unto Ivor Webbe, afterwards demised unto Lewis Carpenter and now demised unto John Mascolde for the term of [blank] years, by record of the Exchequer. And for 4s. 8d. received of the farm of one messuage and 12 acres of the land and meadow of one bondsman's land late of Walter Ithell, so demised unto John Willy for the term of his life, by record of the Exchequer. And for 4s. 8d. received from one croft and 12 acres of land and meadow late of John Jones, and which lately were within the farm of the abovesaid Henry Hogges and afterwards demised unto David ap Ieuan Vaughan, and now demised unto Gruffith ap Hopkyn this year at the usual terms. And for 1d. received from one small garden lying by the garden of Walter Bille, so demised unto John Revell this year. And for 4s. 8d. received of the farm of one messuage and 12 acres of bondsmen's land and of one acre of meadow called Harpe Acre, late within the farm of John Mascolde, late demised unto John Mascolde for the term of his life by roll of Court of the 19th year preceding; now demised unto Thomas Clerke for the term of his life by roll of Court of the 18th year preceding, for that the said John Mascolde gave up the said messuage with the lands aforesaid.

Sum 53s. 5d.

Farms. And for 6*l* received of the farm of 147 acres 3 roods of pasture of the demesne lands lying in Lyquith More, 7 acres of pasture called Redcrofte, 2 acres of pasture lying in Oldefeld, 3 acres of pasture in Torcoteshokes and Danyell Hok, of one parcel of pasture of land and meadow called Roggeshokes, with one parcel of land lying by Roggereshokes, which John Mascold formerly held and afterwards David ap Jacke Rudyngge, and now demised unto Thomas Gatheley to farm, and afterwards demised unto David Mathewe, now occupied by my lady the Countess this year.

Sum 6*l* by farm.

Farm of the Fisheries. And for 9*s.* received of the farm of the fishery of Middelwere and the fishery of the water of Middelwere aforesaid as far as the Bishop's land, so demised unto Henry Mower this year.

Sum 9*s.* by farm.

Issues of the Manor. For 5 acres and a half of bondsmen's meadow, formerly of Roger Haywarde, he answers nothing here, because it is demised with other bond lands. But he answers for 3*s.* 4*d.*, received of 2 acres of meadow of the part of 32 acres three roods of meadow in the meadow of Russham, so sold to divers tenants there this year, an acre for 20*d.*; and not for more, because 29 acres 3 roods of the said meadow are mown to the use of the lord, and one acre of the said meadow is delivered to the appraisor for his fee by ancient custom. For the hay there sold he is nothing charged here, because there was no sale within the time of the Account. For receipts from honey and wild wax or swarms of bees he is nothing charged here, because none was found within the time of the Account, within that lordship this year. For receipts from the sale of underwood there nothing this year, because no sale happened within the time of the account. But he answers for 5*s.* 8*d.* received from the second crop of the meadow of Russham in the year preceding, remaining unsold, so demised this year. For the second crop of the same meadow of Russham of this year he is nothing charged here, because it remains in the hands of the lord as yet unsold; therefore the aforesaid Accountant will answer at the next account [margin: "to be remembered in the next."] Nor for reeds there sold this year nothing.

Sum 9s.

Sale of the Herbage of meadows. For the herbage of half an acre of meadow formerly of Robert Wilcoke he is nothing charged here, because (it is) to rent in the new Rental. Nor for one acre of meadow in Westewhitnoke he is nothing charged here, because it is rented to John Mascolde as appears in the new Rental. Nor for one acre in Cowmede formerly of William Davy he answers nothing here, because it was rented to William Vaure as appears in the said new Rental, and now demised unto William Cowp<sup>r</sup>e with his whole tenure. But he answers for 25s. 7d. received of the herbage of 18 acres 1 rood of meadow lying in divers places in the salt marsh, sold unto the divers persons underwritten at divers prices this year; whereof from John Mascolde the elder for 2 and a half acres 16d.; of Maurice Mascolde for 4 acres 4s. 6d.; of John Revell for 4 acres 5s. 8d.; of John Robyn for one acre and 3 roods 3s. 1d.; of Richard Robyn for one acre and a half 2s. 6d.; of John Willy for half an acre 10d.; of Thomas Clerke for half an acre 12d.; of the same Thomas Clerke for 2 acres and a half 4s. 2d.; of William Smythe for one acre and a half 2s. 6d.; and not for more, because 2 acres are mown to the use of the lord; 3 acres lie in the hands of the lord and no profit thence arose by the oath of the Accountant, and were in part destroyed by a flood of the sea happening this year; and one acre called the Harpe Acre is granted to Thomas Clerke with his farm above. But he answers for 5s. received of 4 acres 1 rood in Corfham within the said salt marsh, sold unto Maurice Mascolde this year, not contained in the preceding Account but newly discovered by examination made upon the account. And for 9s. received of the farm of the meadow called Smalemede, sold to David Ryes this year. And for 2s. received of one parcel of reeds in the salt marsh by the bridge, sold to Maurice Mascolde this year.

Sum 41s. 7d.

Sale of the herbage of pasture. For 2 acres of demesne pasture he answers nothing here, because sold above with the demesne land. Nor for 3 acres of demesne pasture in Torcoteshek he is nothing charged here, because (they are) to farm in the hands of my lady the Countess with other demesne pastures as in the title of Issues of the Manor. Nor for 4 acres of demesne pasture before Rogershek nothing, because rented above unto John Mascold as appears in the new Rental. Nor for 2 acres and a half of pasture in Russhamwey, formerly of John Morys. Nor for 2 acres and a half of pasture there, formerly of the said John, he answers nothing here; because (they are) to rent in the hands of John Mascolde, as appears in the said new Rental. Nor for one cot formerly of Walter Ithell, which was wont to render 6*d.*, he is nothing charged here, because (it is) to farm in the hands of John Mascold. Nor for one cot formerly of John Watts, which was wont to render by the year 2*d.*, nothing, for the cause aforesaid. Nor for one cot formerly of Robert Rogger, which was wont to render by the year 2*d.*, nothing, for the cause aforesaid.

Sum none.

Perquisites of Court. And for 23*s.* received of the perquisites of 2 Courts there holden this year, as appears by the Roll of the same.

Sum 23*s.*

Sum of the whole Rent with Arrears 31*l* 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ d.

Tithe paid. Whereof he counts paid to the Rector of the church there, for tithe of underwood above sold this year, nothing, because no sale happened for the time of the Account.

Sum none.

Allowance and loss of Rent. But he accounts in allowance of rent and works of the Reeve and Reaper there, by reason of their offices, by the year, as was allowed in preceding Accounts, 4*s.* 8*d.* only; to wit, for the Reaper, to each of them 4*s.* 8*d.* And in allowance of the rent of one acre of land of the tenure formerly of William Davy, which Henry Hogges held; for that the said acre is demised unto Gruffith ap Owen with his whole tenure, as appears in the title of Rents of Assise, by the year 4*d.* And in loss of the rent of 2 acres and a half of meadow of the tenure of the aforesaid William, now demised unto John Watt with his whole tenure, as above in the title of farms, by the year 3s. And in loss of the rent of one parcel of pasture formerly of Llewelyn Hope, for that it is doubly charged in the Rental, by the year 8d. And in loss of the rent of one acre of meadow formerly of William Davy, late rented to John Watt as appears by Roll of Court; now demised unto Gruffith ap Owen with his whole tenure, at the old rent, by the year 16d. And in allowance of the rent and works of half a bond tenure formerly of Walter Porter, coming into the hands of the lord after the death of the said Walter; whereof he answers above in the title of Issues of bondsmen's lands, by the year 2s. 4d. And in loss of the rent of demesne lands and tenements lying in the hands of the lord for lack of tenants—where the said lands and tenements lie is not known, nor is it known where the said rent should be distrained for, except that allowances above in that Account of Rent of Assise as well of freemen as of bondmen and customars, above in divers titles particularly charged (as appears by Inquisition of a certain Extent thereof by 12 jurors before the demesne commissioners of my lady Isabel, late Countess of Warwick) were made upon the Account of the 32nd year preceding, examined and in the Treasury of the Remembrancer of the Castle of Kardyff remaining, beyond that which is above allowed 22s. 4½d. And in allowance of the farm of John Mascolde for one bond tenure and 12 acres of bondsmen's land now in the hands of Thomas Clerke, as above in title of issues of the demesne lands and bondsmen's lands, 2s. 8d.; for that the said tenure and land were within his farm above, and now unto the aforesaid Thomas Clerke demised for the term of his life, by Roll of Court of the 18th year preceding; and so the aforesaid 2s. 8d. are to be yearly allowed to the aforesaid John Mascolde, &c.

Sum 37s. 4½d.

Expences of the Steward. And he accounts in expences of the Steward here being, for the 2 Courts abovesaid there this year to be holden, as appears by the Roll thereof; namely, for each Court 12d.—2s. And in a reward made to the Clerk writing the rolls and extracts of the Court, together with parchment bought for the same, namely, for each Court 6*d.*—12*d.*

Sum 3*s.*

Custody of the Meadows, with allowances. And in mowing of 12 acres and a half of the meadow of Russham, to the use of the Lord, by the customary tenants, with strewing (and) turning of the grass of the said meadow and making hay of it; for each acre 7*d.*—7*s.* 3½*d.* And in mowing of 17 acres 1 rood of the meadow aforesaid, and 2 acres of meadow in the salt marsh, by piecework, to the use of the said Lord, with other works in the making of the hay of the same, taking for each acre 14*d.*—20*s.* 1½*d.* And paid unto Maurice Mascolde, Thomas Clerke and others, with their wains and oxen carrying 30 waggon-loads of hay from the meadow aforesaid as far as the Castle; namely, for each carriage 6*d.*—15*s.* And paid unto John Robyns and other labourers, for 10 days, working between them and helping to house the said hay within the Castle; to each of them 4*d.* a day—3*s.* 4*d.* And allowed unto the said Accountant of arrears, as of moneys by him in the 3rd year preceding paid for hay provided for the horses of John Nanfan, Constable of the Castle of Kardyff; for that the grass of the Lord's meadow had in that year been destroyed by a flood, as is witnessed upon the account, 20*s.*

Sum 65*s.* 9*d.*; whereof of arrears 20*s.*

Wages and Stipends. And in the wages of the said Patrick Cryspy exercising the office of Reeve there, now accounting, and exercising the office of Reeve of the Manor of Rooth, because of his office by the year, taking 3*d.* a day, unto him granted; to be taken year by year by his own hands, of the issues and profits of his office, while the said Patrick should remain in the said office, at the terms of Easter and Michaelmas by the year equally, by Letters Patent of my Lady Isabel, late Countess of Warwick, thereof unto the said Patrick directed and upon the Account of the 31st year preceding alleged and enrolled, 4*l.* 11*s.* For the stipend of the keeper of the beasts this year feeding in divers parcels of demesne pasture, as well in the winter time as in the summer, nothing is allowed here, because the said pasture and demesne land are set to farm above.

Sum 4*l.* 11*s.*

Payment of Moneys. And in moneys paid unto John Throk-morton, Constable of the Castle of Kardyff and the Receiver there, of the charge of Henry Mower, farmer of the fishery of Middelwere now accounting; as well of his arrears as of his new farm of this year, 16s. 7d., by bill thereof; of arrears 7s. 7d., and of the new farm 9s.

Enrolled. And unto the said Receiver, of the charge of the aforesaid Patrick Crispy, exercising the office of Reeve there, now accounting, of part of his arrears of the year preceding, 10s. by Indenture.

Sum 26s. 7d.

Sum of allowances and payments 11l 3s. 8½d.

And he owes 19l 17s. ¼d.

Out of which allowed unto the said Accountant 14d.; whereof 6d. paid for repair of the "pinfold" at Lyquith and 8d. paid for a hedge around the meadow in the salt marsh this year, by oath of the said Accountant and by witness of the appraisor upon this Account.

And he owes 19l 15s. 10½d.

Whereof upon:—

David Mathewe, late farmer of Lyquith More, 6l.

My Lady the Countess of Warwick, farmer of Liquith More, now of her new farm of this year, 6l.

Patrick Crispy, exercising the office of Reeve there, now accounting, with 65s. 7½d. of arrears and with 4l 10s. 3d. of the issues of this year, 7l 15s. 10¼d.

Value there this year, with 4l 10s. of the price of 30 waggon-loads of hay of the issues of the meadows of this year, remaining of the store within the Castle; price of a waggon-load 3s.—15l 9s. 3d.

[Endorsed.]

Lyquith. Account there, ended at Michaelmas in the 34th year of the reign of Henry VI. [1456.]

Cardiff Villa. 1666.

The Presentment or Inquisition of the Inquest of Survey for the Town of Cardiff aforesaid, being sworn and charged at a Court of Survey in the Guildhall of the said Town, y<sup>e</sup> seventh day of September Anno D'ni nostri Caroli ij, d. g. Anglie, Scot., Francie & Hib'nie Reg., octavo, annoq. D'ni 1666, before Edward Herbert Esquire and Henry Romsey gent., Commissioners of the R<sup>t</sup> Hon<sup>ble</sup> Philip, Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, Lord of the said Town, by the oaths of:—

Jurors and Aldermen: Cradock Wells, George Price, Rice Williams, Arthur Yeoman, Richard Hawkins, Henry Hoare, Thomas Morgan, Griffith Lewis; and

Jurors: Morgan Jones, Edward Edwards, William David, Emanuel Jones, Christopher Wells, Anthony Parry, William Gaskin, William Beavan, Jonathan Greenfield.

1. Imprimis. To the first article touching the limits, bounds, circuits, extents and jurisdiction of this Borough, etc., they say that the bounds and Liberties of this Borough are these, videlicet: De loco vocato Appledore juxta Llystalybont in parte boreali, usque ad Broadstream in mari in parte australi; et de Pains Cross in parte orientali, usque ad crucem juxta Frates Predicatores in parte occidentali, as the same do appear in and by the grants and exemplifications of the said Town of Cardiff. And touching jurisdiction of Courts within this Borough and antient Corporation of Cardiff aforesaid and within the Liberties thereof, the said Jurors say that the Town Court of Cardiff there is usually holden upon Thursdays every fortnight, at the Guildhall of the said Town, before the Bailiffs of the said Town for the time being, and now called Curia Domini Regis, according to the Charter or Letters Patent of our late Sovereign Lord King James of sacred memory, sealed under the Great Seal of England, granted to the said Corporation at the request of the R<sup>t</sup> Hon<sup>ble</sup> William, late Earl of Pembroke, then Lord of the said Town and uncle to the Lord that now is; wherein actions of divers natures, qualities or values there happening are usually heard and tried, and the jurisdiction thereof exercised by the Bailiffs of the said Town for the time being, with the assistance of their Steward for the time being, according to the form and effect of the said Letters Patent. And the Lord of the said Town that now is, at present is and his successive heirs ought to be, according to the said Letters Patent, Constables of the Castle of Cardiff, and hath, have, and their predecessors, Lords of the said Town, heretofore were used to have, the nomination of a Deputy Constable of the said Castle of Cardiff. Which said Deputy Constable so nominated as aforesaid was in times past and at present is, and for time to come ought to be, a Burgess or Freeman of this Borough; and after his admittance and being sworn a Burgess of this Borough, such Deputy Constable or Constable, when admitted Burgess as aforesaid, was, is and ought to be sworn a Justice of the Peace of the said Town during the time that he shall exercise the office of Deputy Constable of the said Castle of Cardiff, according to the said Letters Patent and during the pleasure of the Lord of the said Town for the time being, or his successors, Lords of the said Town. And that the Lord of the said Town that now is hath and is used to have the nomination and appointment of a Town Clerk for the said Town, for and during his will and pleasure. And touching other ministerials of the said Town, the Constable of the Castle for the time being or his Deputy, after election made and returned according to the said Letters Patent, ought yearly to swear the Bailiffs of the said Town and the Aldermen thereof when elected and the Sergeants at Mace for the time being, as of ancient time usually hath been accustomed. And the Bailiffs of the said Town for the time being are and ought yearly to swear the residue of the ministerial officers of the said Town, according to the ancient custom of the said Town; which Bailiffs for the time being are to minister justice in the said Town, according as by the Letters Patent and their oaths they are directed and required. And that every Burgess of the said Town ought to do suit of Court, as of ancient time hath been used. And the perquisites of the same Court are usually accounted for at every audit to the Lord, at Michaelmas yearly, by the Bailiffs for the time being. And that there ought to be four Courts of Quarter Sessions quarterly, to be held in the Guildhall of the said Town, for the preserving of his Majesty's peace within the said Town, according to the tenour of the said Letters Patent of King James aforesaid; which hath not been observed for five years until the month of May 1667; in which Court of Sessions the Constable of the Castle, the Bailiffs, Steward and Senior Alderman for the time being are or ought to be Justices; whereof the said Constable of the Castle and the Senior Bailiff for the time being are to be of the quorum. And as touching the Magistrates of the said Town and Borough for the time being, according to the General Calendar remaining on record and called at the general Sessions of the Peace holden for the said Town in the month of May in the year of our Lord God 1667, their names follow, videlicet: Herbert Evans, Esquire, Deputy Constable of the Castle of Cardiff and one of the Justices of the Peace of this Town; John Sheere, Esquire and Senior Alderman, and Thomas Morgan, Esquire, now Bailiffs of the said Town; and two other Justices of the Peace of the said Town; John Gibbs, Esquire, Steward or Seneschal of the said Town.

2. To the second article, the said Jurors do say that, as touching the privileges and liberties of this Town Corporate and the Lord of this Manor and Borough: First they say they are ignorant as to the privileges and liberties of the said Manor and Borough; but for the privileges and liberties held by this Town Corporate they say that the Corporation have held and ought to hold the same in fee farm for ever, according to their Charters and ancient custom; paying therefor yearly to the Lord, at his Lordship's audit after Michaelmas, the sum of Five pounds, thirteen shillings, sevenpence halfpenny, for which the Bailiffs of the said Town for the time being do every year respectively account. And their fee is seven shillings, the Deputy Constable of the Castle four shillings, the Town Clerk three shillings and fourpence, and the Sergeants at Mace sixteen shillings; yearly to them paid or allowed by the Lord's auditor upon the said account, and of ancient times hath so been used. And that the said Corporation of the said Town are to have for ever free common of pasture, furze and turf upon the commons near the said Town, called the Great Heath and Little Heath, by the grants and Charters aforesaid; being yearly unto two years last past presented by the Grand Juries of the said Town accordingly. And that the adjacent parishes of Roath, Llanishen, Whitchurch and other parishes do daily intrude on the said liberty and common of pasture, for many years past, to the great wrong and detriment of the said Corporation.

3. To the third article the said Jurors do present and say that there ought to be usually kept for and within the said Town three Fairs every year, videlicet, upon the feast day of Saint Peter the Apostle; the eighth day of September, called Our Lady's Fair; and St. Andrew's Fair, being upon the last day of November. And also that there are kept weekly within the said Town two Markets, videlicet, upon every Wednesday and Saturday throughout the year; and that the tolls, pitching and profit are due to the Town for the fee farm before presented to the Lord. And they say that David Mathew, Esquire, taketh up the toll and pitching of cattle in Fair time sold between the bridges.

4. To the fourth article the said Jurors do present and say that in the Town of Cardiff there be divers freeholders of houses and lands, some holding in fee simple socage and some in fee farm and to them and their heirs for ever. And for and touching such burgages and half burgages and cottages which pay free rent or burgage rent within the said Town, the same are specified and contained, as near as this Jury could learn or find, in a rental or schedule thereof hereunto annexed, according to the said Jury's evidence; being payable at Michaelmas yearly, after the rate of 12*d.* the burgage, 6*d.* the half burgage, and 3*d.* the cottage, as appears by the said rental and according to a former Presentment; and are now or late were in the several tenures or occupations of the persons named in the said rental or schedule hereunto annexed, as this Jury have heard and been informed.

Finis de Burgag: Redd:

A Schedule of the boundaries, meers and bounds, lands and yearly rents of the several tenements of the Lordship of Spittle, whose names are hereunder written,

Imprimis. James Herbert, Esq. The Capital House, commonly called the Spittle, and 5 acres of land, late in the tenure of William Bawdrigg Esq<sup>e</sup> deceased, and now of James Herbert Esq. or Mr. John Wollvin, his tenant. Between the lands late of Sir Edward Lewis, Knight, deceased, on the east part, the lands late of George Lewis Esq<sup>e</sup> deceased, on the north part, the lands of the now Earl of Pembroke on the west, and the highway leading to Roath on the south part, within the Liberty of Cardiff.

James Herbert, Esq<sup>e</sup>. Item 6 acres and one Qr. of land which sometime were in the tenure of John Davies and Catherine his wife, for their lives, and are now in the tenure of the said James Herbert or the said Mr. John Wollvin, his tenant, lying within the Liberties of Cardiff between the lands late of the said George Lewis Esq<sup>e</sup> of the north part, the lands of the said Earl of the east part, the lane leading to Dobbin Pitts of the west part, and the street leading to Roath of the south part.

Mr. Wolvine, More. Three quarters of land between the lands late of George Lewis Esq<sup>e</sup> of the north, south and east parts, and the way leading to Dobbin Pitts of the west part.

Herbert Evans, Esq<sup>e</sup>. Item, 7 acres, 3 quarters, and  $\frac{1}{2}$  a quarter of land; 5 cottages and 5 gardens; and one old house, alias a barn, with one orchard thereto belonging; all sometime in the occupation of John Williams and George Williams; between the highway leading to Roath of the north side, the lands heretofore of Edward Kemeys and then in the hands of James ab Evan, of the south side; the lands of the said Earl, and heretofore in the occupation of Mary

James, the wife of Thomas Lewis, of the east side; and the lands late of the said George Lewis, heretofore in the hands of certain of the Irishmen, of the west side.

Cradock Wells. Item, there were heretofore in the tenure of the within named John Davies and Catherine his wife one other cottage and a garden, lying without the South Gate of Cardiff, between the lands late of William Herbert Esq. and heretofore in the tenure of Robert Martin and now in the tenure of Thomas Richards, of the south part; the lands late of Edward Lewis Knt. of the east part; the lands late of Edward Kemeys Esq. of the north part, and the way there leading to West Moor of the west part; which said cottage and garden is now in the tenure of Cradock Wells, of Cardiff, Alderman.

Mr. Stradling. Item, one acre, being in the Manor of Roath, in a place there called Hilla ycha, lying of all parts to the lands late of Lamorack Stradling Esq., deceased; and one other half acre lying in the Hill-ysha, under the lands late of Robert Hopton Esq., by the right of the late Lady Jones his late wife, and near the highway leading to Roath.

Mr. William Williams. Item,  $1\frac{1}{2}$  acres, 2 cottages, 2 gardens thereto belonging, lying in Crockherton, between the lands of the said Earl, late in the hands of John Davies and Catherine his wife, of the west and south parts; the lands of George Lewis, in the lands heretofore of Thomas Jevan; and the lands late of John Boundy of Cardiff, Alderman, deceased. These lands, cottages and gardens were late in the occupation of Thomas Lewis and Mary his wife; afterwards demised for three lives to Walter Williams deceased, and now in the tenure of William Williams, his son, for his own life and George Williams, his son Lewelin Jenkin. Item, one tenement lying in Duke Street within the Gates of Cardiff and in the occupation of Lewellin Jenkin, late tenant to Rice Davies deceased; formerly demised to Rice Davies aforesaid for 99 years, if the said Rice Davies and two of his children, Samuel and Timothy Davies, do or one of them should so long live; between the Castle wall of the north part, the lands of the King of the west and east parts, and the street of the south part.

Item, one other cottage within Cardiff, near the Castle gate, lying of the west side of the gate; new built of late by Roger Spencer and lately holden by Naum ffrenge and others, by a late demise, and now held by Mrs. Frances Thomas of Wenvoe, widow, and by her to her grandfather as we understand.

Mrs. Mary Lewis. One of the daughters of Sir Tho<sup>s</sup> Lewis Knt.

Dorothy Lloyd. Item, One other tenement lying of the north side of Crockerton Street, and a garden thereunto belonging. The lands late of Sir Wm. Herbert Knt. of the west and north parts; and the lands on the east and south parts lately Thomas Hughes, and heretofore in the occupation of James Rawleigh and were heretofore held by John Griffiths, son to Griffith ap Ievan, lately dead. And the said house and garden are now in the tenure of Dorothy Lloyd, widow, or her tenant, and do adjoin to the house and orchard late in the tenure of Samuel Sicklemore, or his assigns or tenant.

Thomas Wrart, Roath. Five acres heretofore holden by Mr. Rowland Morgan, lying within the Manor of Roath, called Bawdaline acre.

The Freehold.

The widow of Henry Lewis, the late son of the said George Lewis, and the heirs of the said Henry Lewis deceased, owe 4s. 4d. of free rent for the lands of the Dame Roberts deceased, sometimes the lands of John Jones.

The heirs of Thomas Hughes, or their mother Mary Williams, the late wife of Morgan Williams, Alderman, deceased, paid 10d. yearly for a cottage and a garden lying in Crockerton, of late in the occupation of William Figge, and now in the occupation of the widow Donneford.

Escheated.

W<sup>m</sup> Jones, Bodysmaker. James Hopkins held one tenement in Crockerton Street, at the rent of 10d. yearly, now in the tenure of William Jones, bodysmaker; the lands of the heirs of Thomas Hughes of the east part; the lands of the said George Lewis of the south and west parts, and the highway of the north part.

This land is escheated to the Lord of this Town of Cardiff, by reason James Hopkins murdered his own son, and for the fact he was convicted.

5. To the fifth article they are ignorant.

6. To the sixth article they say they do not know of any encroachment or encroachments done to the prejudice of the Lord; or any commons, wastes, or commonable grounds which are belonging to the said Manor or Borough as the Lord's right, to their knowledge; and for such commons or wastes and intrenchments as there are, the same are and were wont yearly to be enquired on the behalf of the said Town by the Grand Jury of the said Town; and such encroachments are to be corrected and reformed, according to the custom there used, by the Bailiffs of the said Town for the time being. And they say that the said Town hath received great wrong and injury by Thomas Lewis, late of Lanishen, Esquire, deceased, who in his life inclosed by estimation 60 acres of land or thereabout, scituate upon the said Great Heath, parcel of the said Town Lands; which said Thomas Lewis, in regard the said Corporation was not nor is not able to<sup>1</sup> for the same, in Law unjustly detained, and encroached the same for his life time from the said Town and Corporation; and since his decease his son Gabriel Lewis Esq<sup>e</sup> which holds<sup>2</sup> the same from the said Town, for aught they could ever understand. And by reason of this and several other encroachments and building of several cottages on the said Heaths, the said Town and Corporation will be utterly disfranchised of their priviledges and liberties, unless the Honourable Lord of the said Town that now is will kindly assist his ancient Corporation to regain their privileges, as formerly both his predecessors and himself were wont to do.

7. —————

8. In the eighth article they are ignorant.

9. To the ninth article they say that the Lord within the said Town ought to have all waifs, estrays, felons' goods, treasure trove, goods of persons outlawed and fugitive; and that the Bailiffs of the said Town for the time being ought to take notice thereof to the Lord's use. And they do not know of any such that the Lord hath not been answered for, except one parcel of clippings of English coin money, weighing two and twenty ounces or thereabouts, seized upon by William Jones and Nathaniel Wells deceased, late Bailiffs of the said Town; which clippings were late in the possession of the said William Jones. But whether it be the Lord's right, they leave to his Lordship to enquire.

10. To the tenth article they present the Castle of Cardiff, with its appurtenances within the said Castle walls, except one garden and its appurtenances now in the tenure of Henry Draper, to be the Lord's; but touching the residue of the said article they are ignorant. And for wastes and decays they present his said Lordship Castle of Cardiff to be partly demolished and out of repair, whether by the said Lord's consent or no they are ignorant. And they present one house in Shoemakers' Street, of the Lord's land, to be down to the ground in the present tenure of William Samynes' orphans. And they present the Tucking Mill, in the [tenure of] Herbert Evans or his assigns, to be in much decay. And they present one stable and garden, now in the tenure of James Jones, to be in much decay. All of which are the Lord's lands.

11. To the eleventh article they present the river of Severn to be navigable into the river of Taff to the slip or quay called the Blunts Gate of the said Town. But touching prisage of wine or for any other goods imported or exported, or which is or ought to be due to the Lord of the said Town for the same, they refer themselves to the Charter of the said Town granted as aforesaid by King James; but they say that there is an ancient duty due to the Lord, called the Castle Bushell, upon all corn and salt of foreigners that wend to the said Town; and that there ought to be always in the said Castle of Cardiff kept a Castle Bushell for that purpose, which hath been wanting these many years. And as to the right of the nomination of officers they are ignorant.

12. To the twelfth article they say that the Shoemakers and Glovers of the said Corporation are one Company, called by the name of the Cordwainers' and Glovers' Company, by composition or Letters Patents of Queen Elizabeth; but by what grant from the Lord they are ignorant. And as touching the accustomed dues, rights, priviledges, immunities and franchises of the afore-said Company, and what yearly benefits do of right belong or appertain to the Lord, they refer themselves to the said composition and other grants to and of the said Company; and whether such accustomed dues are yearly paid to the Lord, they refer themselves to the Lord's accounts.

13. To the thirteenth article they present that within the Town of Cardiff the Lord hath two water grist Mills, under one roof, called the Town Mills, otherwise called the Lord's Mills, now in the tenure and occupation of William Thomas, Dean of Worcester, John Samyne and Bridget Samyne alias Gold, executors and overseers of the last Will and Testament of William Samyne deceased, to and for the use of the infants and orphans of the said William Samyne. And they also present that the Burgesses and inhabitants of the said Town do usually grind their corn there, and so do as long as they are well dealt with, and the mills able to grind; but whether they are bound so to do or no, they are ignorant for want of evidence.

14. To the fourteenth article they say that the Lord has the royalty of Fishing, extending from the Black Weir to the Black Stakes and head weir near Penarth, now in the tenure of the said Wm. Thomas, John Samyne and Bridget Samyne alias Gold, to the uses aforementioned in the precedent article; but to whom the royalties of fowling, hawking and hunting do belong or extend, they are ignorant for want of evidence.

15, 16, 17. To the three last articles they are ignorant; and as touching Court Leets they refer themselves to the Lord's Court Leets, where matters of that nature are presented.

Survey of the Manor of Roath Keynsham. 1702.

ROATH KENSHAM SS. A Survey had and made of the Lordship of Roath Kensham aforesaid, at a Court Baron held for the said Manor on Tuesday the Five and Twentieth day of May in the year of our Lord God 1702 and in the first of the reign of our Sovereign

Lady Anne, Queen, etc., before Miles Williams, gent., Steward there, and before Mordecai Jones and James Dratt, gents., Commissioners authorized with the said Steward to hold the Court aforesaid for the taking a true Survey of the said Manor and homage: Mathew Thomas, Thomas William, William David, Rees David, Thomas ap Evan, Joseph Meredith, John Williams, Thomas Morgan, John Morgan, Edmund Meredith, Edward Thomas, Arnold Lewis, etc.; the said Jurors having had in charge to that intent and purpose several articles, in answer to which they do on their oaths say and present in form following:—

1. Imprimis. To the First Article of our Charge we present and say that John Morgan of Tredegar Esq<sup>e</sup> is the undoubted Lord of this Manor, and that this Lordship was formerly purchased by William Morgan Esq<sup>e</sup>, deceased, father of the said John Morgan, of and from Richard Lewis of the Vann in the said County of Glamorgan, Esq<sup>e</sup>, deceased.

2, 3. Item, to the Second and Third Articles wee say and present that this Lordship or Manor meareth in the upper part of Lanedarn parish, in a place called Kevanpoyth, with the Bounds of the Several parishes of Lanedarn and Lanvedow, East and North, until it cometh to a Rivulet of water that runeth from Kevanmably Park to the house of David William, now the Mansion House of Rowland Lewis Rees, and thence downward along that Rivulet unto a brook called Nant y Cumma, at a Meadow called Foes-lase-vach, within the Parish of Lanedarn aforesaid; and this Manor is like meared in the upper part of Lanedarn aforesaid Northward with a well that runneth between the Lands of M<sup>rs</sup> Grace Lewis, widow, called Tyr Cwmerch also Kevanpoith, within the said Lordship, and the Land called Tyr gronow yr Llygad within the Lordship of Senghenith and parish of Lanvedow, being also the land of the said M<sup>rs</sup> Grace Lewis, until it Cometh to a brook called Nant y Gabal, which runneth close by the house of one Edmund Richard late of one William Thomas William on the West thereof, and then leaving the said brook, crosseth the highway and runneth along the bounds of the several parishes of Lanedarn and Lisvane, Between the Lands of Sir Charles Kemeys Tynte, Bar<sup>t</sup>, now in the Tenure of John Humberstone and Ralph Thomas, on the west, until it cometh unto the brook at the Ffoes Lase aforesaid, being the land of the said Sir Charles Kemeys, now in the tenure of William Jones of Lanedarn aforesaid. And another parcel of the said Lordship or Manor is likewise meared on the east with a little brook called Rhyd-y-Billwhe, near the house of Watkin Thomas of the Vaindre, now in the tenure of Mary Watkin, spinster, untill it meeteth with a brook called Dowlas; and from thence it is meared with the said Dowlas, untill that ye come to the land of William Morgan of Coyd-y-Gores, gen<sup>t</sup>, the land of the said William Morgan and the land of Sir John Thomas, bar<sup>t</sup>, now in the tenure of the said William Morgan, being lands holden in fee under the College of St. Austin-on-the-Green, in Bristol; and doth from thence bound or mear to the said Lordship or Manor on the south and west part, until it cometh to a well or rivulet which runeth between the lands of the said Sir John Thomas, Bar<sup>t</sup>, of the one side, and the lands of Thomas Lewis of Lanishen, Esq<sup>e</sup>, called Kevan-coyd, now in the Tenure of Edward Morrice, and the lands of the aforesaid William Morgan, called Tyr-y-Capel, being parcel of this Lordship, on the other side hereof; and so crosseth the highway below the said Chapel, and so runneth mearing down a hedge by a meadow called Florin, until that ye come to the river of Rumney; and from thence it is meared by the said river of Rumney, until it cometh to a moor called Griffith's-Moor, being the lands of Thomas Morgan of Lanrumney, Esq<sup>e</sup>, now in the tenure of John William and others, on the one side; and from thence it is meared southward with a ditch that serveth between the said Griffith's-moor and other lands of the Countess Dowager of Pembroke, now in the Tenure of William Richards, of the one side, and the lands of the said Thomas Morgan of Lanrumney, Esq<sup>e</sup>, called Llwyn-y-Grant-Kenol; and on the other side, now in the Tenure of John William aforesaid, and others, until it cometh to a Corn Grist Mill, called Roath Mill, which said mill the said Jurors do likewise present to be the Lord's mill, and situate within this Lordship; and from the said mill to Roath Bridge, being made of stone, near the Church, about a Cottage and waste ground thereunto belonging, called Gooslase, now in the Tenure of Edward Thomas and being part of this Lordship, until the meeting of the Two Brooks eastwardt, until it cometh to another bridge called Pont-Evan-Quint. Also it is meared westward with a brook called Nant-Mawr; and from Pont-Evan-Quint unto a Lane called Heol-y-King-Coed westward; and thence along that Lane to a place called Rydd-y-Billwhe, before mentioned.

Item, the said Jurors do hereby present and say that one Tenement of the Lord's Land, called Wedal-ycha, being parcel of this Lordship, is situate in the parish of Landaff and now held by lease from the said Lord of this Manor by William Jones of Cardiff, and is now in the Tenure of Morgan Robert, his under Tenant; and that it doth mear and bound unto a lane called Heol-y-Coed on the East, the Mountain or Common of Mynydd Buchan on the North and West sides, and the Lands of Sir Charles Kemeys Tynte, Bart, called Wedal-Isha, now in the Tenure of William Morrice, and a place called Kimtha Bach, on the South part thereof.

Item, we present that one other Tenement of the said Lord of this Manor, now in the tenure of Alice William, Widow, being a parcel of this Lordship, situate in the Parish of Whitechurch, mearing and bounding to the Common called Mynydd Buchan and a high way leading from a place called Pant-bach to a place called Rydd-wathley, on the East, and a Dump or Bank on the Common called Wain Troda, which Bank adjoineth to the several Lordships of Listal-y-Bont, Landaff, Sengheneth, and to this Lordship, on the West part thereof, the Lands of the widow Matthews of Gabalva, being part of the Lordship of Listall y Bont, of the South, and the Land of Captain Richard Jenkins, being part of the Lordship of Senghenith, now in the Tenure of William Thomas and Henry Morgan, on the North part thereof.

Item, we present that one other tenement of the Lands of the Lord of the Manor, situate in the Parish of Whitechurch aforesaid, now in the Tenure of Lewis Lewis, being also parcel of this Lordship and late the Land of one Samuel Edward, doth mear to the said Common called Mynydd Buchan, the said place called Pant Bach on the South Side, and the said way Leading to Ridd y wathla on the West, and the Lands of the said Lord of this Manor, now in the Tenure of Thomas Morgan, being in the Lordship of Senghenith, on the North part thereof; and from thence the said Lordship is bounded with the mears that meareth between the Parishes of Lanishen and Whitechurch, until it cometh to a brook called Castan, in a place where the said brook runeth between a place called Kaeyrkunrik, parcel of the Lordship of Senghenith, and the Lands of Richard Lewis of Corsham, Esq<sup>e</sup>, now in Tenure of Thomas William, being parcel of this Lordship of Roath-Kensham; and from thence to the Ruins of an old Castle near Drainan-pen-y-Graig it is meared by the said brook called Castan, and a hill called Graig Kibor, on the North, and the Lands of Sir Charles Kemeys Tynte, Bar<sup>t</sup>, now in the tenure of Rees John Mathew, and the brook that runneth between the land of the said Richard Lewis, Esq<sup>e</sup>, called Tyr-y-will, and another Tenement of the said Richard Lewis, Esq<sup>e</sup>, now in the Tenure of William Lewis David, until it cometh to a Stone Bridge on the High way by Lanishen Church; and from thence to Rhyd-y-Maen-Coch, to a place called Gwain-y-pentrahand, by the said Common called Mynydd Buchan, it is meared to the Highway Southward; and from thence as herein mentioned, to the lands of Lewis Lewis aforesaid, it is meared on the South part thereof with a mount or walk there raised and now constant.

Item, we present that another tenement of the Lord of this Manor, situate in the parish of Roath aforesaid, called by the name of Court Bach, now in the tenure of Joseph Meredith, is mearing and bounding unto the highway leading from Roath Village unto Roath Bridge, the brook that cometh from Roath mill, the Customary Land of the Lord of this Manor, now in the Tenure of Joseph Meredith, the Lands of George Howel, Esq<sup>e</sup>, now in his own Tenure, on all parts and sides thereof; and it is a part of the said Lordship.

13. Item, To the Thirteenth Article of our Charge, We the said Jurors do present that by the custom of this Manor or Lordship a Court Leet and Court Baron are incident to the said Lordship or Manor, and are to be held at the times hereafter expressed (viz.), the Court Leet is to be holden twice every year, on such days about May and Michaelmas as the said Lord or his Steward or Stewards shall appoint ; at which Courts Leet as well the tenants as also the resiants within this Lordship are bound to appear on reasonable summons or notice thereof to them given ; and also that a Court Baron ought to be kept every three weeks, if occasion requires, within and for this Manor, to try between party and party all manner of actions to a Court Baron belonging, provided the debt and damage exceed not the sum of two shillings and four pence.

And we also present that all tenants of this Manor at all times of the year have, and always have had, free common of pasture for all sorts of cattle on the heaths and mountains there, called Mynydd Buchan, Wain-Dyval, and Wain-Treoda.

And we further present that the Lord of this Manor or Lordship hath by the custom thereof all waifs, estrays, felons goods found within the said Lordship or Manor, and all other royalties incident or belonging to the same, according to the custom thereof.

And moreover we present that there is a Pinfold or Pound overt belonging to this Manor; and by the custom thereof the Lord, as often as need shall require, is and ought at his own proper cost to repair and amend the same.

As to all the rest of the Articles given us in Charge, the greatest part thereof having relation to customaryhold estates and customary tenants, and there being no such within this Lordship, we the Jurors aforesaid do say that we have nothing further to present of.

Town Clerk Wood's Memoranda.

PROMINENT among the citizens of Cardiff in his day was Mr. John Wood, Town Clerk of Cardiff in the years 1818—1825, who filled that important office with energy and judgment at a critical period in the history of the Borough. The old order was changing, giving place to an entirely new state of municipal affairs. There was a slow transition from the preponderance of Castle influence in the government of the Town, to the ascendancy of the people. In some respects, no doubt, Cardiff's emancipation from feudal leading-strings was to her material advantage; but it would be possible to show that the power of the Lord of Cardiff Castle has on the whole been wielded in the interests of the Burgesses. However this may be, Mr. Town Clerk Wood's sympathies seem to have been on the side of democracy, and he employed his very considerable talent and energies in counteracting the then existing tendency of Cardiff local administration to degenerate into a mere department of the Castle. There is no doubt that, from the reign of Anne to that of George the Fourth, the vitality of the Corporation lay dormant, while the Lords were unceasingly strengthening the ties which bound the Town to the Castle. The Council Chamber in the Guildhall became an office for the transaction of Castle business, and the rarely-held Meetings were occupied with little more than the formal installation of Bailiffs and Aldermen who were nominees of the Lord and devoted in his service. Gradually, however, a new spirit arose among the inhabitants of this and other towns; and a popular movement set in towards a more effective representation of the Freemen on the Councils of the Boroughs, which, after a long contest, resulted in the Municipal Reform Act of 1835. In Town Clerk Wood's Memoranda we are admitted to view the inner workings of this movement at Cardiff. We see weighty questions of municipal law submitted to learned Counsel on behalf of the unemancipated townsmen, and note the strenuous opposition offered by the Castle party to the progress of the new ideals.

The first Case sets out the most material parts of all the Charters, and asks Counsel's opinion as to the power and authority of the Constable of Cardiff Castle and his Deputy. It will be well to set down here the actual historical facts of the matter.

During the Marcher Lordship of Glamorgan and Morganwg the Constable of the Castle of Cardiff was appointed by the Lord, to hold office during the Lord's pleasure. His office was in the nature of a military governorship of the Town and Castle. He was Mayor of the Town, and presided over the Town Court, though the civil government of the Town was in the hands of the Bailiffs. This state of things continued during the time when the Lordship was vested in the Crown. But after the Royal grant of the Lordship of Cardiff Castle and its dependencies to Sir William Herbert, afterwards Earl of Pembroke, the Lord himself was Constable of the Castle for the King, and appointed a Deputy Constable to perform the active duties incident to that office. In the eighteenth century this Deputy came to be regarded as being the Constable, and himself appointed a Deputy; the latter being in strict right no proper officer at all. Down to the date of the Municipal Reform Act, 1835, the Corporation officials were sworn into their several offices before the so-called Constable, who was in reality the Deputy-Constable; or before the so-called Deputy-Constable, who was no proper officer at all. It would seem that since 1551 the office of Constable of Cardiff Castle is hereditary in the descendants of the grantee of the Lordship of Cardiff Castle. Since 1835, however, the office has been in abeyance, and the title disused.

Counsel Mr. John Richardson, of the Middle Temple, rightly lays down that the Constable of Cardiff Castle could not lawfully appoint a Deputy to exercise the functions of a Justice of the Peace, which by the Charter of James I. are assigned to the Constable. But both he and Counsel Mr. Henry Alworth Merewether, of Chancery Lane, make the mistake of failing to distinguish between the offices of Constable and Deputy-Constable; they being under the impression that the Lord of Cardiff Castle had the appointment of the Constable, whereas the Lord himself was in reality the Constable, as plainly appears by the Particulars for the Grant of 1551, and still more by the Survey of 1666. (Herein note the difference between the Lordship of Glamorgan and the Lordship of Cardiff Castle.)

Mr. Wood next directs himself to the question of the office of Town Clerk. He complains that by some means or other the Lord had, for the previous 100 years at least, claimed and exercised the right to appoint this officer; though on what basis the claim rested, was not known. He himself, he says, was appointed by the Lord, under his Lordship's seal, to exercise the duties by himself or his deputy, quam diu se bene gesserit. He asks, whether the Lord can maintain this right of appointment, and whether the Town Clerk can lawfully appoint a Deputy Town Clerk. Also whether the present Town Clerk had, by accepting the office of Alderman, vacated the Town Clerkship.

Mr. Richardson gives a general affirmative reply to the first two queries, and a general negative to the last. It appeared, however, to be doubtful whether the office of Town Clerk existed before the Charter of James I.

Although no mention of such an officer has yet been found in documents of earlier date, the office of Town Clerk is a very ancient one.

Case II. deals with the election of Capital Burgesses and Aldermen of the Borough, and gives extracts from the Town Book of 1688—1710, which has for some years been lost. Counsel Mr.

Henry A. Mereweather gives as his opinion that the Burgesses at large had the right to elect Capital Burgesses, and that Aldermen could be chosen from the ranks of the simple Burgesses. He also pronounces on the question of the Constable. Mr. Wood instructed him that the inhabitants of Cardiff desired to throw the Borough open, and that the Lord was keeping back the Charter and records.

In Case III. submitted to Mr. Mereweather, the Town Clerk asks for an opinion concerning the Bailiff's practice of swearing Freemen outside a Court of Record, as for instance, in public houses. Counsel considers this illegal, and also the admission of honorary Freemen. The fees levied on the marriage of Freemen's daughters, and the charge for wine at admission to the freedom, he regards as equally unlawful. He condemns the prohibition of non-Burgesses to open shops in the Borough, as being in restraint of trade and therefore void; and says the Corporation can compel the return of the public records by Writ of Mandamus. Counsel expresses the opinion that every resident householder in the Borough is a legal Burgess, and recommends resistance to the claims of non-resident Burgesses to vote.

Case IV. submits the claim of mere householders to enjoy all the privileges of the freedom, and incidentally raises the question of the legal force of King James the Second's Charter. Mr. Mereweather regards this Charter as illegal and void, but adduces no cogent argument for this opinion.

Case V. has to do particularly with the right of the inhabitants to hold stalls in the market, free of toll. Mr. Wood instances the case of a Cardiff hatter whose goods were seized by the Collector, in default of payment of a toll of fourpence for pickage, instead of the penny immemorially paid to the Serjeants-at-Mace. Counsel supports the Town Clerk in his view of the illegality of the new demand, and grounds his opinion on the wording of the ancient Charters.

It will, of course, be borne in mind that most of the points raised by Town Clerk Wood have been rendered obsolete by the Municipal Reform Acts.

Town Clerk Wood's Memoranda.

Extracted from a MS. book compiled by Mr. John Wood, Town Clerk of Cardiff, 1825.

First comes a series of translations of some of the Charters. In that of Hugh le Despenser, the word "corf" puzzled the translator very much. He decided to connect it with "corisfecta," and to translate it "leather articles." The word is the Welsh "corph" (from Latin corpus) and evidently means a trading corporation or guild.

Then comes a series of Cases for Counsel's Opinion, with the Opinions. These documents I will set out in an abridged form.

The first cites the most material parts of all the Charters, and asks Counsel's opinion as to the power and authority of the Constable of Cardiff Castle and his Deputy.

Mr. Wood's statement is as follows :—

CASE I.

It is observable that in the earliest Charter mention is made of the Constable of the Castle, and a certain power and authority is vested in him which is recognised and confirmed in all the succeeding Charters. It is also observable that he is throughout styled by the Grantors "our Constable," or "the Constable of our Castle." But how he was appointed, or by whom, or whether he held the office by hereditary right, or by gift or grant, or whether for life or pleasure or otherwise, can nowhere be discovered. However, it is presumed that he was appointed by the Lord and, as it seems, with the view principally to take care that the tolls were properly collected.

Admitting the Constable of the Castle to have been appointed at the pleasure of the Lord, it still remains doubtful whether the power of appointing belonged to the Lords successively as Lords of the County of which Cardiff was a part, or whether it was a right claimed and exercised by them as incident to the ownership of the Castle.

Of late years, and indeed so far back as the books of the present Corporation go, it is clear that the Lord of the Borough has appointed a person to exercise the office of Constable; and he can exercise the right of course as incident to the ownership of the Castle only, and not as Lord of Glamorgan. But how he can exercise this right of appointing a judicial officer, is one point which we wish to ascertain. By the Charter of James I. the Constable of the Castle for the time being is empowered to act as a Justice of the Peace. The books say none but the King can make a Justice of the Peace, and that the King cannot grant a power to make them; neither can a man prescribe to have such a power. By statute, Justices are to be made by Letters Patent under the Great Seal. Yet, in effect, if the Lord of the Borough can appoint the Constable, he does make and constitute a Justice of the Peace.<sup>1</sup>

It is provided by Statute of H. 8 that all cities, boroughs and towns corporate which have liberty, power and authority to have Justices of Peace shall still have and enjoy their liberties and authorities in that behalf, after such like manner as they have been accustomed, without any alteration by occasion of the Act. It is presumed that this liberty, power or authority cannot be created by the Lord of the County—though it must be admitted that, whatever may have been the origin of the Constable's appointment, the Royal Charters have confirmed to the Burgesses all their liberties and quittance.<sup>2</sup>

Your Opinion is therefore in the first place requested whether the Lord of the Borough can by reason of his ownership of the Castle, or by custom derived from the Lords of Glamorgan, appoint whom he pleases to be Constable of the Castle; or whether it is not rather a personal office, which he is bound to execute in propria persona.<sup>3</sup>

By the aforesaid Charter of James I. a power coextensive with that of Justices of Peace for Counties, to enquire of offences done within the liberties of the Town is given, to the Constable, the Bailiffs, Steward and Senior Alderman for the time being, or any three of them (of whom the Constable and the Senior Bailiff for the time being are to be two). It seems clear that the power is given to them all jointly, and that if either the Constable or Senior Bailiff is absent the power is rendered altogether nugatory.

Your opinion is therefore secondly requested whether it be not incumbent on the Constable to reside within the liberty or within a reasonable distance, so that the power may be enforced when occasion requires, without having to send and wait for his travelling 100 or 150 miles, and even then to wait his pleasure.

The duty and office of the Constable is clearly judicial. It is presumed, therefore, that he cannot appoint a Deputy. The books say that a judicial officer cannot appoint a Deputy.<sup>1</sup>

You will therefore please to say if you think the Constable can appoint a Deputy, even if the appointment is to exercise the office by himself or his Deputy.

The Charters throughout say nothing of the office of Town Clerk. The officer therein designated Steward has always been distinct from a Town Clerk, and is commonly termed the Recorder.

The Town Clerk is, as far as we know, in all cases considered the officer of the Corporation, and we believe is in all other corporate towns appointed by the acting body corporate. By some means or other, the Lord of the Borough of Cardiff has, for the last 100 years at least, claimed and exercised the right of appointing this officer himself. On what basis this claim and practice rest is unknown; but the Lord for the time being has from time to time appointed this officer under his seal, to exercise the functions of the office. The present Lord of the Borough appointed the present Town Clerk, under seal, to exercise the duties by himself or his deputy, quam diu se bene gesserit.<sup>2</sup>

Your opinion is requested whether the Lord of the Borough can

<sup>2</sup> The Survey of 1666 seems to show that the Town Clerk was anciently the salaried officer of the Lord, like the Bailiffs, Serjeants, &c. But the Lord has not appointed the Town Clerk since the Municipal Reform Act. The Town Clerk has always in practice appointed a Deputy, with the approval of the Council called his Chief Assistant.—ED.

maintain this right of appointment; and whether the present Town Clerk can appoint a Deputy.

The present Town Clerk some short time back was elected and sworn Alderman; but was never one of the Senior Aldermen, consequently his office partook of nothing of the judicial character. Attempts are being made to turn him out of the office of Town Clerk, on the ground that, by accepting the office of Alderman, he vacated that of Town Clerk, since they are incompatible.

Your opinion is requested as to whether the present Town Clerk, by accepting the office of Alderman, did vacate the Town Clerkship. If you should be of opinion that he did, then, whether a resigning of the office of Alderman before he was amoved from the Town Clerkship purged the forfeiture so that he may continue to hold it without fear of amotion.

OPINION.

I think there is nothing contrary to Law in the right claimed by the Lord of the Borough and owner of the Castle to appoint whomsoever he pleases to be Constable<sup>1</sup> of the Castle, although the Charters attach to that office certain corporate rights, and although the Charter of King James I. attaches to it the powers of a Justice of the Peace within the Borough. And that the right is well founded, I think appears from the long and undisputed exercise and enjoyment of it.

I do not think that the Constable can be compelled to actual residence within the Borough or within any particular distance from it; but I think that he is bound to attend, when necessary, for the purpose of holding the Quarter Sessions of the Borough, or for swearing in the corporate officers who are required by Charter to be sworn in before him. In the event of his refusal, I think he might be compelled by Mandamus; or, if his refusal should be persisted in, that he might be indicted for refusing to perform the duties of his office. I do not think that the Corporation have any power to amove him from his office; this power seems to me to belong to the Lord of the Borough, who has the right of appointment.

There are certain cases in which a judicial officer may appoint a Deputy, when sanctioned by custom and by the terms of his own appointment. But I think that the Constable of Cardiff Castle cannot lawfully appoint a Deputy to exercise the functions of a Justice of the Peace; which by the Charter of King James I. are assigned to the Constable. I am inclined to think that he might appoint a Deputy to swear in the officers, if that has been the custom, and if it is according to the terms of his own appointment.

If it could be clearly shewn that no such officer as a Town Clerk existed before the Charter of King James I., I should think it probable that the Lord could not support the alledged right of appointment. But if this should appear doubtful, as it probably must do, then I think that the exercise of the right by the Lord for so long a period would be evidence that it had existed ever since the first formation of the Borough; and that it might on that ground be supported.<sup>1</sup>

I think that the present Town Clerk may appoint a Deputy, as has been done in other instances by former Town Clerks.

I should think that the office of a junior Alderman is not incompatible with that of Town Clerk, unless the accounts of the Town Clerk are settled, or his conduct controlled, by the Aldermen; in which case I should think that his acceptance of the office of Alderman would vacate his office of Town Clerk, and that his subsequent resignation of the office of Alderman would not restore him to the office of Town Clerk.

CASE II.

By the Charter of King James I. twelve of the Burgesses are to be elected, in manner mentioned below, Capital Burgesses of the Town of Cardiff. By the same Charter the nomination, election, and swearing in of the Bailiffs, Capital Burgesses and other officers and ministers of the Corporation shall be on the days, times, places and periods, and in such manner and form, as they were wont to be or ought to have been in times past nominated, elected and sworn within the said Town.

[Margin:—This is a singular clause as applied to Capital Burgesses, as I find no mention at all of them before the Charter of James I.—H.A.M.]

The Marquess of Bute is Lord of the Borough, and he and his ancestors always kept back the Charters and endeavoured to make the Borough a Close Borough; but lately copies of the Charters have been obtained and the Burgesses at large wish to throw the Borough open. The oldest book in the Corporation coffers begins in the year 1688;<sup>1</sup> and in the entry of election of officers of the Corporation, such as Bailiffs, Ale Tasters and Serjeants at Mace, Constables of the Town and other officers, which always takes place on the feast of Saint Michael the Archangel (29 September) yearly, there does not appear any entry of the election of a Capital Burgess. And the first entry of the election of a Capital Burgess appears to have been made at a Court of Record in the year 1692, in the following words:—

“Cardiff Vill. Att a Co<sup>m</sup>on Councell held this 15th day of “December 1707. It appearing to us whose names are hereunder “subscribed, that Joseph Hoar, George Pranch and William Murton, “three of the Capitall Burgesses, were deceased; in order to fill up “those Vacancies the Majority of the Choice fell on Will<sup>m</sup> Jones “Jun<sup>r</sup>, Apothecary; Pethuel Sheers, Mercer; John Jones, ffarmer. “Witness our Hands—Alex<sup>r</sup> Purcell, Nath<sup>l</sup> Wells, Bailiffs; Cra. “Wells, Sen<sup>r</sup> Alderman; W<sup>m</sup> Jones, Alex<sup>r</sup> Pursell, Jo<sup>n</sup> Archer, “Lewis Cox, Em<sup>el</sup> Miles, Aldermen; Jn<sup>o</sup> Rowbotham, Mich<sup>l</sup> “Richards, James Jones: William Jones Jun<sup>r</sup> was accordingly

"first Sworne & Admitted one of the twelve Capitall Burgesses
 "in Open Councill the s<sup>d</sup> 15th day of Dec<sup>r</sup> 1707. Imediatly after"wards Pethuel Sheers was in like manner Sworne & Admitted one "of the s<sup>d</sup> Twelve the same day; & afterwards John Jones was in "like manner Sworne and Admitted; Alex<sup>r</sup> Purcell, Nath. Wells;

From that period it seems to have been the usage of the Common Council to appoint Capital Burgesses themselves, without consulting the Burgesses at large,<sup>1</sup> and at all periods of the year as a vacancy happens; and that they consider the office of a Capital Burgess to be for life. The Aldermen elect and fill up vacancies of Aldermen from Capital Burgesses only, and this appears to have been the usage from the year 1716. But prior to 1716 it does not appear whether the persons from time to time elected Aldermen were previously Capital Burgesses or not.

By this means the Lord of the Borough having at one time obtained a majority of votes in the Common Council (which he still retains), has the sole management of the Borough. And so little did the Lords attend to the interests of the Corporation, that in 1722 an illiterate man was appointed Bailiff<sup>2</sup>

On a late vacancy of Capital Burgess, happening by death, a Common Council was held for appointing another. It was then contended by some of the Council that the election of a Capital Burgess ought to be made by the Burgesses at large, and on the 29th of September; but the majority proceeded to election.

[Margin:—"That was in direct contravention of the proviso in the Charter of R<sup>d</sup> Duke of Gloucester.—H. A. M."]

Your opinion is requested 1st whether the Capital Burgesses ought to be elected annually, and if so on what day.

OPINION.

1. I am of opinion that the Capital Burgesses are not required to be elected annually. The early Charters do not mention them. The Charter of James I. refers their election to the former usage, although there is no trace of the existence of such a body before that Charter. The entries cited raise the inference that the election was not annual, and show that the Capital Burgesses were not elected with the other annual officers at Michaelmas. The first entry of election of Capital Burgesses, in 1692, is in August, and not on the usual day of election. That in 1707 is in December, and purports to be an election for the purpose of filling up the vacancies of three who were dead. This goes a great way to negative an annual election; unless the three persons had died in the course of the year, which is not probable. Under these circumstances, and there being no provision in the Charter for the election at any particular period, nor any limitation of time for which they should be appointed, I think it must be taken to be (according to the general Law) an appointment for life—particularly as by the Charter the Aldermen are to be so elected.

Secondly, in whom is the Election of Capital Burgesses?

2. As the Charter is so obscurely worded with regard to the election of Capital Burgesses, referring in the first place to a mode of election to be afterwards mentioned, and in the subsequent part directing the election to be made according to the former usage—although the Capital Burgesses appear to be then for the first time appointed—this question seems to be involved in much doubt.

The first entry, in 1692, is silent as to the electors. That of 1707 describes the election as at a Common Council; which, coupled with the subsequent usage, would go a great way to give the right of electing the Capital Burgesses to the Common Council. On the other hand, although the Common Council, who are part of the Burgesses, have elected, that fact does not of itself clearly negative the right of the rest of the Burgesses to vote; and the latter passage in the Charter might be construed to refer the election of Capital Burgesses to the former usage as to other elections. If this be the proper construction, then all the elections being (prior to that Charter) in the Burgesses at large, that of Capital Burgess would fall into the same hands. And as the general principles of Law are in favour of the general right, and against that of the select body, I think the latter ought not to be upheld, notwithstanding the usage which is of no avail unless it is supported by a Charter or Bye Law proved or to be preserved. Nor could the Common Council, who are not the representatives of the Burgesses at large, but created by the Crown, make a bye-law to exclude the body at large from the right of election.

Fifthly, your opinion is also requested whether (notwithstanding the usage to the contrary) the Aldermen may fill up vacancies of Aldermen from the Burgesses at large; or must it be from the Capital Burgesses?

5. The words of James the First's Charter being general, "that 12 of the Burgesses shall be Aldermen"; and there being in that Charter nothing to confine the election to those of the Common Council, but on the contrary the clause for their future elections stating generally "that they should be chosen out of the Burgesses"; and the prior Charter of Queen Elizabeth having also generally directed that the Aldermen should be "12 of the more sufficient & discreet of the Burgesses" (those appointed in that Charter being also merely described as Burgesses, and that before the creation of the select body of the Capital Burgesses by the Charter of James), I am of opinion that the mere usage since 1716, of electing the Aldermen from the Capital Burgesses, is not sufficient to negative the unlimited right of the Aldermen to elect from the body of the Burgesses at large, as inferred from the circumstances stated before. I conceive therefore that the Aldermen may fill up their vacancies from the body at large, and are not restricted to an election from the Common Council alone.

Sixthly, the Lord of the Borough has so far back as 1692 appointed the Constable of the Castle:—

"Cardiff Villa. In Guildhall Ville pred', Vicesimo tercio Die "Marcij Anno Regn' D'ni R's et D'ne Regine Will'i et Marie dei gra' "Angl', Scot', ffranc' et Hib'nie, fidei Defensor', &c. Quinto, Annoq' "D'ni 169 $\frac{2}{3}$ ; Cora' Cradoco Wells et Alexandro Pursell, armigeris, "Ball'is Ville pred'e Necnon Justiciar' D'c'or' D'ni R's et D'ne Regine "ad pacem infra Villa' pred' conseruand' atq' custodiend', et Will'us "Herbert de Gabalva, ar', existen' no'iat' et constitut', per patent' "prenobi's Thome, Comit'is Pembroke et Montgomery, Constabular' "Castri Ville pred', tunc jurat' fuit ad exequend' officiu' Justiciar' "pacis infra Villa' pred' et Lib'tates ej'sd'm." See fol. 5 under the words "but only the Constable aforesaid and Bailiffs of the same Town who shall have been elected by the Burgesses themselves." Some of the Burgesses contend the appointment of the Constable to be in the Burgesses.

Your opinion is further requested whether the Lord or the Burgesses have the appointment of the Constable.

Ought the Constable to reside within or within reach of the town?

It has been the usage for the Constable to appoint a Deputy for the purpose of swearing in the officers of the Corporation. Has he by Law such power, he being a magistrate?

6. In all probability an enquiry into the early history of the Constableness of the Castle of Cardiff would clearly establish that the Lord had the appointment of the Constable.<sup>1</sup> And, from the description of that officer in the Charter of Hugh le Despenser, as well as in the subsequent Charters, I think it seems clear that he was the officer of the Lord. I see no reason for supposing that the Burgesses have any right to appoint him. The usage, as evidenced by the document of 1692 seems to give the appointment to the Lord, and the words of the Charter of Hugh le Despenser do not appear to me to contradict that usage. The exclusion of all the Lord's officers but the Constable and Bailiffs of the Town, "who shall have been elected by the Burgesses themselves," appears to be open to the construction that the latter words should be applied only to the Bailiffs, and not to the Constable. For the Charter gives the election of Bailiffs to the Burgesses, but not that of the Constable, who seems to be described as officer of the Lord.

Neither do I see any reason why the Constable should reside. He no doubt formerly resided in the Castle, which probably is out of the jurisdiction of the Borough<sup>2</sup> He is directed by the early Charters to be the Mayor; but the Bailiffs and Aldermen are to have the government of the Town, he only holding the Court, which, by the Charter of James I., is now to be held before the Bailiffs and Aldermen with the assistance of the Steward. It should be observed that the Bailiffs, Aldermen and Burgesses were not incorporated till the Charter of James I, and the Constable is not a member of the Corporation created by that Charter.

The Constable of Cardiff being a Magistrate, and as such a judicial officer, cannot by Law appoint a general deputy.<sup>1</sup> It may be another question whether he could appoint a deputy to do any particular ministerial act. But I am of opinion that he could not appoint a deputy for the purpose of swearing in the officers of the Corporation, the Charter expressly requiring that the Aldermen shall take their oaths before the Constable, & saying nothing of a Deputy. And, whatever the usage may have been, I conceive that any Aldermen sworn in before any person but the Constable is not duly admitted into his office.

As it is stated to me that the Burgesses are desirous of throwing the Borough open, I should observe that it appears there were Burgesses in Cardiff as early as the 17th of Edward II. ; and in none of the subsequent Charters is there any power given of enrolling, making or creating them. The consequence of which is, that the power of making them must now be the same as it was in the reign of Edward II. ; which in all probability was, by inrolling the inhabitant householders in the Resiant Roll at the Leet, and swearing them to their allegiance there. If there are any documents of the Court Leet now in existence to prove that such was originally the mode of election, it seems to me to be still the proper legal course, notwithstanding the select body of the Corporation may have assumed to themselves any unauthorized power of admitting Freemen.

The election of the Aldermen being expressly given by the Charter to the Aldermen themselves, and that of the Capital Burgesses being so doubtful, there appears at present no mode of opening the Borough but by ascertaining who the Burgesses ought to be, or by claiming for the Burgesses at large the right of annually electing the two Bailiffs from the Aldermen ; which it would appear ought to be done by the Aldermen and Burgesses at large, according to the provision in the Charter of Richard, Duke of Gloucester, and the clause in the Charter of Isabella, Countess of Worcester. As I believe the Bailiffs are the Returning Officers at Cardiff, this must, I conclude, be a material consideration.

<sup>1</sup> Counsel evidently was not aware that the Lord of Cardiff Castle was himself the Constable ; and that he, therefore, had not the appointment of the Constable, but only of the Deputy. (See Particulars for the Grant to Sir Wm. Herbert, and more particularly the Survey of 1666.)—Ed.

FURTHER CASE. III.

So far as can be collected from memory of man and the Books and Minutes of the Corporation in the Town Clerk's Office, it appears to have been the custom for the Bailiffs for the time being to admit and swear in Burgesses at their pleasure, and to exact such sums for admission as they thought proper. Indeed it is said that at one time the Bailiffs would individually, and at all times and places, even in public houses, grant freedoms to any they pleased. This was corrected by the Common Council in 1762. By custom the son of every Freeman (if his father was a Freeman at the son's birth) is at the age of 21 entitled to his freedom. Marrying a Freeman's daughter, or serving apprenticeship to a Freeman entitles a resident to his freedom. Honorary freedoms are also granted. The Bailiffs and Steward are accustomed from time to time to hold Quarter Sessions for the Town, upon which occasions the Grand Jury present the boundaries of the Town, and the various nuisances, &c. In 1656 the following Presentment was made:—

“Cardiff Towne. Presentment of the Grand Jury of the Towne “and lib'tie of Cardiff according to the Articles to them given in “charge, made and delivered the eighth daie of february in the yeare
“of our Lord God 1656, at the Guildhall of the said Towne, before “Rice Davies and John ffenwell esquires, Bayliffs of the said Towne, “upon their Oaths whose names are hereunto subscribed, that is to “saie Roger Sheere, Alderman; John Wollvin and John Price, “Common Attorneys of the said Towne; Nathaniell Wells; Rice “Williams; John Hengott; George Evans; Lewis Jones the elder; “Lewis Coxe; Morgan Jones; Giles Morgan; Edward Edwards; “Cradock Wells; James Jones; Richard Waters; Rice Williams,

“mercer, and Griffith Lewis (inter alia) intruders upon the liberties of the said Towne.”<sup>1</sup>

And it has been the practice from that day to the present, whenever Quarter Sessions are held (which of late years is very seldom) so to present; but we have never seen any presentment of persons entitled to the freedom.

The first entry we find of the election of Burgesses is made in the Book of Proceedings of the Town Court, held every fortnight under the Charter of James; which also contains entries of the election of officers on Michaelmas Day. It is as follows:—

“Cardiff Villa. In le Guildhall Ville pred’ Quinto die Martij Anno Regn’ D’ni R’s et D’ne Regine Willi’ et Marie dei gra’ nunc Angl’ &c. Primo Annoq’ D’ni 1688. Cora’ Benjamin Browne et Cradock Nowell Armigeris Ball’ Vill’ pred’ sec’d’m Consuetud’ Elecc’o’ Burgen’ ejusd’m Ville Emmanuel Jones Gen’ tunc jurat’ fuit in Burgen’ Ville pred’ et Solvit pro Lib’tate p’r man’ &c. “iijjs. iiijd.”<sup>2</sup>

The next was on 3 October 1689, and the fine was 20s.

In 1708 the following appears:—

“Att a Comon Councill held in the Guildhall this 22nd of March 1708. . . . And whereas sev’al persons have been & may be hereafter admitted Burgesses of the s<sup>d</sup> Towne who are not or shall not be resident in the same Towne and may hereafter p’tend to be exempt from payment of Toll wthin the said Towne to the great p’judice of the Inhabitants paying Scott and Lott, for preventing whereof It is Ordered that all such Out Burgesses or Honorary Burgesses who by themselves or their Servants shall insist upon the Imunities & Priviledges of Burgesses shall be lyable and charged with bearing & paying towards the reliefe of the Towne and other Charges incident to the said Towne.”

<sup>2</sup> “Can it be ascertained whether Jones was a resident or not?—H. A. M.” He was, no doubt.—Ed.

This is the first entry of the sort in the books in the Town Clerk's possession.

On 27 September 1745 there were seven admitted, who were all outdwellers.

1762. "Cardiff Town to wit. Att a Court of Common Council held for the "said Town of Cardiff aforesaid in the Council Chamber of the said Town the 22<sup>d</sup> day
"of December in the Year of Our lord 1762 to Consider of divers and sundry matters
"of and Concerning the said Town and for the Well Government of the said Town,
"We the Bailiffs and several Aldermen and Capital Burgesses duly Summoned and "assembled in Council as aforesaid being the Major part of the said Common Council
"do hereby Unanimously Agree that Whereas it hath been usual and customary for "One of the Bailiffs of the said Town to swear such persons Freemen or Burgesses of "the said Town at such times or places as he thought proper And Whereas the "Original intention of all Guildes or Communityes were that the Burgesses or "freemen should be Admitted and Sworn into the said Guild in an open and publick
"manner It is therefore hereby unanimously Ordered and Ordained by the Common "Council assembled that from henceforth no person or persons shall be Admitted or "Sworn a Burgess or Freeman of the said Town but such as shall be approved by "the said Bailiffs of the said Town and by them sworn as such in the Town Hall of "the said Town at some public Court of Record of the said Town held for the said "Town hereby Ordaining that this Ordinance shall no ways impeach the right or "validity of any Burgess or Freeman already sworn as such but hereby fully "Confirming the same."

Since that time it appears that they have been admitted on Court days and before the two Bailiffs; and on the last Election for the Borough the Court adjourned to the day of Election, and kept it open by adjournments during the Election, for the purpose of admitting Burgesses entitled to their freedom. And it is stated by old Burgesses that this was the practice at former Elections.

In the above cited Town Book the Churchwardens' and Overseers' Accounts are kept for several years and audited. Also there are several entries on parish business, and it appears as if the Town was completely under the control of the Corporation.

The documents prior to 1688 are in the hands of the Marquess of Bute, who is the Lord of the Borough and also the Lord Lieutenant of the County of Glamorgan, and brother to one of the candidates for the Borough. The Bailiffs, who are under the Marquess' influence, have lately made the Lieutenant Colonel of the Militia and all the staff of the Militia Honorary Freemen.

OPINION.

A custom for the Bailiffs to admit and swear Burgesses at their pleasure I believe to be bad, if the Court could be induced to consider the question.

So also, if the subject was properly investigated, it would be found that it is not by any particular local custom that the sons of Freemen, or the husbands of Freemen's daughters, or apprentices are free, but it is by the general Law of the land.

The same investigation would establish that the admission and swearing of what are called Honorary Freemen, that is, persons not residing in the place, are illegal.

The Quarter Sessions, considering the matters presented by the Jury, will, I have no doubt, upon proper enquiry and accurate search, be found to be also the Court Leet; and the ancient title of the Court will, I imagine, be found to have been "Sessio Pacis et Curia Domini Regis."<sup>1</sup>

If the Sessions are not duly and regularly held, the Bailiffs should be compelled by Mandamus to hold them.

Though there may be no Presentment of any persons as entitled to their freedom, if there are any ancient records of the Borough or of the Court Leet, the Rolls of Resiants will probably be found to contain, when compared with the Parish Books, the names to the returns to Parliament, and other public documents of the same date, the names of all the inhabitants, and to include no non-residents.

As to the entries of 1688 & 1689, they were most probably at a Court Leet. It should, if possible, be ascertained whether Emmanuel Jones was before or after the time of his admission a householder in the Borough.<sup>2</sup>

I think the variation in the fine very important, as I have no doubt for the admission of strangers they might take what fine they thought proper in each case.

The entry of 1708 must, in whatever view it is taken, be an illegal act, and was no doubt one of those irregularities which occur too often in the proceedings of Corporations. It assumes the admission of non-resident Burgesses, which I believe to be illegal. This proceeding was about 17 or 18 years after the publication of Dr. Brady's book, which was written for the purpose of supporting the right of the select bodies and the nonresidents. This entry speaks of the prejudice of the inhabitants paying Scot and Lot. Why is their prejudice to be considered, unless they are the persons entitled to the benefit of the Corporation? And if the Out Burgesses are entitled to the privileges of the place, why should they be obliged to bear the burthens of the place, to which, not residing there, they were not otherwise liable? And if they were not entitled to the privileges of the place, how could the Corporation by such an Order give them those privileges? It seems therefore quite clear that neither in the one way nor in the other can this Order be legal. And on the whole I think it goes rather to negative the right of the Out Burgesses, than to affirm it.

I conceive that every inhabitant householder was entitled to exercise his trade in the place where he resided, and consequently that any regulation to restrain him from so doing was a regulation in restraint of trade, and void. I am therefore of opinion that the entry of 1715 must be supposed to apply to some new comers who had not been inrolled as inhabitants.

The causes of the disfranchisements in 1736 not being stated, it is impossible to express a decided opinion upon them. The Corporation have certainly as incident the power of disfranchising, but it must be for just and legal cause.

The admission of Outdwellers in 1745 I believe to be contrary to the Common Law. I see no power of admitting them given by any of the Charters; and I think no bye-law could properly give such a power, nor any usage sanction it.

The fee for marrying the daughter of a Freeman I believe to be illegal, as being in restraint of marriage. The claim of the wine I presume is clearly so, and would go a great way to show that the whole is irregular.

The entry of 1758 is only material to raise the inference that Burgess and Freeman were synonymous terms. I think they meant the inhabitant householders; otherwise this forfeiture might attach upon an inhabitant keeping an open shop in his own house, which would be in direct restraint of trade.

The entry in 1762 seems to be consistent with the Common Law. The persons to be sworn in were certainly to be in one sense subject to the approval of the Bailiffs; because no person outlawed, convicted of any infamous crime, minors, lunatics or villains ought to be admitted. And these facts were to be determined upon by the Bailiff, under his oath of office and his general responsibility, not arbitrarily. Which is apparent on this ground, if not on any other, namely, that the Order is general; and yet it is acknowledged that the sons of Freemen, apprentices &c. have a right to be admitted. Even their right, however, must be subject to the approval of the Bailiff with respect to the particulars mentioned before; which approval must be regulated by a sound discretion, as is apparently recognized by the Order itself, which, requiring publicity, allows that the publick have an interest in the due exercise of the judgment or approval of the Bailiffs.

If the documents in the hands of the Marquis of Bute are the records of the Sessions of the Peace, or of the Court Leet, any inhabitant of the Town, under the jurisdiction of those Courts, is entitled to the inspection of them, and may enforce the right by Mandamus. Or, if they are documents belonging to the Corporation, any Corporator is entitled to see them, and may enforce his right in the same way.

After perusing all the Charters, I am satisfied that the legal Burgesses of Cardiff are the inhabitant householders, enrolled and sworn. There can be no reasonable doubt that they were the Burgesses to whom the Charter of William La Zouche, Lord of Glamorgan, was granted. And I find nothing in the subsequent Charters which directs that any other class of persons should be Burgesses, or that any of the inhabitant householders should be excluded from being so. The Charter of the Earl of Worcester describes the Burgesses as residing within the Borough, and contradistinguishes them from strangers; while the Charter of the Earl of Warwick contradistinguishes them from persons dwelling without the Town. The Charters of the Jameses are expressed to be granted unto the Burgesses and inhabitants, which some have supposed to imply that these two classes were distinct. But, from an inspection of a variety of old Charters, I am satisfied that it only means "Burgesses inhabiting." [Several cases are quoted in support of this construction.]

If the late admission of Burgesses was not at a public Court of Record, I am of opinion a Rule Nisi for a Quo Warranto against them would be granted. If they were admitted at such a Court, still, if they were admitted corruptly, for sinister purposes, I think the Court would grant a criminal information against the Bailiff for having so admitted them. If no corrupt motive can be made out, still, if these Burgesses have been admitted in such number and under such circumstances as materially to affect the rights of the other Burgesses, then, on the application of one of the present Burgesses, I think the Court ought to grant a Quo Warranto against the Bailiff, though I should add that no such has been granted of late years.

I can only say that an application to the Court, stating the circumstances under which those individuals were admitted, ought in my opinion to induce the Court to grant either a Quo Warranto to try their titles, or a Mandamus to the Corporation to amove them. One or the other should be granted, or the subject is left without a remedy and the prerogative of the Crown set at nought by its Charters being perverted with impunity.

[Counsel concludes by recommending certain legal proceedings of a parliamentary and electoral nature, with a view to annulling the privileges of the nonresident Burgesses,]

CASE IV.

Rehearses the various Land and Sea Tolls and the freehold properties possessed by the Corporation. "The Corporation also take upon themselves the repairs of the public Quay, also appoint Water Bailiffs or Conservators for superintending the navigation of the Port; and they at the expence of the Corporation repair and scour the river, and place buoys down, for the more commodious and safe navigation; and formerly they had a very extensive wall and dyke surrounding the Town to keep in repair."<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> "There can be no real doubt but that the inhabitants were originally subject to all these & many other expences of the Town.—H. A. M."

All the Sworn Burgesses are exempt from the payment of any of the above impositions or dues. It has hitherto been so managed that there are no funds in hand, as the whole revenue is laid out in repairs &c. of the before mentioned works and in the general improvement of the Town.<sup>1</sup>

There are two Common Attorneys appointed by the Corporation annually<sup>2</sup>; their accounts are settled by the Bailiffs, and the expenditure of the revenue is under the controul of the Common Council.

Lately, on a Court day before the two Bailiffs, many honorary and nonresident Burgesses were among those admitted. They are very extensive farmers, and are in the habit of sending their corn to Cardiff for sale; and they now claim an exemption from paying toll, as being admitted and sworn Freemen; so that the revenues of the Corporation this year and hereafter will be much injured.

The several persons lately sworn Freemen or Burgesses of Cardiff were sworn at a Court held by the two Bailiffs; but the Steward was not present, which by the Charter of James II. he ought to have been. It is now contended that they were not sworn at a legal Court, as that Charter expressly directs that the Steward shall be one to hold the Court.

It is anticipated the Bailiffs will contend that the Charter of King James II. was granted just before the rebellion, and that it was never acted upon, and that the Corporation do not consider they are bound by it; for that the Corporation never held the Fair of the 17th of April, and the Steward never attended any of the Courts of Record, and that the Deputy Constable of the Castle never acted as a Justice of the Peace. These three points (excepting the Crown's reservation of the right to displace the officers of the Corporation) are the only difference between the Charters of James I. and James II.

In the memory of man, the only fairs ever held in the Borough of Cardiff are those of 30 June, 19 September and 30 November, on which days there is always a Court of Piepowder holden. There is also a High Market the first Wednesday in April, but no Court of Piepowder therewith.

The first mention of the fortnightly Court occurs in the Charter of Hugh le Despenser, which grants that the Constable shall hold a Hundred Court every fortnight and pleas called Piepowder every day when it shall be necessary. The Charter of James I. directs the holding of the fortnightly Court before the Bailiffs.

The oldest book in the Town Clerk's Office begins in the 1st year of William and Mary, 21 February 1688 [9?] when Benjamin Brown and Cradock Nowell, two of the Aldermen named in King James the Second's Charter, were Bailiffs. On 29 Sept<sup>r</sup> 1689 Jonathan Jones and William Richards, two other Aldermen named in the same Charter, were elected Bailiffs. From 1689 to the present day it appears that the fortnight Courts were held as frequently before one Bailiff as before both Bailiffs; but it does not seem that the Steward ever was present, as no mention is made of his name in the style of the Court. But in 1759 there is an Order of Common Council to oust William Powell esq<sup>e</sup> from the office of Steward, for neglect of duty. [This power of amoval was given to the Bailiffs and Aldermen by the Charter of James I. as well as by that of James II. H. A. M.]

No mention is made of a Deputy Constable in any Charter but that of King James II,<sup>1</sup> and we find the Corporation adopt that Charter in the following instances:—

On 24 January 1759 the Bailiffs and other ministerial officers of the Corporation were sworn into office before a Deputy Constable of the Castle. And on 31 Dec<sup>r</sup> 1763, 17 Feby 1765, 29 Sept<sup>r</sup> 1814 and 4 May 1818, Thomas Morgan, Alderman, was sworn into his office before a Deputy Constable, who also administered to him the Oaths of Allegiance and Abjuration; and this Alderman was admitted by a Mandamus from the Court of King's Bench, which runs as follows:—

1818. "Of Easter Term in the fifty eighth year of King George "the Third. Cardiff. George the Third by the grace of God of the "United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the

<sup>1</sup> "Is there any mention of Deputy Constable before this time? If not I dare say the fact is that in this place as in many others the illegal Charter of James II. was not acted upon after the revolution for many years, and was subsequently revived, perhaps about 1759, to answer the purposes of the ruling body in the Town.—H. A. M."

"Faith. To the Constable<sup>1</sup> of the Castle of Cardiff in our County
 "of Glamorgan. Greeting. Whereas Thomas Morgan the elder, one "of the Burgesses of the Town of Cardiff in our said County of "Glamorgan, hath been duly elected into the place and office of one "of the Aldermen of the said Town of Cardiff, and ought by you to "be sworn into the said place and office. And whereas the said
 "Thomas Morgan, after such his election into the said place and "office, did duly tender and present himself before you the said
 "Constable in order to be by you sworn into the said place and "office, and did then and there in due manner require and demand
 "of you to be sworn into the said place and office; yet you the "said Constable of the said Castle of Cardiff, well knowing the "premises but having no regard for the duty of your office in that "behalf, did then and there without any reasonable cause absolutely "refuse and yet do absolutely refuse to swear the said Thomas
 "Morgan into the said place and office of one of the Aldermen
 "of the said Town of Cardiff, in manifest contempt of Us, and "to the great damage and grievance of the said Thomas Morgan,
 "as We have been informed from his Complaint made to Us in "that behalf. We therefore, being willing that due and speedy
 "Justice may be done to the said Thomas Morgan in this behalf,
 "as it is reasonable, do peremptorily Command you the said Con"stable of the said Castle of Cardiff, firmly enjoining you that,
 "immediately after the receipt of this Writ, you do swear the said
 "Thomas Morgan into the said place and office of one of the "Aldermen of the said Town of Cardiff, and admit him to all the "liberties, privileges, franchises, preeminences and advantages to "the said place and office belonging and appertaining. And how "you shall execute this Writ make known to Us at Westminster
 "on Friday next after the morrow of the Holy Trinity, then "returning to Us this Our Writ. And this you are not to omit on "peril that may fall thereof. Witness, Edward, Lord Ellenborough,
 "at Westminster the twenty ninth day of April in the fifty eighth "year of Our reign. By the Court. Lushington. By Rule of "Court."

<sup>1</sup> "This Mandamus is directed to the Constable, & it is very questionable whether a swearing in before the Deputy Constable was a due execution of the Writ.—H. A. M."

This Mandamus was served on the Constable himself.

[Several other instances are cited of Bailiffs, Aldermen and other officers sworn in before the Deputy Constable, down to 1823.]

The following is stated with a view to draw Counsel's attention to the manner in which the "Burgesses," "men and tenants," "whatsoever inhabitants of the Towns of Cardiff, Cowbridge &c." are to entitle themselves to the benefits granted them by the several Charters. In order to meet any argument of the Corporation's against admitting the inhabitants generally to partake of the grant of exemption from toll throughout the Kingdom (an exemption which many of the sworn Burgesses, being graziers and horse dealers, avail themselves of in many parts of England and Wales when attending fairs and buying cattle &c.), it is to be observed that the inhabitants claiming the privilege do not contend that they are of the Corporate Body to enjoy any of the rights exclusively granted to such Body, such as the piece of land given them to build upon, the tolls taken within the Town, the lands purchased by the Corporation, &c.; but they claim exemption from the payment of toll, murrage &c. in all other parts of England, Ireland and Wales, and contend that they ought to have some document to show that they are inhabitants of the Borough of Cardiff, so as to entitle them.

The first mention of this exemption is in the Charter of Hugh le Despenser, which confines it to the Burgesses of Cardiff.

By the Charter of King Edward II. it is extended to the Burgesses and other men and tenants of Cardiff, Usk and other towns; which is confirmed by the Charters of King Edward III. and King Henry IV.

By that of King Henry VI. it is extended to the Burgesses, men and tenants whatsoever, inhabitants of the Towns of Cardiff, Cowbridge, Neath and Kenfig, and their successors; which is confirmed by Charter of King Edward IV.

The Charter of Richard, Duke of Gloucester, confirms to the Bailiffs, Burgesses and inhabitants of the said Town all liberties &c. anciently enjoyed by them; and by this grant the Burgesses and inhabitants are treated as the persons in whom the election of Bailiffs is vested.

The Charter of James I. recites that the Burgesses and inhabtants by divers several names have enjoyed divers liberties &c. A Body Corporate is thereby created, & it is further granted that the Burgesses shall enjoy all customs, privileges, franchises, liberties, exemptions, &c. which they had possessed theretofore. This is confirmed by James II.

It is therefore submitted that the inhabitants of Cardiff are entitled to this exemption; but how they are to be placed in a situation to enjoy it, seems the question.

OPINION.

The inhabitants cannot claim this exemption but as Burgesses of Cardiff. But I have no doubt that all the inhabitants, sworn to the oath of allegiance in the Court Leet and enrolled there as inhabitants, are thereby Burgesses and members of the Corporation, which is an incorporation of the inhabitants.

I am of opinion that the Charter of James II. was void in Law,<sup>1</sup> and I think it very doubtful whether it was ever duly accepted, or at all acted upon, till long after the Revolution. I think, therefore, it is a desperate attempt to set up that Charter.

The objection merely on the ground of the absence of the Steward from the Court of Record which swore in the Burgesses is not fit to be relied on.

Every bonâ fide inhabitant householder of free condition is, in my opinion, entitled to be sworn a Burgess; and, as villenage is now abolished, in fact every inhabitant householder is so entitled.

HENRY ALWORTH MEREWETHER,

Chancery Lane,

Jany. 18th, 1825.

21 January 1825. Mr John Wood writes to his London Agent that, since receiving the above Opinion, he has found in the Corporation Books "an entry of all Charters and papers being delivered up from the Bailiffs going out of office, to their successors, in which the Charter of James the Second is mentioned. The first of these entries was made in 1691, and they are continued almost annually till 1712; after which no entries appear, and the Charter is not now among the Corporation papers."

Mr. Merewether thereupon wrote:—"This fact alters my Opinion, of course, as to the Charter having been accepted, as it "raises a strong inference that it was accepted. But I am still "strongly inclined to think that the Charter was illegal and void, "though I do not think this materially affects the present question.

CASE V.

William Stanley has carried on business in the Borough of Cardiff as a Hatter, for these last nine years, and has during that period sold goods in the public Market; he himself, as well as all others, erecting every market day their own standing in the street. About a year and a half ago ["Xmas 1823"] a person calling himself Collector of the Corporation Tolls for the first time demanded 4*d.* for Corporation dues. Stanley having never paid this before or ever heard of it, refused. He refused also on the following days, on which the same was demanded. And on each of such successive dates the Collector and Constables seized one of his hats.

A Toll of 1*d.* is admitted to have been paid from time immemorial to the Serjeant at Mace, and no other; and the oldest persons in the Town, who have stood the Market between 30 and 40 years last past, never paid any other toll but 1*d.*, nor was any other ever demanded of them. The demand of 4*d.* (and 3*d.* and 2*d.* of some persons) was made for the first time in September 1823, in consequence, it is supposed, of the following circumstances:

A Mr. Vachell has built a Market House in Cardiff, and many persons have left the old standings in the street (which they always erected themselves) and occupied those erected by Mr. Vachell in his Market House. The toll of 4*d.* was soon for the first time demanded in the street also.

The King's Charter to Hugh le Despenser grants "that he and his heirs and their Burgesses & other men and tenants of Cardiff" shall be free for all their things and goods, to wit as well merchandizes as other things, from (inter alia) toll, stallage and pikeage, throughout England &c. (the customs of wool, leather, woolfells and wines only excepted).

Mr. Stanley, although not a Burgess, considers that as an inhabitant of Cardiff, paying all taxes and manufacturing his goods in the Town, he comes within the meaning of the Charter.

OPINION.

1323. Edward the Second's Charter to Hugh le Despenser the younger beyond all question makes the goods and merchandizes, not only of the Burgesses but also of the other men and tenants of Cardiff and the other places mentioned in it, free from toll, stallage and pickage.

In 1340 Hugh le Despenser granted to the Burgesses of Cardiff that they and their heirs should be discharged and free (inter alia) from toll and pickage; and the same Charter grants that the Burgesses shall be "free by their liberties to sell all such things they have for sale to any person or persons and at such times they please without any impediment." There can be no doubt this must be construed as granted equally to the "other men and tenants."

Thomas le Despenser, in a Charter reciting those of Hugh and Edward le Despenser, grants also to the Burgesses and their successors that pleas of Forestalling and Homesoken should be pleaded before the Constable and determined in the Hundred Court. Like the others, this Charter must be construed as granted equally to the other men and tenants.

Henry IV. confirmed the Charter of Edward II. & Edward III. to the "Burgesses and men" of the Town of Cardiff. The term "men" I conceive extends to all the inhabitants.

Isabella, Countess of Worcester, granted to the Burgesses & their heirs and successors certain additional privileges, some of which treat the Burgesses as distinct from strangers. I think that the fair inference from this Charter is that it was intended to apply to all the inhabitants of the place.

The Charter of Richard Neville, Earl of Warwick, is still more decisive; for it grants to the "Burgesses and resiants" the privilege (inter alia) that if any person shall be willing to come to the Town to stay and reside there, he shall be subject only to the local jurisdiction. The term Resiant is appropriate to the suitors of the Court Leet, who are all the inhabitants of the place; and none can be exempt from that suit.

King Henry VI. confirms the prior Charters to "whatsoever Burgesses, men and tenants residents in the Towns of Cardiff, Cowbridge," &c.

Elizabeth's confirmation is nominally to the Mayor and Bailiffs. But this should by necessary intendment include all the inhabitants; and this Charter is a strong instance to show that such instruments cannot be construed by their strict words.

This construction of the ancient Charters is supported by the recital of that of James I., that the "Burgesses and inhabitants" had immemorially enjoyed divers liberties, customs &c.; which is a distant recognition of the right of the inhabitants to enjoy at least some of the privileges of the place. And the general clause of confirmation at the close of that Charter confirms all the privileges which had been previously enjoyed, in the fullest language and without one word to show any intention either to curtail the privileges or the number of the persons who were to enjoy them.

I therefore think that not only the Burgesses but all the inhabitants are included in the grant of exemption from tolls.

NOTE.—This does not conclude the Opinion, as the book finishes in two more leaves, which are missing, and one at least of which bore writing, down to the bottom of the second side. The book is a quarto paper volume, bound in boards. It was purchased in 1895 by the Records Committee of the Cardiff County Council, for six guineas, of Mr. Alewyn Evans, Carmarthen; who had bought it at a sale of the effects of the late Edward Priest Richards, formerly Town Clerk of Cardiff.

CHAPTER V.

Gaul Files.

DOCUMENTS of this class supply historical data of the greatest interest. It is much to be wished that the series of Gaul Files for this County were more complete than it is, for there are many lacunae; but the student of local history may be congratulated on the fact that the series begins at the period when the laws of Wales were assimilated to those of England, and that, on the whole, it preserves a continuity which is remarkable if we consider the vicissitudes which our local muni-ments have undergone.

The earliest document of the series is a Gaul Calendar of the year 1542. A translation of the heading is given, to serve as an example, the later ones being prefaced by almost the same words. Needless to say, these records were written in Latin, down to about 1740. From this heading it will be seen that, in the reign of Henry VIII., criminals were imprisoned in the King's Castle of Cardiff. The old Welsh Court of Great Sessions for Glamorgan-shire was held alternately at Cardiff, Swansea and Cowbridge. The bundle for each session consists, when complete, of the following documents:—

1. Writ to the Sheriff, commanding the holding of the Session.
2. Writ to the Sheriff, Bailiffs, Constables &c., for the arresting and detaining of the various offenders.
3. Examinations of the offenders and witnesses, by the Justices of the Peace.
4. Recognizances for the appearance of witnesses, and of offenders released on bail.
5. Presentments of the Grand Jury.
6. Coroners' Inquests.
7. Indictments, endorsed by the Grand Jury either "Billa vera," or "Ignoramus." (True Bill, or No True Bill).
8. Calendar of Gaol Delivery, with particulars of each prisoner, the charge against him, the committing magistrate, the names of witnesses, &c.
9. Bills and receipts for expenses in connection with the Gaol, executions, prisoners' keep, travelling, &c.
10. Calendar of persons holding the Commission of the Peace within the County, also of the Stewards of Lordships, the Coroners, and the Bailiffs and Constables of Hundreds and Towns.

The last is written on a skin of parchment of ample dimensions, which, coming after the others, forms a cover in which the rest are rolled up, the roll being then tied with thin strips of parchment which at the same time connect them all together at the top. All the abovementioned documents are written in Latin on parchment—except the bills of expenses, which are of course always, and the Justices Examinations and Recognizances, which are sometimes, in English on paper. In very many cases the papers are wholly or partly torn away, and the parchments are often decayed through damp or eaten by rats.

Under date 1555 will be found a Coroner's Inquest on the body of Thomas Avan, gentleman, whom the Jury found to have been feloniously stabbed and murdered by two men in a brawl in "Weaststrete," Cardiff. Such sanguinary affrays were common at this period; other instances occur later in these records. At the head of this document we have set out the full style and title of the King and Queen, Philip and Mary, it being by far the most imposing and picturesque ever borne by a sovereign of England. The "Weaststrete" above named was Waste Lane, now the northern half of Working Street. In cases of this kind, the record always states the money value of the instrument which was the immediate cause of the victim's death (whether by wilful homicide or misadventure); because under the Common Law such instrument, or its value, was forfeited to the Crown, under the name of a "deodand." The history and significance of this ancient legal provision would furnish material for an interesting volume of antiquarian lore. Nothing can be more tantalising to the reader than the absence from the dry technicalities of these criminal proceedings, of any particulars explaining the motives and origin of such crimes as the one above referred to. It would be interesting to know how Mr. Avan had drawn upon himself the deadly enmity of the men who assassinated him in the streets of Cardiff in broad daylight.

In 1563 the Coroner's Inquest returns a verdict of wilful murder against Edward Vaughan of Llandough-by-Penarth, gentleman, William Vaughan of Roath, gentleman (accessory), and others, for the death of Philip Robin of Lavernock, yeoman. From our transcript of one of the Exchequer Commissions, in Vol. I., p. 396, it will be seen what was the landed property of Edward Vaughan, which was forfeited for his felony after he had escaped from the district.

In 1564 we have the record of the burning of two women for murder and treason.

In the same year Rice Jones of Cardiff, gentleman, was indicted for trespass and affray. In 1576 we find that he was killed by Rice Herbert of St. Andrew's, gentleman, who received a general pardon.

Under date 1576 is the first example of the long persecution of Catholics, which continued with great severity until Elizabeth's death, and lasted, with but few intervals, down to the early part of the 18th century. In the same year we have the earliest instance of that cruel treatment of the very poor, which is such a blot upon the pages of history following upon the Reformation. Jane Powell, of Cardiff, and several other paupers, were sentenced to be flogged and branded for no other reason than that they appeared to have no means of earning a living—such a condition being “against the form of the Statute in the like case published.” The Criminal Law of England, as revised by King Henry VIII., was the most ferociously cruel of any penal code in Christendom. It was felony to steal anything of greater value than 5s., and the punishment of felony was death by hanging, for men, and by drowning for women. The pettiest misdemeanours were visited with the whipping-post, the pillory and the stocks. For petty treason (e.g., for poisoning her husband) a woman was liable to be either burned or boiled. The penalty for high treason was to be hanged, drawn and quartered—which in plain terms means disembowelled alive—and, as the exercising of the functions of a Catholic priest was by Statute declared to be high treason, this was the punishment allotted to clergymen of the Ancient Church in this country. Altogether, the England of the Tudors was an uncomfortable abode for persons placed, either by conscience or criminality, in a position of antagonism to the laws.

About this time many persons were presented for the following statutory offences:—

For unlawful games in their houses.

For evil conversation in their houses.

For selling beer without licence.

For being pedlars against the form of the Statute.

For incontinence.

For playing games during the time of divine service.

For affrays in churchyards.

The last, a common offence at this period, was sometimes the result of wakes or church-ales, and sometimes was caused by the forcible burial of deceased Catholics with Protestant rites.

In 1584 eleven strangers were tried at Cardiff for piracy, and a Gelligaer man was presented “for playing at tennis in the time of the Service.” The old custom of Sunday ball-playing in the churchyard was still maintained, though it was destined in the end to be suppressed by the growth of Puritanism.

In 1587 three Cardiff labourers were tried for felony; two of them were hanged, but the third escaped through benefit of clergy. This means that, it being his first offence, the man, before he could be sentenced, asked for a book, proved that he could read, and so was let off with branding on the hand.

In 1588 the Bailiffs of Cardiff were presented "for permitting sorcerers." At this time, and during the reign of James I. and the Commonwealth, many persons were prosecuted for witchcraft, and great numbers (women especially) were put to death as convicted witches. It was the contemporary form of the never-dying paganism, which in the sixties of the present century shewed itself in table-turning and spirit-rapping, and in the nineties has taken the shape of "materialisations" and Mahatmas.

Under date 1592 the high road across Glamorgan, through Cardiff and Cowbridge, is called by its ancient name of the Portway—a late occurrence of the term—and Cardiff bridge, which we now know as Canton bridge, is named Sterton bridge, i.e., as we should now write it, Plasturton bridge. One of the Cardiff streets this year presented as being in want of repair is "the high way between the high cross and the middle pinion"; this means High Street and Saint Mary Street, from between the High Street and Castle Arcades to a point near the Theatre Royal. The Middle Pinion was the old vicarage of Saint Mary's, and was the house at the south end of the middle row which stood in Saint Mary Street.

Under 1593 we have a curious entry relative to the carrying of arms to the fairs and markets, from which it would appear that this practice was illegal, but tolerated as a general custom. For the same year there is an interesting and, so far as Cardiff is concerned, an unique record of the archery butts which had to be officially provided for the encouragement of shooting with bow and arrows.

Next year, 1594, a man is presented for the obnoxious and then doubtless common offence of eavesdropping, i.e., listening at his neighbours' doors and casements for the purpose of prying into their private affairs.

About this time the Bailiffs of Cardiff are frequently presented for "suffering dunghills" in the streets of the town, and for not "cawsynge" (i.e., causewaying) the highways. In 1594 the Serjeants at Mace are presented for selling drink, and for not using lawful measures.

In 1594 also occurs our first record of the many deaths in Cardiff gaol, the deceased being John Philpot, a recusant. The prisons were noisome dens of filth and disease, and at this time they were crowded to excess with victims of the penal laws against the Catholics. In 1597 ten prisoners died at one time, and twenty-one later in that year. In 1598 fourteen died, one of whom was James Turberville of Newton Nottage, gentleman (of the ancient family of the Turbervilles of Sker), who had been imprisoned for refusing to conform to Protestantism. Later in 1598 four more prisoners died, one belonging to another branch of the same distinguished family—Mr. Lewis Turberville of Llysfronnydd. In 1602 the Bishop of Llandaff presented nineteen Catholics for non-attendance at church, most of whom lived in the neighbourhood of Margam. In 1615 Nicholas Spencer of Cardiff, gentleman, a Catholic prisoner, died in the gaol there. In 1616 there were twenty-three Crown prosecutions for recusancy, including one of the Turbervilles of Sker; and in 1622 there were twenty-seven, headed by Mr. Matthew Turberville of Newton Nottage. In this case the Catholics prosecuted were people from the Margam district and from the Taff Vale. Even after the accession of King Charles I., viz. in 1628, forty-eight persons were presented for recusancy, in the neighbourhood of Margam, Neath, Cowbridge and Cardiff. Among this batch were members of the Turberville and Began families. Again in 1636, forty-six recusants were summoned, from almost every part of East Glamorgan, including six Turbervilles. In 1661 eighteen Catholics, from around Neath and Cowbridge, were presented for absenting themselves from Protestant worship; the list includes persons of both sexes and all grades. The next and last general harrying of the Papists was in 1679, in connection with Titus Oates' fictitious "Popish Plot," concerning which sufficient is said in the notes which accompany our copy of the documents.

In 1595 Rise Wastell, a Cardiff baker, murdered Llewelyn David. The Wastells were tradesmen of some standing in the town, as may be seen on referring to our Index Nominum; but that there were unruly spirits among them appears from this entry, and also from one under date 1602, when William Wastell was presented for assaulting Ann David at Cardiff.

In 1602 a man pleaded guilty to murdering Lewis Edmond, "at the green between the two bridges." This was presumably Cardiff

Green, between Canton Bridge and the "Little Stone Bridge" crossing the small stream which flowed from the mill-dam into the Taff.

Somewhat comical is the technical formula in which the Coroner frames the verdict concerning the death of Moses Morgan, who, in 1605, was accidentally shot by Morgan Dirick.

In 1614 we have the first two of numerous records of persons accidentally drowned in the Taff. The same year the Wastells were again in trouble, William Wastell's wife being charged with stealing corn.

The following year Henry Edwards of Roath, gentleman, was charged with assaulting Mr. Rice Roberts, one of the Bailiffs of Cardiff.

In 1617 occurs the Coroner's Inquest on the bodies of David Kemeys of Cefn Mabli, esquire, and John Watkin, who were drowned in the Rhyminy when riding home together from Cardiff. The same year Elizabeth Gunter was flogged for stealing something of the value of 10d.

In 1619 there was a faction fight at St. Nicholas, between some men and women of that place and some Caerau men. Most of the latter were members of the Mathews family. The Caerau folks were indicted for riot and assault.

According to a case recorded in the succeeding paragraph, salmon and codfish were at this time valued at 3d. each.

In 1625 (last year of the reign of James I.) will be found the first of a large number of criminal prosecutions for libel, slander and lèse-majesté. In the present instance, the accused is charged with uttering very scandalous words against the private character of the King—all the more dangerous because well founded in fact, for it is a matter of history that James the First was the most vicious of the Stuarts. We have explained, in immediate connection with the text, what is the importance of this class of prosecutions as regards the Welsh language.

Under date 1642 occurs one of the customary fictitious suits for recovery of a debt, in the Town Court of Cardiff, which the record terms the Royal Court of the Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, Lord of the Town.

In 1680 we first meet with an Inquest on the body of a poor miner killed by an accident in a coalpit at Merthyr Tydfil.

The first document we cite for 1688 is the earliest prosecution of a Jacobite, or adherent of the ancient Royal House of Stuart. This faithful supporter of the losing cause was Edward Llewelin of Newton Nottage, gentleman, who was charged with speaking in Welsh against the new government of William of Orange. In stating his opinion that, by raising the Dutch stadtholder to the throne of Great Britain, the Parliament was exceeding its powers, Mr. Llewelin was taking sides in a question of Constitutional Law which, to the end of time, can only be decided in accordance with the political first principles of each individual. How far abstract theories justify the popular action, is a question about which people will disagree to all eternity. Poor Mr. Llewelin's answer thereto involved him in dire pains and penalties, such as wait upon persons who differ from the powers that be.

In 1689 William Bew of Roath, gentleman, got into trouble for abusing one of the Bailiffs of Cardiff in open Court.

In 1690 Mark Jenkins, of Llantrisant, yeoman, was prosecuted for speaking too boldly in favour of the exiled Stuart; as also was Edward Carne of Cowbridge, gentleman, in 1695.

Nicholas Greene, of Cardiff, butcher, in 1696 made himself a nuisance to his neighbour by constructing a bank across a water-course at Canton, thereby causing the water of the Taff to flood the highway and a house and garden. He was presented by the Grand Jury of the County.

In 1698 we have an interesting indictment of William Morgan of Neath, gentleman, for advancing atheistical opinions, which, if the charge was accurate, he expressed in highly offensive terms.

In 1703 are two presentments of various persons for profaning the "Sabbath," viz., by performing on the harp and playing at tennis, in Llanilltern churchyard on a Sunday. The old churchyard sports were suppressed with a strong hand when Puritanism began to be a power in Wales.

It was hard on poor Morgan Samuel, of Llandaff, horse-stealer, the same year, to be charged with escaping from prison "before sentence of death could be executed upon him." Surely the maxim, that self-preservation is the first law of nature, might have exempted him from such a prosecution—which, moreover, would seem somewhat superfluous in the case of a man who was to pay the capital penalty!

In 1705 no less a personage than Mr. John Mathews of Llandaff was presented for catching salmon and trout in the Taff, at Whitchurch and Radyr, by means of "pitches and butts."

The following year, Ann Mathews of Llandaff was drowned by falling into the river Taff from a wooden bridge leading to Llandaff from Cardiff. This was the old Canton bridge.

In 1712 the Grand Jury petitioned the Judges of Great Sessions to forbid the officers of the Court to receive fees for exempting gentlemen from serving on Juries. They also presented the Compounder, for exacting exorbitant rates on Fines and Recoveries in this Court.

In 1714 John Thomas, of St. George's, yeoman, was presented for drinking a health to "the Prince of Wales"—meaning Prince James Edward Stuart. The Grand Jury found No True Bill, presumably on the ground of there being no evidence that the Stuart Prince was the one thus complimented.

An interesting Jacobite case occurred in 1716, when several men of Cardiff and Cowbridge were presented for wearing oak-leaves on the birthday of "the Young Pretender." We give the Presentment almost in full. The same year the Petty Constable of St. Andrew's was presented for suffering people to play tennis on Sunday; and Thomas Williams, of Cardiff, for uttering Jacobite sentiments in very coarse language. The same set of Presentments includes one against two Cardiff men for drinking the health of the exiled Stuart in the then popular couplet:—

"God send our King well home from Lorraine,
And let the man have his mare again."

Edward Purcell, of Cardiff, shoemaker, was presented for "drinking several disaffected healths."

In the next year, 1717, we come upon an important political prosecution, that of Richard Whitmore alias Kavanagh, of Swansea, who is indicted for uttering treasonable words against the Government by saying that James the Third would be placed on the Throne of England, and Derwentwater's blood should be severely revenged; which seditious words he aggravated by then and there traitorously toasting the health of the Pretender. From a document of 1719, which will be found among our extracts from the Records of the Customs Port of Cardiff, a few further particulars may be gathered relative to this case.

In 1720 several Whitchurch labourers were presented for playing at bowls on Sunday.

In 1721 Evan Voss, yeoman, was presented and indicted for drinking King James' health in an inn at Llantwit Major.

In 1735 Michael Richards, who was Town Clerk of Cardiff and a County Justice, was presented for assaulting George Lewis, Esquire, and was bound over to appear at the Quarter Sessions of the Peace.

In 1737 we have indications of a bit of local folklore. It would seem that the Grey Friars in Crockherbtown was haunted by spirits, and in particular by a dread ghost known as "the Bully Dean."

From a Presentment of the Grand Jury in 1738 we learn that the criminals in Cardiff Gaol were confined all together in one room, which was insufficient for the purpose of their detention. The Jury merely recommend the substitution of another room, which seems to have been theretofore used as a brewhouse.

In 1741 note the three Welsh books which were the only personal effects of John Evan, a poor debtor imprisoned in Cardiff Gaol.

In 1745 David Jones, labourer, of Llanfihangel-y-Fedw, pleaded guilty to a charge of publicly uttering words in favour of the Pretender.

It is abundantly evident, from the records above referred to and hereafter more fully set out, that Wales was strongly attached to the House of Stuart, so long as any possible sovereign of the ancient line remained. This traditional loyalty, indeed, is only what was to be expected from the Welsh, as a Celtic people of profoundly conservative sentiment. Nothing but the final predominance of Nonconformity could wean the Principality from its old ways of thinking on this and kindred topics—and by that time the Royal Stuarts had died out.

R.O. Welsh Records. Glamorganshire Gaol Files, &c.

Gaol File.

18 Eliz. 1576.

This year occurs the first record of the prosecution of "recusants," i.e., Catholics who refused to satisfy the law by an occasional attendance at Protestant worship in the parish church. Thus, the Bishop of Llandaff presents divers persons within the jurisdiction of his Court, namely, among others:—

"William Bylson, clerk, in the County of Glamorgan, for that he contumaciously absents himself from the celebration of divine service, and from his parish church, for four years past."

Then follows a long schedule of persons presented in the Bishop's Court, for fornication and adultery.

"Joan Powell, of Cardiff, hath not any lands, neither exerciseth any lawful merchandise, craft or industry, whereby she may gain her livelihood, nor can give a reason or account in what manner she useth to gain her livelihood, against the form of the statute in the like case published." (The Clerk of the Court marks the Presentment "Vagrant. To be flogged and branded.")

Joan Raffe, and five other women and two men, at Cardiff, and a large number in other parts of the country, were similarly adjudged vagrants and sentenced to be flogged and burnt in the hand.

"Jane vergh Thomas, formerly of Llangonoyd, for petty larceny. Judgment, that she be placed in the stocks for two hours in Cardiff market."

Bundle 21. No. 4. 19 Jac. I. 1622.

Twenty-seven persons of both sexes were prosecuted for recusancy. They belonged to Newton Nottage, Cadoxton-juxta-Neath, Colwinston, Eweny, Margam, Pyle and Kenfig, Gellygaer, Eglwysilan, Llanfabon and Llanblethian. The list is headed by the names of Mathew Turberville of Newton Nottage, gentleman, and Alice Turberville, of the same place, spinster. (The Turbervilles of Sker were staunch Catholics, and one or other member of the family was almost continually in prison for his religion during the reigns of Elizabeth and James I.)

Bundle 21. No. 5. 22 Jac. I. & 1 Car. I. 1625.

In 22 Jac. I. there were nine Inquests, with verdict "by the visitation of God," on the bodies of persons who died through disease at Cardiff; two of these were deaths in the gaol. (The gaols at this time were loathsome hotbeds of fever, and imprisonment for any considerable length of time practically meant death. Contagion sometimes spread from the prisoner's dock to the Judge on the bench.)

The Cardiff Grand Jury presented that Thomas William, of Colwinston, yeoman, uttered these treasonable and seditious Welsh words, namely: Mae dy vrenyn yn drewy ger bron Duw yn y bechod val ddoyt tithé William hoell;<sup>1</sup> in English, "Thy king doth stincke before God in his sin as thou dost, William Howell." (22 Jac. I.)

N.B.—Indictments for libellous, slanderous and treasonable writing or speech are almost the only class of public records which furnishes specimens of the Welsh language. It was necessary to set forth the precise words complained of, hence the employment of the vernacular in these documents; which thus possess a peculiar value for students of Welsh, and all the more so because the Welsh they contain is often remarkable for interesting dialectic forms.

Arnold Thomas, of Cardiff, tailor, in endeavouring to ford the Taff on horse-back, was thrown into the water and drowned. (1 Car. I.)

John Crabb, of Pentyrch, was drowned in crossing the Taff.

Bundle 21. No. 7. 4 Car. I. 1629.

Forty-eight persons were presented for recusancy, at Bettws, Margam, Eglwysilan, Llysfronydd, Llanishen (Margaret Thomas), Newton Nottage (three Turbervilles), Tythegston, Pyle (sixteen Turbervilles and Begans), St. Mary's-juxta-Cowbridge, Whitchurch (Miles David, yeoman, and Katherine Thomas, widow), Cadoxton-juxta-Neath, Llanblethian and Colwinston.

Bundle 21. No. 8. 11 Car. I. 1636.

Forty-six persons were summoned for recusancy. Besides the places last above mentioned, the following now presented Catholic parishioners for this offence: Llanedern (William Morgan James), Tilston, Llangeinor, Sker (6 Turbervilles), and Llancarfan.

The s'd Inquest upon their Oath say and Present:—

3. That the Persons hereinafter named, that is to say [here follow the names of 18 Catholics, in the parishes of Cadoxton-juxta-Neath, Llanharry, Llanharan and Llancarfan] Haue absented themselves from their respectiue p'ish churches or chappells to heare diuine seruice & p'forme their duties there vpon Sundayes & other holy dayes for the space of these three moneths last past contrary to the Lawes & statutes in that case made and p'uided.

(Among the recusants at Cadoxton-juxta-Neath is Watkin Richard, harper. Even widows and labourers are included in the list, together with Mathew Gibbon and Hugh Jones, both of Llancarfan, gentlemen. The others are yeomen. This document, the Grand Jury Presentment for the County, is the only one for this year, and consists of one skin of parchment.)

King Charles II. and his Court were by no means ill-disposed towards the Catholics; but when money had to be raised to pay for his public and private extravagances, the "Merry Monarch" was always willing to propitiate the Puritans by a fresh persecution of the unfortunate "Papist Recusants." The next Bundle will furnish us with some melancholy memorials of the bogus "Popish Plot" invented by Titus Oates, when Protestant England went mad with terror over imaginary conspiracies and shed the blood of the hated Catholics like water. Bundle 21, No. 17, consists almost entirely of the documents in connection with the trial of two Catholic priests, Father Philip Evans, a Jesuit, and Mr. John Lloyd, a secular, both Welshmen. For an account of their origin, adventures, trial and heroic deaths the reader is referred to the "Oates Plot" volume of Brother Foley's "Records of the English Province of the Society of Jesus." These two priests were executed as traitors at Cardiff, 22 July 1679, the mode of execution being as follows: First they were dragged on hurdles to the gallows. Then they were hanged for a few moments. Before they were dead they were cut down, disembowelled alive, and dismembered. Although these men underwent the terrible punishment of high treason, it is important to learn, from the Indictments, that what they were charged with was simply that they, being Catholic priests, "came, were and remained" in this country, against the form of the statute. The simple addition of the word proditorie, "treasonably," made the priests traitors. No attempt was made, at their trial, to convict them of actual treason, their "proditio" was purely constructive and technical.

Then follow, in each case, the names of the witnesses for the Crown, and the Recognizances entered into by them for their due appearance to give evidence against the accused. The following may serve as an example:—

Glamorgan to wit. Recognizances taken and cognised at Tithegston on the first day of May in the thirty-first year of the reign of our Lord Charles the Second, that now is of England, &c., before Richard Lougher, Esquire, one of the Justices assigned for the preservation of the Peace of our said Lord the King, &c. . . .

"The Condi'ion of this Recognizance is That the said Anne Richard and Margarett John al's Lewis, Mary Lewis and David Yorath doe and shall personally appear before his Ma'ties Justices on Monday next being the first day of the next great sessions to be held and kept in and for the said County then and there to certifie and declare the trueth of their severall knowledges in such matters as shall be demanded of them on his Ma'ties behalfe against one Mr. Phillip Evans now a prisoner in his said Ma'ties Gaole at Cardiffe in the said County who standes there Comitted vpon suspic'on of being a Popist [sic] priest or Iesuite; and thence not to departe w'thout licence of the Courte there, That then &c or else &c.

Rich. Lougher."

Among the witnesses against Father Philip Evans, sworn before John Arnold, Esquire, Justice of the Peace, at Abergavenny, was Mayne Trott, who tendered the most important evidence of the accused's having exercised the functions of a Catholic priest. This man was deformed, and had been successively Court Dwarf to the Kings of Spain and England. He had professed himself a Catholic and married a relative of the Jesuit Father David Lewis, who, principally on his evidence, was hanged, drawn and quartered at Usk, this same year. Trott was a tenant and servant of Justice Arnold, who was a restless priest-hunter, and supplied his master with the needful information as to the private affairs of the Catholics in South-East Wales. Shortly after the execution of Father David Lewis, Mayne Trott fell dead in a street in London, a circumstance which the Catholics did not fail to ascribe to a Divine judgment on the dwarf for his large share in the death of their priests.

At the April Sessions a somewhat rare form of legal procedure occurred at Cardiff, and we find a paper headed "Names of the Jury of Matrons between our Lord the King and Catherine Llewelin singlewoman to Inquire whether she be quick with Child or not." Twelve matrons (wives and widows of tradesmen) were sworn, including Catherine, the wife of Michael Brewer, perukemaker; "Margarett the wife of Thomas Mossip of the 5 Bells," and "Frances Lewis, Hall keepers wife." After the list of names comes the record: "The Jury find that Catherin is quick with child." Execution of the sentence of death was thereupon postponed until after the child's birth. Such is the Law's careful guardianship of an innocent human existence. The prisoner had stolen money and clothes at Llangynwyd.

Coroner's Inquest taken at the Guildhall of Cardiff, on view of the body of Griffith Thomas late of Landaffe, labourer, found that, "having lain himself down to sleep on the Verge of a certain Lime-Kiln near Blunts Gate in the said Town of Cardiff, he accidentally fell into the said lime kiln then burning, whereby the said Griffith Thomas was suffocated."

Cardiff Town. Coroner's Inquest on view of the body of Christian Lewis, late of the parish of Saint John Baptist in the said town, widow, found that the deceased met her death by falling into the privy at the King David, in the said town of Cardiff.

Cardiff Town. Coroner's Inquest taken 30 August, on view of the body of Robert Tanner, late of Cardiff, an infant, found that the deceased, on or about the 11th April last, being at a certain place adjoining to the river Taff, called the Gollyate, otherwise Gollgate, in the said town, accidentally fell into the said river and was suffocated. [The Bailiffs, Edmund Lloyd and John Okey, seal with the before-mentioned seal of the former Bailiffs, Arthur Williams and George Watkins. One seal in this instance stands for both signatories.]

William Lewis, Bailiff of Kibbor, and his colleagues of the Hundreds of Dinaspowis, Caerphilly, Miskin and Cowbridge, have the word "fined" set against their names on the Roll of Officers.

1751.

From the Deposition of a witness in an unimportant case, we incidentally learn that there was a "sawpit in the Castle Court of Cardiff."

1752.

Cardiff Town. Coroner's Inquest taken 4 August 1752 at the Guildhall in the said town, on view of the body of John Lewis, an infant, found that the deceased, walking in a certain close called the Dumball, situated in Cardiff aforesaid, was surrounded by the flowing or coming in of the tide, and, in order to avoid the same, did endeavour to wade through a ditch adjoining to the said Dumball Close; in which ditch the said John Lewis fell, and was then and there suffocated.

In this Bundle are several Indictments of persons for pillaging a wreck called the "Indian Prince," on the coast of Llantwit Major, and stealing therefrom ivory, ebony, &c.

The Jury present the highway leading from Velindre in the parish of Whitchurch towards the house of Thomas Morgan (called late Mr. Howard's) in the parish of Raddyr, to be out of repair; and that it ought to be repaired by the County.

Coroner's Inquest on the body of David John found that the deceased coming on horseback, on Saturday night the 17th October last, from the town of Cardiff to the place of his abode in the parish of Pendoylan, at or near Cardiff Bridge on the river Taff, the tide and flood being there, was overpowered by the waters and carried down the said river to the Severn; and afterwards, in twelve days, was found drowned on the rocks in a certain place called Sully.

The Bundle contains several sheets of the Depositions of Witnesses in a matter wherein William Rosser was charged with picking the pocket of George Griffiths, of Lanedarn, labourer, at the house of one John Rees, victualler, in the parish of Lanishen. The prosecutor deposes that he went in company with the prisoner to the said inn, "and there they both drank freely till this Examinant was Drunk; upon which this Examinant went to bed and left the s<sup>d</sup> William Rosser by himself a drinking. And when this Examinant went into bed he did put his breeches under his Head; and when he, this Examinant, awoke next morning, he found his breeches on the Chamber floor—which gave this Examinant a suspicion that somebody or other had picked his pocket of his money. Upon which he did putt his hand in his pockett (in which he had Two and Twenty shillings and sixpence), and found that he had lost Eight shillings and Six pence. Whereupon this Examinant asked the s<sup>d</sup> John Rees and his wife who it was that was in bed with him, and they s<sup>d</sup> there was not anyone in bed with him. Whereupon a woman whose name is Mary David told this Examinant that she saw the person in the red Wastcoate (meaning the s<sup>d</sup> William Rosser), which Came with this Examinant into the s<sup>d</sup> House and was Drinking with him, Come up into the s<sup>d</sup> Chamber where this Examin<sup>t</sup> was in bed, at two several times, with a Lighted Candle in his hand each time."

John David, of Lanishen, labourer, deposed that he was Petty Constable of that parish in the year 1751, and was called to arrest accused. "The Company then present told the s<sup>d</sup> William Rosser: Here is the Constable comed, and thou art sure to go to Cardiffe (meaning the Gaol). Whereupon the said William Rosser jumped off the table whereon he was sitting, and ran away." He was captured and taken before Thomas Lewis, Esq<sup>re</sup> of Llanishen, a magistrate; "but the s<sup>d</sup> Justice ordered this Examinant to go back and send the person whose pocket was picked, to have a warrant; but upon this Examin<sup>ts</sup> return the s<sup>d</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Rosser was Gone off, and further this Examin<sup>t</sup> saith not."

For stealing seven pounds of Scotch snuff from a shop at Swansea, Jane the wife of John Morgan was sentenced to be "whipt."

Moses David alias Morgan, of Roath, labourer, was sentenced to transportation for stealing from the house of Martha Lewellin, at Roath, some handkerchieves and penknives.

The Depositions re Evan Evans, of Wenvoe, charged with horse-stealing, contain several points of interest. Thus the Examination of Thomas Saunders, of the parish of Almondsbury in the county of Gloucester, labourer, taken on oath 21 November 1753 before Michael Richards, Esq., J.P., at Cardiff, states that the Examinant "came to the New Passage on Sunday the fourth Day of this Inst<sup>t</sup> November, with an Intention of Coming over into Wales to Caerphilly Fair in Glamorganshire; but hearing at the s<sup>d</sup> passage that the s<sup>d</sup> fair was to be held the old stile,<sup>1</sup> he, this Examinant, did not go over; but upon his seeing a boate Coming over from the Welsh side, he this Examinant did stay at the s<sup>d</sup> passage till the s<sup>d</sup> boate Came over, in order to be better satisfied as to the Certainty of the said fair. And when the s<sup>d</sup> boate Came over, this Examinant did see no passenger in the s<sup>d</sup> boate but the prisoner, Evan Evans, whom this Examinant did see since in Cardiffe Gaole."

Edward Sant, of Nowle, near Bristol, in the County of Somerset, proprietor of a public house there called the Man in the Moon, was persuaded by the prisoner to purchase two horses.

Evan Evans, the prisoner, in his Confession declares that Edward Sant desired him to steal a horse from Glamorganshire, and that he accordingly stole a black mare out of a field near Cardiff, and rode her to Nowle. There he delivered her to the said Sant, who afterwards sold the said mare at Pensford fair in Somersetshire.

Prisoner was found guilty and sentenced to transportation.

Cardiff Town. Inquest taken at the Guildhall there, 17 Aug<sup>t</sup> 1753, on view of the body of Elizabeth Evans, late of the said town of Cardiff, spinster, found that the deceased, being on the 27th day of April last standing on the side of the river Taff, near the Quay of the said town, to wash some clothes, accidentally fell into the river and was drowned.

In this Bundle is an Inquest on the body of Mary Morgan, killed by a fall of coal in a mine at Merthyr Tydfil.

Inquest on the body of Nicholas Meyrick, found that the deceased accidentally fell into a certain well near the East Gate in the Town of Cardiff, situate in the parish of Saint John the Baptist, and was drowned.

The Jury present that Thomas Jones, of Cardiff, baker, and others, have unlawfully erected "in the common and publick street there called Saint Mary's Street, otherwise Saint Mary's parish<sup>1</sup> (the same street being the King's common highway, from the time whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary)," a certain edifice whereby the said street is obstructed. The Prosecutor was Michael Richards, Esq., and the Witnesses were the same gentleman and Thomas Alban. The Presentment is endorsed "No true Bill."

Alice, wife of Thomas Van, of Cardiff, victualler, was convicted of stealing four gold guineas. She was sentenced "To be hanged by the neck," but these words at foot of the Indictment have been struck through with the pen.

1755.

Glamorganshire. Coroner's Inquest taken at the dwellinghouse of Philip David, innkeeper, situate in the City of Llandaff, on 30 September 1754, on view of the body of Thomas Prees late of the City of Llandaff, aforesaid, labourer, found that the deceased, on the 25th day of August then last past, in a certain close within the said City, commonly called the Hannereg, died naturally.

Glamorgan, to wit Cardiff Town. William Prichard, of Cardiff, labourer, was charged with breaking and entering the house of Henry Durbrow, at Cardiff aforesaid, called the New Angel, and stealing therefrom four gallons of wine called Tent.

The Jury present a number of men and a woman for riotously assembling and destroying the thatch and roof of a certain dwellinghouse in the parish of Eglwysilan, the property of one Hopkin Popkin, otherwise Jones.

Glamorganshire, to wit. Coroner's Inquest taken at Eglwysilan, on view of the body of Morgan Rees, late of the parish of Bedwas, labourer, found that the deceased, by attempting to swim a horse in a certain pool of water called Pwll-Tro in the river Rumney below Bedwas bridge, in the hamlet of Vann, was accidentally "drowned."

John David, of Saint Andrew's, was indicted for stealing from William James, of Cardiff, victualler, the following useful assortment of goods: One large wallet, two shoulders and one rack of veal, one pair of calves' feet,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  yards of woollen cloth, two yards of cheese cloth, and two yards of coarse linen cloth. The Jury were kind enough to find the prisoner "guilty to 10*d.* value" only.

Josiah Hugh signs (with his mark) a written confession of his murder of Mary Rees, at Penmark. He felled her with a stick, as she was coming from milking the sheep, and then strangled her. He had cherished an unrequited passion for the unfortunate girl. Having pleaded guilty at the trial, the prisoner was sentenced "To be hanged by the Neck and afterwards in Chains."

1756.

Glamorganshire, to wit. Coroner's Inquest taken at the house of Lewis Leyson, innkeeper, in the parish of Lanishan in the county aforesaid, 6 October 1755, before William Gibbon, Coroner, on view of the body of David Rees, found that the deceased, in a certain lane called Hewl hir in the parish of Lanishan, as he was riding upon a horse before a wagon and oxen, and attempting to turn into a gate, fell down from his horse and was killed.

Coroner's Inquest held at Caerphilly found that David Griffith, late of the parish of Ryddry in the county of Glamorgan, in a certain close or parcel of land in the hamlet of Vann in the parish of Bedwas in the said county, commonly called Coetca Poset, died naturally and not otherwise.

Jurors present the highway leading from the Black Wear to the Great Heath, Cardiff, to be very ruinous and out of repair; and that the same ought to be repaired by the inhabitants of St. John's Parish.

That the bearer of such a name as Christopher Turberville should be a labourer, is nothing unprecedented in the annals of genealogy; but that the name should be borne by a highwayman is startling. Yet Christopher Turberville of Aberavon, labourer, was found guilty of highway robbery, or, as the Indictment words it, for that he (and another man) at the parish of Baglan, with force and arms of and from one James Carson (and another person) did demand money with divers menaces, using these Welsh words: "Sefwch, God dammoch chwi, efe ceiswch arian chwi"<sup>1</sup>—in English: Stand, God damn you, I want your money!

1757.

Inquest on the body of Anthony Fabian, late of Caira in the county of Glamorgan, labourer, found that the deceased, in a close called Morva bach in the parish of Landaff, died naturally.

1758.

Moses Harry Simon, of Mynyddislwyn, deposed that he lost, out of a closet in his house, one gold ring and one gold signet, which were on a small pewter plate in the said closet; and that when he found the said rings missing, he suspected one Elizabeth William, who was a servant with him and whom he had given leave to go to Caerphilly fair on Saturday last, to have stolen the same. And as she did not return that night, he pursued her and came to a place called the Long Cross in the parish of Roath; and in the house of one Miles Morgan there he found the said Elizabeth William, who at length confessed having stolen the rings and also one quilt petticoat, black stuff one side and blue stuff the other; one light-coloured camlet gown, "pretty much wore," and one blue and white linen apron.

Coroner's Inquest taken at Newmill in the parish of Lantrissant, on view of the body of Friswith Leonard, infant, found that the deceased, as she was passing by a wheel belonging to the new works in the parish of Pentirch, went to play with the said wheel; which took her by the clothes under it, and accidentally killed her.

1759.

Coroner's Inquest at Cardiff, on view of the body of Edmund flaharty, found that several sailors of the crew belonging to the ship called the Eagle Galley of Bristol, armed with pikes, swords, cutlasses, pistols and muskets, had in a street in the said town of Cardiff, called Homanby Street, an affray with the crew of the Aldbrough man-of-war, who were similarly armed, and that several pistols and guns were fired, and several blows & wounds given; and that the deceased was then shot by a person unknown.

1760.

Two persons were drowned in crossing the Taff at Llynfraith, Whitchurch, in a boat.

A milkmaid was tossed over a hedge by a bull, and killed, at Croft Castle Gwibley, Leckwith.

Inquest on the body of John Thomas, of Cardiff, fisherman, found that he was accidentally drowned while fishing in the river Taff in the town of Cardiff.

Inquest on the body of John Hugh, of Llantrissant, miner, found that he was accidentally killed by a fall of earth, when he was working in a pit of "led oar" in a field called Ddrys-Syog in the parish of Llantrissant.

Inquest on the body of Edward John, of Cardiff, forgeman, found that he was accidentally killed at the forge in the same town, by receiving a blow on his head from a portion of the machinery.

Inquest on the body of Elizabeth Richards, of Llantrissant, spinster, found that she died naturally, in a field called Gwain y Kinkod, in the parish of Llantrissant.

Inquest on the body of Morgan David, of S<sup>t</sup> Andrew's, blacksmith, found that he, at Dinas Powis in the parish of S<sup>t</sup> Andrew's, was driving a mare, the property of Harry Morgan, of the parish of Barry, labourer, to a place near the deceased's smith shop, when she kicked him in his belly; of which kick the said Morgan David accidentally died.

Inquest on the body of George Evans, of Rumney, yeoman, found that he died naturally, on his way from Cardiff to Roath.

Glamorganshire (to Witt). We the Jurors sworn to enquire for our Sovereign Lord the King and the Body of the said County do upon our oath Present that from the time whereof the memory of man is not to the contrary there was and yet is a certain common and antient King's high way leading from the Village of Pentirch in the said County of Glamorgan towards and unto the Town of Cardiff in the said County used for all the liege subjects of our said Lord the King and his predecessors with their horses coaches carts and carriages to go return pass ride and labour at their will and pleasure And that a certain part of the same King's Common Highway between a certain house called the Alms house and a certain dwelling house called Kae Keven situate lying and being in the Parish of Pentirch aforesaid in the County aforesaid containing in length one hundred yards and in breadth five yards on the second day of March in the first year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord

George the Third now King of Great Britain &c and continually afterwards untill the day of the taking of this Inquisition at the said Parish of Pentirch in the County aforesaid was and yet is very ruinous miry deep broken and in such decay for want of due reparation and amendment of the same so [sic] that the liege subjects of our said Lord the King through the same way with their horses coaches carts and carriages could not during the time aforesaid nor yet can go return pass ride and labour without great danger of their lives and the loss of their goods To the great damage and common nuisance of all the liege subjects of our said Lord the King through the same way going returning passing riding and labouring and against the Peace of our said Lord the King his Crown and Dignity And that the said Inhabitants of the Parish of Pentirch aforesaid in the County aforesaid the Common Highway aforesaid so being in decay as aforesaid ought to repair and amend when and so often as it shall be necessary.

Inquest taken at the village of St. Bride's-super-Ely in the county of Glamorgan, on the body of William Gyles, an infant, found that the deceased having thrown down a hive of bees, the said bees fastened upon him and stung him in his head and neck; which occasioned strong convulsive fits, by which he died.

William James, of Penmark, was found to have died through drinking a great quantity of water and striving to leap afterwards, thereby bursting a vessel in his body.

A long Presentment by the Grand Jury of the County, to the effect that one Joan Cox, wife of Lewis Cox, of the parish of Roath, labourer, supplied an iron bar to the prisoners in the County Gaol at Cardiff (one of whom was her husband); whereby the said prisoners were enabled to escape out of the custody of the Gaol Keeper, Thomas Lewis. She was found guilty by the Petty Jury. Cox was in prison for burglary at the shop of Evan David, of the parish of saint John Baptist, Cardiff, whence he stole eight Winchester bushells of wheat.

County of Glamorgan. The Information of Harry Tho<sup>s</sup> John, of the Parish of Roath in the said County, Farmer, taken before me one of his Majesties Justices of the Peace in and for the said County.

The said Informant on his Oath saith, that one Evan David of the parish of S<sup>t</sup> John Baptist, Farmer, and David John, Petty Constable in the Parish of Roath and County aforesaid, requested him to aid and assist them the said Evan David and David John to search the Dwelling House of Lewis Cox now Pris'nor in his Majesties County Gaoll in the Town of Cardiff in the s<sup>d</sup> County of Glamorgan and found in the said Lewis Cox's House 6 Winchester Bushells and a half of wheat which the above Evan David claim'd as his property—and the s<sup>d</sup> Examinant told the said Lewis Cox's Wife she knew of the stealth of the said wheat. She the said Cox's Wife told the s<sup>d</sup> Examinant that she Often told her husband that by doing such things he would be Punish'd—upon which her Husband took a Coroner's Inquest taken at Bridgend in the County of Glamorgan, 7 April 1768, on view of the body of Morgan Thomas, found that the deceased, "being at Bridgend aforesaid the sixth instant, at the time of the General Election there for a Member to serve in Parliament for the said County, where great feasting drinking and rejoicings were made on the Occasion, he the said Morgan Thomas being very much at all times addicted to drinking from alehouse to alehouse, went for meat and drink, and having had a good deal offered, he refused none, till at last he became full gorged with Meat and Drink; which not being able to bear, about four o'clock in the afternoon sickened at the Stomach; and not being able to discharge the said meat and drink, at Bridgend the day and hour aforesaid he then languished, and languishing lived about ten minutes; and by over eating and drinking in manner aforesaid suffocated and dyed."

Thomas Christopher, of Llantrissant, pleaded guilty to stealing "thirty pieces of gold of the current coin of this Kingdom, of the value of thirty one pounds and ten shillings; and five pieces of gold of Portugal coin, of like current coin of this Kingdom,<sup>1</sup> of the value of nine pounds."

Cardiff Town in the County of Glamorgan. The Confession of Thomas Christopher of the Parish of Llansannor in the said County of Glamorgan Labourer taken this seventeenth day of December in the year of our Lord 1767. Before me Thomas Edwards Esq<sup>r</sup> One of his majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the said Town of Cardiff.

Who Confesseth that being a servant to David Williams of the Parish of Llantrissant in the said County Yeoman and having seen his Master the said David Williams putt Money into a Cupboard, and no person being in the house on Monday the fourteenth day of December instant in the afternoon he looked into one side of the said cupboard which was open and seeing a hole he putt his hand through it and pushed back a Lock and took a small Box out which had Money in it to the amount of twenty pounds and then went immediately away from the house, and having taken the money out of the Box he flung the box away and then came to Cardiff in the night and went immediately to the New Inn in Cardiff, seeing a light there, and having called for some Toddy he bought a small nett for a purse and having put his money in it, he afterwards played Cards with the said Aquilla Jones [the innkeeper] and one Llewellyn Bowen but whether he lost any money or how much he does not know, And that he afterwards bought a horse Bridle and Saddle of the said Aquilla Jones but cannot say what he gave for it, And that he afterwards went on the Horse, but whether he fell off the Horse or was pulled off he doth not know, but he lost the Money either in the House or from the house of the said Aquilla Jones to the Markett House in Cardiff where he had been asleep, And that he afterwards went to the house of Aquilla Jones and there found his Horse.

The Grand Jury present that Henry Knight of Laleston in the county of Glamorgan, Esq<sup>re</sup>, challenged Thomas Bennet of the same parish, Esq<sup>re</sup>, to fight a duel, by writing him the following letter:—

“Respect to the Company prevented my taking the Proper Notice of the Insolence of your Language yesterday at Ewenny, but it were Disrespect to myself not to resent it now. I therefore acquaint your self-Importance that you behaved like a Fool and spoke like a Liar—which I am ready to make good as a Gentleman ought, when and wheresoever you think proper to appoint.

Coroner's Inquest taken at Cardiff, on view of the body of John Williams, found that the deceased on the 11th of March, at the parish of Saint Mary in the town of Cardiff, in the night time, walking alone on the Moors and having lost his way, accidentally got into a certain pill or ditch full of mud and slime, and then and there languished and was starved to death.

The next document is the record of an Inquisition on the body of another John Williams, at Cardiff, who was killed by a part of the Red House<sup>1</sup> falling upon him, on the 16th of March.

<sup>1</sup> A more modern house on the same site was the Cardiff Arms. This in turn has lately been supplanted by the (newest) Angel Hotel, which is quite as "red" a house as its ancient predecessor.

It was Thomas (not Taffy) Emmanuel who feloniously stole, took and carried away one piece of beef, the property of Alexander Nicholls, at Swansea. Thomas also removed at the same time a golden guinea, and, having time to spare, a copper halfpenny—which indicates great attention to detail on his part. He pleaded guilty, but there is nothing to show what ultimately became of Thomas, or of the beef.

Margaret Llewelin, of the parish of Saint John the Baptist, Cardiff, singlewoman, indicted for the wilful murder of her male bastard child, was found Not Guilty by the Jury.

Thomas Thomas was this year Bailiff of Cardiff, and also Bailiff of the Hundreds of Cowbridge, Dinas Powis and Kibbor.

August 1772.

Cardiff Town in the County of Glamorgan. Coroner's Inquest taken at Cardiff aforesaid on view of the body of Lawrence Kelly, found that the deceased, walking in the night time over a certain stone gate way called the North Gate in the town aforesaid, fell off the top of the said gate way down on his head on the pitching, whereby he then and there died.

April 1773.

The Jury present the "common and publick Bridge over and across a stream or Branch of the River Taf called The White House Bridge situate in the Parish of Saint John Baptist in the said County of Glamorgan . . . . being in and upon the King's Common High-road leading from the Town of Cowbridge in the County of Glamorgan aforesaid to the Town of Cardiff in the same County" to be ruinous and in decay, and that the same bridge ought to be repaired by the inhabitants of the said county.

A similar Presentment is made of Cardiff Bridge.

John Thomas, of Cardiff, was indicted for stealing, at Roath, a game cock of the value of two shillings, the property of William Richards, esquire.

There appears to have been a general raid upon the Roath poultry at this time, there being no fewer than ten such Indictments in this Bundle.

Coroner's Inquest held at Cardiff Guildhall, on view of the body of Humphrey Williams, found that the deceased, "having landed on the Bank near Cardiff on thursday the ffirst day of April Instant about Eleven of the Clock at Night out of the Cardiff Boat<sup>1</sup> and being very Weak and feeble was by the Coldness of the Night chilled and dyed through the visitation of God about a Quarter of a Mile from the place he landed."

Coroner's Inquest at Cardiff Guildhall, on view of the body of William Jukes, found that the deceased, at nine o'clock on a Saturday evening, "having had a Quarrell with one William Richard and running towards his own house and beckoning to the said William Richard to follow him, accidentally fell into the forge Stream at Cardiff aforesaid and was then and there instantly drowned."

August 1774.

The Jury present that Lancelot Watkins, of Neath, cordwainer, uttered a malicious libel concerning Rice Price, mercer, and John Jenkins, both of Neath, entitled and running as follows:—

"A New Song, to the tune of the 'Month of June.'

His Master thought him to be just, Therefore in him did put great trust, Till Judas like did prove unjust And did his Charge betray. Then his good Master, to his cost, Found that he had his money lost By this Grand Thief he was oblidged The next day to repay For to avoid a prison strong Which he long deserves The next Great thief, Glascow his name, A serving man in Bristol some time agone, where his thievish tricks did plain appear to his shame and loss of fame, and in great Danger of his Neck, which sometime will be stretch'd, Clandestinely did Steal. What he did steal I dare not tell, but it is known to him full well. Such a Thief never was known in this Town, I do own—No, nor in the British Isle."

The Jury present that Daniel Thomas, Rees Thomas and Gamaliel Davies, of Cowbridge, printers, assaulted Jacob Thomas, one of the Serjeants at Mace of the Borough of Cowbridge, and rescued the said Daniel Thomas out of the said Jacob Thomas' lawful custody.

Glamorgan. The Examination of John Jenkin of Bromiskin in the parish of Lantrissant in the said County Yeoman, taken this 15th day of May 1776, Who on Oath saith That on Friday night last he Lost from a certain field belonging to him at Bromiskin aforesaid a Sorrel Horse about fourteen hands high . . . . . with a Long Tail, a White snip down the face, the two hinder feet white, three years old this Grass, of the value of Eight Guineas, and that he hath cause to suspect, and doth suspect that Thomas David of the parish of Peterston super Ely in the said County, Labourer, feloniously did steal the same.

William Jones of the Angel Inn at Cardiff in the County aforesaid, Post-Chaise driver, likewise on Oath saith, that on friday night last in driving his Post-Chaise from Cardiff to Lantrissant in the said County, between Ten and Eleven o'clock at the distance of about three miles from Lantrissant he met a man on horseback, leading a Grey horse in his hand, and going the road towards Cardiff.

Jenkin David of the parish of Ystradyvoduck in the said County, Drover, likewise on Oath saith That on Saterdag Morning last, about eight or nine o'clock, on the road from the New Passage in the County of Monmouth leading towards Lantrissant aforesaid at a place called Creek Common, about Thirty four Miles distant from Lantrissant aforesaid, he met the prisoner, the aforesaid Thomas David, riding towards the said Passage upon a sorrel horse.

Evan Griffith of Henstaff in the parish of S<sup>t</sup> Brides Super Ely in the County aforesaid, Yeoman, likewise on Oath saith, that on friday Evening last, about four or five o'Clock, he saw, and talked with the prisoner, Thomas David in a field belonging to the prisoner, near his dwelling house in the said parish of Peterston Super Ely.

The aforesaid John Jenkin on his Oath further saith, that this day early in the afternoon he saw the prisoner arriving from a Journey at his the said prisoner's dwelling house, leading a Grey horse, and that he looked into the fields of the said prisoner several times since Saterdag Morning last for the said Grey horse, which said horse he knew belonged to the said prisoner, and in which said fields the said horse usually was kept, but that he could not see him there.

The prisoner in his defence saith, That he went from home on Wednesday last to Cardiff, where he staid till Thursday Night about Eight o'Clock, when he went from thence to Caerwent in the County of Monmouth, where he arrived on friday Evening about Six o'Clock, where he slept that night, and on Saterdag Morning he set out from thence towards the New Passage and Bristol, And that he on Creek Common aforesaid met with the aforesaid deponent Jenkin David, and that he took from home the said Grey horse mentioned by the aforesaid John Jenkin, which Grey horse he left at Caerwent aforesaid, at a publick house kept by one M<sup>rs</sup> Pickman; And that on the said Saterdag Morning, he was desired by the said M<sup>rs</sup> Pickman to ride a sorrel horse, with a White snip down the face to Bristol and to deliver him to the Landlord of the Red Lion in Tower Lane in the said City, And he did deliver him to the said Landlord on the said Saterdag Evening about four o'Clock, And that he took no horse with him to Caerwent aforesaid, but the said Grey horse, which, he left there And that he slept at M<sup>rs</sup> Roberts's at the Crow in Crow Lane in the said City of Bristol, on Saterdag, Sunday, and Monday Nights last, And that he set out from Bristol on his return home yesterday morning about eight o'Clock, And that he arrived home today with his Grey horse at the time mentioned by the aforesaid John Jenkin.

On the 15th of May 1776 the above Depositions were taken on Oath before me.

Glamorgan. The further Examination of John Jenkin of Bromis-kin aforesaid, Who on Oath saith, That on the 18th Instant he found the aforesaid Horse which he had Lost, in the possession of Thomas White, Coachman to Mrs Ames, Relict of the Late Mr Alderman Ames, of the City of Bristol.

The aforesaid Thomas White on Oath saith, That the 13th Instant he bought the said Horse of a Welchman, at Bristol, at the the Livery Stables of John Milward in Earl-Street, Bristol, for the Sum of Seven pounds, Nine Shillings and Six pence, which Money he paid the said Welchman in the presence of John Milward Jun<sup>r</sup> son to the aforesaid John Milward; And that on this day, he the aforesaid Thomas White went to the Common Gaol of this County at Cardiff to View the aforesaid prisoner Thomas David, and declares that the said Thomas David is the very same person that he bought the aforesaid horse of, as aforesaid.

Fortune singularly favoured Thomas David, for his Indictment is marked "Not Guilty by the Jury."

Mary wife of William Morgan, of Landaff, labourer, was indicted for stealing a piece of cloth from the standing of William Williams, of Caerphilly, clothier, at the fair or high Market held at Cardiff 8 May 1776.

April 1777.

Coroner's Inquest on view of the body of Jane Thomas, found that the deceased was accidentally killed by a fall of coal in a mine at Merthyr Tydfil.

Coroner's Inquest taken at Cardiff, on view of the body of Miles Meredith, found that the deceased being at work on the top of a scaffolding in the Castle of Cardiff, accidentally fell to the ground and was killed.

April 1781.

Jane William was convicted of picking the pocket of Morgan Richard and stealing therefrom seventeen guineas in gold and about twenty shillings in silver, at Llanblethian. One small paper contains the curious Deposition which follows:—

Glamorgan. Thomas Morgan of Welch St Donats in y<sup>e</sup> said County maketh Oath that on Tuesday night y<sup>e</sup> 16 Instant he in

Also on view of the body of Mary Williams, whom they found to have met her death by falling into a furnace full of hot wort, while brewing at the brewhouse of William Rees at Cardiff.

The Files for the next few years contain nothing noteworthy with reference to Cardiff, the county town being at this period overshadowed by the superior commercial importance of the borough of Swansea.

Presentments and Indictments for perjury, forgery and embezzlement have lately much increased in number.

April 1790.

We the high Sheriff & Grand Jury of the County of Glamorgan, assembled in the Jury Room at Cardiff 26th March 1790, are of Opinion that if the Goaler had resided in the apartments allotted for, & now occupied by him, the late escape of the Prisoners wou'd not have been effected.

It appears to us that the Goaler's apartments previous to the late escape were unfit for his residence & that they are now put into good and sufficient repair.

We are of opinion that the Salary at present allowed to the Goaler is not a sufficient recompence for the whole of his time, which ought to be employ'd in the duties of his office.

We therefore earnestly recommend that the Justices of the Peace for this County do make such an encrease of Salary to the Goaler, as may enable him to give up the whole of his time to the faithful discharge of the duties of his Office.

We are of opinion that all fees to the Goaler (exclusive of his Salary) ought to be abolished.

We recommend that the Magistrates of the County do make enquiry into the Conduct of the present Chaplain to the Gaol, that a proper Salary may be allowed.

We further recommend that the Magistrates do make such other regulations for the management of the Goal as to them shall appear necessary, by appointing a Committee (or Intendant without Salary) to inspect the same.

In consequence of having view'd the State of the Goal, We are of opinion that that part allotted for the Confinement of the Debtors is in good repair & fully adequate to the purpose.

We are also of opinion that that part allotted for the Confinement of the Felons is inadequate to the safe keeping of them & is too small.

We therefore recommend that an additional number of Cells for the purpose of Solitary Confinement may be erected, there being a Convenient piece of Ground Contiguous to the Gaol for such erection.

We are of opinion that there are many abuses which are great grievances existing in the County Court. We therefore earnestly desire (in order to bring about a reform) to have them investigated without delay in the most effectual manner & take the liberty of requesting your Lordships assistance in this matter, which will be esteem'd an obligation conferr'd on

To the Honorable George Hardinge and Abel Moysey Esq<sup>res</sup>

We the Grand Jury of the County of Glamorgan assembled in the Grand Jury Room at Cardiff the 25th day of August 1790 are of opinion,

1. That the Goal of the said County is in repair.
2. That the Salary of the Goaler is insufficient.
3. That the Chaplain's Salary is an adequate one, and on enquiry we find he has in general attended twice a week.
4. That an excess in the number of Alehouses is a grievance which should be redressed but whether twenty seven are too many to answer the convenience of the Town of Cardiff and its neighbourhood we find ourselves incompetent to determine from want of sufficient evidence on that head.
5. That the Magistrates at their next Quarter Sessions be requested to form a Committee for the purpose of enquiring into the abuses of the County Court and transmit the result thereof to the Honorable George Hardinge and Abel Moysey Esq<sup>res</sup> previous to the next Great Sessions.
6. That a copy hereof be delivered to the Clerk of Peace and that he be directed to file the same and produce it at the next general quarter Sessions.

At this Sessions we find Mr. Richard Griffiths, surgeon and Coroner, again in trouble. This time he is presented for assaulting John Price, gentleman, at Cardiff, by beating him about the head with the butt end of a large riding-whip. The Presentment is endorsed: "True Bill."

Articles of the Peace exhibited<sup>1</sup> this third day of September in the Thirty first Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord George the third now King of Great Britain and so forth at the Great Sessions holden for the County of Glamorgan before the honourable George Hardinge and Abel Moysey Esquires his Majesty's Justices of the Court of Great Sessions for the several Counties of Glamorgan Brecon and Radnor by the Reverend Robert Rickards of the Town of Llantrissant in the County of Glamorgan Clerk against Joseph John of the parish and County aforesaid Carrier.

And first this Exhibitant upon his Oath declares that about two years ago as this deponent was mounting his Horse in the Town of Cardiff in the County of Glamorgan aforesaid he the said Joseph John came up to this Exhibitant in a menacing Manner and repeatedly said that he would put a Mark upon this Exhibitant's Hat accompanying this Threat with an Oath which expression is in this Countrey generally understood as a Threat of doing the Party against whom it is directed some bodily Injury as knocking him on the Head with a Bludgeon or some other such Instrument or offensive Weapon and also the said Joseph John hath made repeated declarations to several Persons as this Exhibitant has been informed and believes that he would do some Injury to this Exhibitant's Person or fire his House and particularly that he has been informed by one John Jones of the Town of Llantrissant in the County aforesaid Farmer which Information this Exhibitant verily believes to be true that he the said John Jones heard the said Joseph John about two years ago in a Conversation with Richard Griffiths of Cardiff in the County aforesaid Esquire one of the Coroners for the said County express an earnest desire and Wish that this Exhibitant was killed that the said Coroner might hold an Inquest upon this Exhibitant also that the said Joseph Jones has as this Exhibitant has been informed and verily believes frequently within these four last years desired and urged one James John of the town of Llantrissant aforesaid in the County aforesaid Glazier to knock out this Exhibitant's Brains And also that about four years ago the said Joseph John requested one William Thomas as this Deponent has been informed by the said William Thomas and which Information this Exhibitant believes to be true (who was then Servant to the said Joseph John) to drive a Cart over this Exhibitant Which the said William Thomas refused to do in Consequence whereof he was discharged out of the said Joseph John's Service and also that the said Joseph John about the twelfth day of April now last past endeavoured to prevail with and persuade one Mary Goidur of the parish of Llantrissant in the County aforesaid Spinster as this Exhibitant has been informed by the said Mary Goidur and which Information this Exhibitant verily believes to be true to buy a Quantity of Gunpowder with which he told her he meant to blow up this Exhibitant's House and all the family therein and lastly that he the said Joseph John endeavoured about the fifteenth day of April last to prevail with and persuade one Catherine Lougher as this Exhibitant has been informed by the said Catherine Lougher and which Information this Exhibitant verily believes to be true to set fire to this Exhibitant's House and promised her that if she would she should never be in Want And that the said Joseph John lately desired one Evan Morgan of the Town of Llantrissant aforesaid as this Exhibitant has been informed by the said Evan Morgan to waylay this Exhibitant and to start out of a Bush as this Exhibitant came by in order to frighten his Horse so as this Exhibitant might be thrown off and break his Bones or his Neck observing at the same Time that this Exhibitant generally rode a mettlesome Horse Secondly this Exhibitant upon his Oath declares that being for the above Reasons apprehensive that his Life and Property were at Stake he applied to Edmund Treharne of the parish of Llantrissant in the County aforesaid Esquire then and now being one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the said County to issue out his Warrant to apprehend the said Joseph John and to bring him before him or some other of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the said County to give Sureties for his Peaceful Behaviour towards all his Majesty's Liege Subjects and particularly towards this Exhibitant whereupon the said Joseph John was apprehended and gave Sureties for his appearance at this Sessions and in the mean Time to keep the Peace towards all his said Majesty's liege Subjects and particularly towards this Exhibitant Thirdly this Exhibitant upon his Oath declares that he apprehends and verily believes that his Life his House and Property are in imminent danger from the aforesaid Threats or Menaces and evil Disposition of the aforesaid Joseph John.

G. Hardinge.

The abovementioned Joseph John seems to have been a lawless character, and was often in trouble.

The Grand Jury present two prisoners as having escaped from the County Gaol at Cardiff.

Also they present the highway leading from the village of Peterstone super Ely to Crossfaen in the parish of Penteirch, and thence leading from the town of Cardiff to the town of Llantrissant unto a place called Tuy yn y nant, and thence by Tinkwood Colliery to the village of Penteirch, to be out of repair, and that the same ought to be repaired by the parishioners of Penteirch.

The name and signature of Benjamin Hall appear this year among those of the County Justices.

April 1793.

The Grand Jury present that a part of "an antient street or King's Highway leading from the village of Merthyr Tydvil in the said County of Glamorgan towards and unto the Town Hall in the Town of Cardiff and the County of Glamorgan aforesaid . . . . that is to say from a certain place called the North gate through a certain Street called Duke Street otherwise Shoemaker Street and from thence to the Town Hall in Cardiff aforesaid situate lying and being in the parish of Saint John the Baptist in the County of

CARDIFF CASTLE.

(Parts printed black on North and East denote Roman Wall as discovered up to March, 1900.)

Glamorgan aforesaid containing in length two hundred yards and in Breadth six yards," is very ruinous for want of due reparation, and that the same ought to be repaired by the inhabitants of the parish of Saint John the Baptist aforesaid.

George Hardinge. [L.s.]

A similar Presentment of the street leading from Cardiff Town Hall to the South Gate, "from the northern pine End or Corner of a certain dwelling house commonly called the three Cranes to the said Place or Gate called the South Gate" in Saint Mary's parish; and that the same ought to be repaired by the inhabitants of that parish.

A similar Presentment of the street leading from the parish church of Saint John the Baptist in the town of Cardiff to the Town Hall, commonly called Church Street, situate in the said parish; and that the same ought to be repaired by the parishioners.

A similar Presentment of the highway leading from Merthyr Tydvil to Cardiff, from the brook called Nantgarw to a place called Pantgwainlās, in the parish of Eglwysilan; and that the same ought to be repaired by the inhabitants of the hamlet of Rhydybythel in the said parish.

A similar Presentment of the highway leading from Merthyr Tydvil to Cardiff, from a place called the upper Boat-chain to a place called Nantgarw, in the parish of Eglwysilan; and that the same ought to be repaired by the inhabitants of Rhydybyther hamlet.

A similar Presentment of the highway leading from Merthyr Tydvil to Cardiff, from a place called Corrwg to the upper Boat-chain, in the parish of Eglwysilan; and that the same ought to be repaired by the inhabitants of the hamlet of Hendre Denny in the said parish.

A similar Presentment of the highway leading from Merthyr Tydvil to Cardiff, from a bridge called Pont-cadyddog to Corrwg, in the parish of Eglwysilan; and that the same ought to be repaired by the inhabitants of the hamlet of Glyntaaf in the County of Glamorgan.

There are several other Presentments of highroads. The improvement of travelling by mail-coach was rapidly proceeding at this time. The ravines which had done duty as highways in the days of pack-horses were now allowed to fill with a rank growth of brambles, ferns and nettles, while in all directions the county authorities were inaugurating the splendid system of macadamised coach-roads which we still possess.

The following fragment presents a vivid picture of a peculiar phase of town life a century ago:—

Glamorgan to wit. The examination of James Fisher a private Carmarthenshire soldier now at Swansea taken on oath the 21st day of June 1793 before us John Bevan and Row<sup>d</sup> Prichard Esq<sup>rs</sup> two of his Majesty's Justices of the peace in and for the said County relating to the loss of eight guineas taken out of the dwelling House of Daniel May of the welcome to Town at Swansea, who on his Oath saith that he well remembers the saturday night that the said welcome to Town was broken open and the Money lost that William John his Comrade came with him and his other Comrade to go to Bed and that he and his other Comrade went to Bed, but William John went down Stairs and he did not see any thing of him till break of day next day, and then threw himself on the Bed by the deponents back and on the Bed Cloaths; and lay there till they went to dress to go to Church, and the said William John returned with him from Church, and took some Meat to eat, and then went out and he did not return to his quarters till the day following being very drunk, and he was informed by his Brother Soldiers that he was drinking and treating them all the Sunday after Church, and that he had changed a guinea in order to treat them and the said deponent verily believes the said William John had no Money on the saturday, he having borrowed sixpence of the deponent, which is not yet paid him.

That the general march of progress should involve the decay of the art of caligraphy, is a curious and lamentable fact of which these records contain ample evidence. As the archivist leaves the Middle Ages and pursues his researches into records of later and later date, the parchment becomes worse, the ink fainter, and the handwriting more and more flimsy, confused and difficult to decipher.

Interesting political signs of the times now frequently occur in the Gaol Files. Thus, certain corn-rioters at Swansea are careful to remind their employers of what was being done in France, with a gentle hint that a policy of à la lanterne might become the necessity of oppressed democracy.

In "The King against Solomon Lysons," for treasonable and seditious expressions against his Majesty and his liege people, William Harris, of Neath, mariner, deposes that "he was passing by Mrs Rachel Morgan's the Sadler's Shop, and went into the Shop. The first word that he heard Solomon Lysons say, that he would Fight against the King and Country, on which William Harris said to Solomon Lysons what will you Fight against your own King and Country, and the said Solomon Lysons made answer Yes by God I will—and the said William Harris made answer that you ought to be taken up."

From the next witness' Deposition it appears that the Radicals of a hundred years ago were liable to a good deal of badgering on the part of their neighbours. William Prothero says that "betwixt him and the Door of Mrs Morgan's Shop stood Mr Solomon Lysons with a News Paper in his Hand. William Prothero then asked him what good News. Solomon Lyson made answer and said that, he had newly<sup>1</sup> begun reading the Paper. William Prothero replied that he was a Loyalist, was it a Congress or a National Assembly they held in the Shop. The said William Prothero further said to Solomon Lysons that the News papers were private, on which William Prothero Step'd into Mrs Morgan's Shop and offer'd to lay a wager with Solomon Lysons and Solomon Lysons made answer that he would lay One Hundred Guineas to one against the King and the Country, on which William Harris (Seaman) came in and asked Solomon Lysons, what do you fight against your King and the Country. Yes by my God. Dated February the Sixth 1794."

<sup>1</sup> This peculiar idiom seems to indicate that the conversation was in Welsh, and that Lyson said "'Rwy' newydd wedi dechreu ddarllen y papur."

A True Bill was found, upon the Jury's Presentation of Charles Williams, of Cardiff, shoemaker, for stabbing Edward Bladen the younger at Cardiff.

Glamorganshire. The Jurors for our Lord the King on their oath & on their own view<sup>1</sup> Present that the Common Gaol for this County is in a state of sufficient repair, But are of opinion that a Sick Ward and Solitary Cells are appendages essentially necessary to all Gaols, in which particulars the Gaol of this County is deficient.

Our next document is a sheet of paper on which is inscribed, under the King's sign-manual, a pardon for certain convicts, on condition of their enlisting in the Army or Navy:—

George R.

[L.S.] Whereas John Thomas and Jacob Isaac are now under Sentence of Transportation in the Gaol at Cardiff And Whereas some favorable circumstances have been humbly represented unto us in their Behalf inducing us to Extend our Grace and Mercy unto them and to Grant them our Pardon for their Crimes on Condition of their Enlisting to serve as Soldiers in our Army or of Entering to serve us in our Royal Navy Our Will and pleasure therefore is that upon their Enlisting to serve us as Soldiers in our Army or Entering to serve us in our Navy as aforesaid, they be forthwith delivered over to such person or persons as shall be duly authorized to receive them for either of the purposes aforesaid and that they be incerted for their Crimes on the said Conditions in our first and next General pardon that shall come out for the Brecon Circuit and for so doing this shall be your warrant Given at our Court at Saint James's the twenty fifth day of August 1794 in the thirty fourth year of our Reign.

To our trusty and wellbeloved our Justices of Assize for the Brecon Circuit, The High Sheriff for the County of Glamorgan, and all others whom it may concern.

By His Majesty's Command

Certificates under the hands of John Fenwick, Auditor of Wales; Stephen Moore, Deputy Acting Receiver in South Wales; and William Myddelton, formerly Deputy to Sir Thomas Wynn, now Lord Newborough, at that time Auditor of the Crown Revenue of Wales; acknowledging and declaring that any claim heretofore made by them or any of them, of any power to remit fines charged by the Court of Great Session, was and is illegal and unwarranted.

March 1795.

The following is one of the entries in the Gaol Calendar :—

John Harrington, otherwise Waters, Aged 34, committed the 8th of January, 1795, by B. Williams, Esqr. Bailiff of the Town of Cardiff, charged with having feloniously forged a certain writing purporting to be under the hand of Benjamin Hall, Clerk, one of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the said County of Glamorgan, and purporting to be an Affidavit taken by the said John Harrington before the said Benjamin Hall, and taking the said Writing or Affidavit in Writing and uttering the same so Forged as aforesaid to one John Beynon Esqr. Collector of his Majesty's Excise for the said County of Glamorgan, as and for the true Affidavit in Writing of him the said John Harrington taken before the said Benjamin Hall, of the admission of him the said John Harrington as an out Pensioner in Chelsea Hospital, and by means thereof obtaining from the said John Beynon as such Collector as aforesaid, the sum of Three Pounds Twelve Shillings and one Halfpenny, as and for one half year's payment made by Government to Pensioners in the said Hospital.

This year for the first time appears printed at the foot of the Gaol Calendar "A List of Prisoners under Sentence in the said Gaol." The sentence is now frequently one of transportation to New South Wales.

March 1796.

John Watkin was convicted of stealing, out of a mail coach, five hundred guineas, the property of William Morgan of Carmarthen, esquire, at Swansea. He was sentenced to seven years' transportation.

August 1796.

The Jury present part of the highroad leading from Newport in the county of Monmouth to Cardiff in the county of Glamorgan, from Romney Bridge to Longcross House, in the parish of Roath, to be out of repair; and that the same ought to be repaired by the inhabitants of that parish.

A similar Presentment of the same highroad, from Longcross House to the East Gate; to be repaired by the inhabitants of the parish of Saint John Baptist.

A similar Presentment of the "common public Stone bridge commonly called Pontypridd situate and being in the several parishes of Llanwonno and Eglwysilan," leading from Merthyr Tidvil to the market town of Lantrissant, and also from Lantrissant to the market town of Caerphilly; and that the same ought to be repaired by the inhabitants of the county of Glamorgan.

Henry Hollier, esq., is named in the List of Officers, as Steward to Lord Cardiff.

Spring 1797.

The Grand Jury present that Stephen Williams, of Newchurch in the county of Gloucester, at Llanvabon in the county of Glamorgan, "one piece of false and counterfeit Money made and counterfeited to the likeness and similitude of a piece of good lawful and current Money and silver coin of this Realm called half-a-Crown unlawfully unjustly and deceitfully did utter and tender in payment to one Elizabeth Rosser," of Llanvabon, spinster. The same Presentment further charges the said Stephen Williams with having tendered seven counterfeit shillings to a person of the name of Odempsey Libert, of Roath, yeoman.

This year for the first time the records of the findings of the Coroners' Juries are made out without being signed or sealed by the Jurors.

"No True Bill" was found against John Higgs, of Merthyr Tidvil, for stealing six iron dram chains and two iron pins, the property of Richard Crawshay and Watkin George, ironmasters.

This year for the first time the prisoners' ages are recorded on the Gaol Calendar.

Spring 1798.

"Glamorganshire. George Hardinge Esquire one of his Majesty's Justices of the Court of Great Sessions for the several Counties of Glamorgan Brecon and Radnor upon his own proper Knowledge and View presents" that the White House Bridge in the parishes of Saint John Baptist and Llandaff, on the King's highway leading from Cardiff to Cowbridge, is too narrow, and its side walls too low; and that it ought to be altered by the inhabitants of the county of Glamorgan.

A similar Presentment of Ely Bridge, in the parish of Llandaff; to be altered by the inhabitants of the county.

A similar Presentment of part of the Newport Road, from a point opposite the house of John Wood, gentleman, to a point opposite the house of Bloom Williams, esquire, in the parish of Saint John Baptist—a distance of 20 yards—to be repaired by the parishioners.

Margaret Stradling, a hired servant maid, sets her mark to a sworn statement that her brother Edward Stradling, of Coyty, labourer, confessed to her his theft of a watch and three crowns, at the house of her master, Thomas William, of Newcastle in the county of Glamorgan, farmer. A True Bill was found.

Autumn 1798.

Judge Hardinge presents a portion of the highway leading from Llandaff to Cardiff, viz., from the city of Llandaff to "a certain place or part of the said road being the known and antient Boundary between the parishes of Saint John the Baptist and Landaff," situate in the parish of Llandaff—one mile in length—and that the same ought to be repaired by the parishioners of Llandaff.

A similar Presentment of a portion of the highway leading from the town of Cae'rphili to the town of Cardiff, viz., from a place called Y Drainen, being the known and ancient boundary between the parishes of Eglwysilan and Llanishen; and that the same ought to be repaired by the parishioners of Llanishen.

Spring 1799.

The Judge presents a portion of the highroad leading from Merthyr Tydvil to Cardiff, viz., from a house called Maendu House to Whitchurch Brook, situate in the parish of Llandaff; to be repaired at the expense of that parish.

Certain Depositions in this bundle contain a few interesting dialectal words, such as a "skilful"<sup>1</sup> of milk, and a "lepping-block."<sup>2</sup>

Several persons (one of them a minister, Thomas Bowen) were presented for making a disturbance in the Dissenters' Meeting House at Neath, but the Bill was thrown out.

Another Deposition in the same matter, by John David, of Lantrissant, aged 79, to the effect that 30 years ago he was Surveyor of Highroads of the Hamlet of Castella in the parish of Lantrissant; that he was appointed by the Parish of Lantrissant to overlook the repairs of a weir adjoining the Eirw Road; that he paid the workmen and was reimbursed by the Parish at large.

Spring 1800.

John Griffiths, of the town of Neath, labourer, was convicted of saying Damno'r Brenhin George y trydidd, myfi a wnaf well Brenhin o Bren Gwernen on'd i gilltio fe a baintio fe ai hela fe ir Parliament; which being interpreted signifies: "Damn King George the third, I'll make a better King than him out of an Orl Tree only gilding it, painting it, and sending it to Parliament."

This is how the same matter figures on the Gaol Calendar:— "John Griffiths, Aged 36, Committed 16 February 1800, by Richard Bevan Esq. on the Oaths of William Walter, William Lewis and John Hillard, charged with Damning King George the Third, and that he was no King, and did declare that he would make a better King out of a piece of Arl-wood being first Painted and Gilt, and did also give one Penny to William Walter, for going to Justice Bevan to make known his declaration, and did also declare to Rosser Jenkin, that he had one Thousand if not Thousands of Men of the same opinion as himself." He was imprisoned for two months and bound in recognizances.

The Jury present a portion of the street leading from Saint John's church to the house of William Jenking, glazier,—in length 100 yards—in the town of Cardiff; to be repaired by the parishioners.

Spring 1801.

The Gaol Calendar now, and for some years henceforward, bears at foot the words: "Cardiff. Printed by J. Bird."

Coroner's Inquest taken at Cardiff Guildhall before the Bailiffs, William Prichard and Henry Hollier, on a view of the body of William Hopkin, found that he met his death through injuries received at the hands of Morgan Hopkin, of Cardiff, labourer, who threw a twopenny wheaten loaf at the deceased and thereby inflicted a mortal blow upon his private parts, resulting in death a few days after such assault.

John Quin, a private in the "Iniskillen" Dragoons, violently robbed James Morgan, of Cardiff, labourer, at night on Cardiff Bridge, and stole from him two half-crowns and five shillings.

This Bundle contains copious Depositions respecting the death of Rees Rees, late of Neath; which show that the deceased was shot by Allen Macdonald, of Bristol, the guard of the mail coach, as the said coach was being driven through the town of Neath. Rees was running after the coach, and the guard (who appears to have been drunk) took his blunderbuss and fired at him, killing him on the spot.

Spring 1802.

Among the prisoners under sentence in Cardiff Gaol was James Carrol, aged 19, convicted of obtaining money under false pretences. His punishment was "6 months Imprisonment and twice whipped at Cardiff."

Spring 1803.

The Jurors present that James Walters, of the parish of Saint Mary in the town of Cardiff, "malster," unlawfully erected a lime-kiln in the said parish, near divers streets of dwellinghouses, whereby divers noxious smokes and smells do continuously arise, against the peace of our Lord the King, his Crown and dignity. ("No True Bill.")

In this Bundle is a large Presentment, on parchment, of persons residing in the Vale of Glamorgan, who were alleged to have committed perjury at the former Sessions, when giving their evidence in Welsh, concerning certain lands in that neighbourhood. The alleged perjuries are set out in the vernacular.

There is also another big parchment Presentment alleging perjury on the part of certain persons in an action brought by them against the Glamorgan Canal Company, respecting loss which they claimed to have sustained by a stoppage of water at the Melyngriffith tin-works.

Autumn 1804.

This year for the first time the finding of a Coroner's Jury is returned on paper, instead of parchment.

In a case recorded in this Bundle, wherein a person alleges false evidence on the part of his opponent at a former Session, the aggrieved party, instead of procuring an Indictment for perjury, obtains a Presentment for libel—the libel complained of being the signed and sworn Deposition of the alleged false witness.

Autumn 1805.

The Jurors present a part of the highway leading from the Castle Gate in the parish of Saint Mary, to Saint John's Church in the parish of Saint John, in the town of Cardiff—namely High Street in the said parish of Saint John—and that it ought to be repaired by the inhabitants of the lastnamed parish.

A similar Presentment of Ely Bridge, over the Ely brook in the parish of Llandaff, in the highway leading from Cardiff to Cowbridge; to be repaired by the Llandaff parishioners.

Spring 1806.

Three Presentments against William Meredith, of Llandaff, Sheriff's Bailiff, for unlawfully exacting various sums of money from persons arrested by him.

Autumn 1807.

Bill of Complaint by Samuel Homfray on behalf of himself and his partners, the Penydarran Company, against William Harvey, late accountant in their employ, who had absconded after defrauding the firm of over £140.

Spring 1808.

Inquest taken at Llantrissant, before Richard Griffiths, Coroner, on view of the body of David William, found that the deceased was murdered by William Williams, of Llantrissant. The murderer (who was only 19 years of age) had stabbed his victim, a boy, and thrown the body into a ditch.

Our next document is one of a class which I have not hitherto met with in the Gaol Files of the Court of Great Sessions, though it is very common in the Quarter Sessions records, as will later appear. This document is a printed certificate on parchment, stamped, that a candidate had duly qualified himself for a public office by partaking of the Communion according to the rites of the Established Church, in conformity with the requirements of the Test Act. The record is as follows:—

We the undersigned Minister and Churchwarden of the Parish and Parish Church of Saint John the Baptist in the Town of Cardiff Do hereby Certify That Richard Crawshay of Cyfartha Esquire on Sunday the sixth Day of March did receive the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper in the Parish Church aforesaid immediately after Divine Service according to the Usage of the CHURCH OF ENGLAND In Witness whereof we have hereunto subscribed our Hands the said Sixth Day of March 1808.

Do severally make Oath That they did see the said [blank] in the above-writtlen Certificate named And who now present hath delivered the same into this Court Receive the Sacrament of the Lords Supper in the Parish Church aforesaid And that they did see the said Certificate subscribed by the said Minister and Church Warden.

[The document bears an impressed 5s. stamp, and a printed 6d. paper stamp, together with the words "Sacrament Certificate."]

Presentments now bear an attorney's signature, besides that of the Clerk of the Peace.

John Jones, otherwise John, aged 22, was committed by James Capper and Thomas Morgan, esquires (Bailiffs and) Coroners of the Town of Cardiff, charged with having given Henry Wheeler, of the said town, divers mortal bruises, in the parish of Saint John the Baptist in the said town. Such is the brief record contained in the Calendar presented to the Court by Thomas Morgan, Gaoler. From the written Depositions in the case we get a few interesting particulars. Thus, at the Coroners Inquest:

Mary Davies sworn saith that abo<sup>t</sup> 20th January last John Jones came into the house of Henry Wheeler to some recruits of the Glamorgan Militia who are now gone to join the reg<sup>t</sup> and there was a great Noise in the room where he was; that Witness heard Wheeler go into the room and told them to keep the Peace . . . . . upon which John Jones got up and struck him down with his fist. . . . . Witness then went out of the room and when she returned in ab<sup>t</sup> 10 Min<sup>s</sup> or a quarter of an Hour some persons present were then helping Henry Wheeler off the Ground, and

John Jones was in the custody of some of the persons then also present . . . . .

Hannah Wheeler the Widow of the deceased, sworn, says that on the 20th of January last she was in the Kitchen when John Jones of Lantrissant came into the Parlour of her husband's House to look for Mr Jacobs his Master, that he soon after came into the Kitchen with some Man unknown to Witness, that he sat down a few Minutes and then got up and told one of the recruits of the Glamorgan Militia that he had wronged him of 3s. in the Tennis Court & the recruit denied any knowledge of him. John Jones then wanted to fight the recruit and Witness said he sho<sup>d</sup> not beat the boy in her House & she wo<sup>d</sup> call the Constables to him to which he replied he did not care for any Constables at all . . . . . Her Husband came in & said he would have no noise in his House and he was a Constable. Jones said he did not care and gave deceased a Blow on his left Cheek & he fell; deceased then got up and attempted to lay hold of him in a peaceable manner but Jones struck him down a second time and kicked him in his side, when dece'd cried out Oh Stibbs my ribs are broke . . . . . Some of the persons present detained the man till the Constables came and took him into Custody. . . . .

Autumn 1808.

The Jurors present that the Rev. William Davies, of Landaff, clerk, has obstructed the highway leading from Cardiff to Lantrissant by depositing stone etc. thereon, within the chapelry of Laniltern in the parish of Saint Faggan's.

Spring 1809.

John Owen, of Cardiff, yeoman, deposes that Edward Harry came to the house of this examinant, together with two others, to be enrolled in the Local Militia for the county of Glamorgan. That this examinant next morning missed his silver watch, with a gold seal and a metal key fastened thereto by a purple ribband, from off the chimney-piece in his room. Edward Harry, a youth who had lately served with Mr Wyndham Lewis at Cardiff, offered the watch to Mr

John Thackwell, of Cardiff, watchmaker, to repair. When first charged with the theft, Harry said the watch had been given to him at the Glove and Shears, by a stout man in a blue coat. On the way from Mr Thackwell's to the Red Lion, the youth confessed that he had stolen the watch. Charles Williams, a Constable of Cardiff, deposed to the identity of the watch. The prisoner was sentenced to one year's solitary imprisonment.

Spring 1810.

The Jurors present that whereas John Thompson, of the parish of Woollaston in the county of Gloucester, labourer, was at the preceding Gloucester Assizes sentenced to death for stealing a horse, which sentence was afterwards commuted to one of transportation to the coast of New South Wales, or some other of the islands adjacent, the said convict is at large, in the parish of Saint John the Baptist, Cardiff.

Spring 1811.

The Jurors present that Josiah John Guest, gentleman, Thomas John Harry and Evan Evans, yeomen, all of Merthyr Tydvil, and other persons, unlawfully assembled themselves and made an assault upon William Harry and Robert Ward, whom they then and there "unlawfully, riotously and routously did beat, wound and ill treat;" which wrongs were done by them "with an intent unlawfully to assist each other in the opposing and preventing certain persons, servants in the employ of Thomas Homfray, Samuel Homfray, William Forman and Henry Forman, from proceeding in their work as miners, at Merthyr Tydvil aforesaid. ("A True Bill.")

Depositions of George Kibby, Constable of Cardiff. By virtue of a Search Warrant he searched the house of Henry Ridgway, labourer, at Cardiff, and in a drawer there found two Newport and Abergavenny bills, value one guinea each; four Cardiff bills, value one guinea each; one Abergavenny bill, value one guinea; one Cyfarthfa bill, value one guinea; two Cardiff bills, value five pounds each, and two Newport and Abergavenny bills, value five pounds each; the whole being the property of William Rees, maltster (landlord of the Crown and Anchor, Cardiff.)

Jeremiah Williams, labourer, was presented for assaulting William Notter, a Lieutenant in the Navy (a person duly authorised and empowered to impress seamen and seafaring men to serve on board the ships of war of our lord the King) in the due execution of his duty.

William Thomas, shoemaker, was arrested and imprisoned for wilfully and violently threatening to cut the rope of the ferry boat at Rhydhelig, in the county of Glamorgan.

A True Copy of the Original.

Sir, agreeable to your information Taken on Oath before me, as well as the Voluntary Confession of Tho<sup>s</sup> Rees and David Jones, they have been Committed to Cardiff Gaol for the offence stated in your information, in order to take their Trials. But you on hearing that the said Thomas Rees and David Jones had been Commit'd you left this Town to avoid being bound over to prosecute. Such Conduct, I cannot put up with, and you may rest Assured that those Persons that advised you to quit Neath in Order to avoid being bound in recognizance (as well as yourself) shall be informed against, that such proceeding may be had therein, as to the same doth Appertain, and am yours &c.

Plymouth 21st March 1811.

Sir,

On my return to Plymouth I find a letter dated the 9th of March from you Addressed to me relative to two young men Confined in Cardiff Gaol for stealing a Draft from the Sloop Commerce Capt. John Willcock. In reply I have to say that Capt. John Willcock was Unfortunately wrecked in the Sloop Commerce on the 22<sup>d</sup> of Feb<sup>y</sup> last in Tranmore bay near Waterford from which Port she was bound to London with a Cargo of Provisions & it was with great difficulty he saved his life, and as the Cargo &c is not as yet sold I do not expect to see him this some time yet, but I shall Communicate the Contents of your letter to him by this same post & beg him to write and Acquaint you if he thinks it posable to attend the Sessions at Cardiff or not. I remain Sir your ob<sup>t</sup> H<sup>bl</sup> Serv<sup>t</sup>

One of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace, Neath, Glamorgan.

[Plymouth postmark. Sealed with a red wafer.]

Autumn 1811.

A True Bill was found against Richard Bevan, J.P., of Neath (see last year's File), for unlawfully accepting a fee of one guinea in the exercise of his magisterial office.<sup>1</sup>

A Gower man named John Taylor having been arrested on a charge of murder, a Mr John Lucas, J.P., resident in that neighbourhood, wrote a letter to the Judge, bitterly inveighing against the prisoner and his family. The letter, after being read in open Court, was ordered to be filed, and the Judge strongly censured the writer. The accused was convicted of manslaughter.

Spring 1812.

On the Gaol Calendar : Edmund Locke, under sentence of a Military Court Martial, to one year's solitary imprisonment, for desertion from the Central Glamorgan Local Militia.

Spring 1815.

[A sheet of paper in the handwriting of the signatory :—]

The Grand Jury desire to return your Lordship their best thanks for your Charge at the present Great Sessions. They condole with your Lordship most sincerely at the Loss of their late most worthy & respected Member, & beg to pay in common with your Lordship, their Tribute of unfeigned Respect & Regard to his lamented Memory and Virtues. They have felt themselves more particularly bound on the present Occasion to consider the personal Disrespect & Insult which has been offered to your Lordship. Your Humanity has put a stop to proceedings which might properly have been instituted. But a sense of Public Duty and an anxiety to support both those Judges who have for so many years and with so much Integrity administered the Laws of the Country, calls upon the Grand Jury to express their Regret at the circumstance, & at the same time to declare a decided opinion, that it can only be attributed to the Insolence of an insignificant Individual, & ought by no means to give you any further uneasiness or Concern.

Robert Lynch Blossie,
Foreman, Glamorganshire Spring Sessions 1815.

The Jury present a portion of the Newport Road, in the parish of Roath, leading from the end of 100 yards west of Romney Bridge to Lancross House near the turnpike gate on the east side of the town of Cardiff, being the junction of the parishes of Roath and Saint John Baptist, containing one mile in length and five yards in breadth, to be out of repair; and that the same ought to be repaired by the parishioners of Roath.

A similar Presentment of a part of the Cowbridge Road, in the parish of Landaff, leading from King's Castle House to a rivulet of water called Cawsy Cribyn, 3520 yards in length and 6 yards in breadth; and that the same ought to be repaired by the parishioners of Landaff.

Autumn 1815.

Coroner's Inquest taken at Cardiff, before Thomas Morgan, esq., on view of the body of a female child which was found dead on the New Bank of the river Taff in the said town, by the pine-end of M<sup>r</sup> Davies' house. The persons who found it were Thomas Stibbs and Elizabeth Millward. "One Molly Powell was going up to the Pump at the time."

Spring 1816.

Borough of Newport. The Examination of Eleanor wife of John Jones, of the said borough, labourer, taken before George Griffiths, esquire, Mayor.

A few months ago this Examinant wanted to go to Cardiff to buy necessaries, under the idea that she could purchase them cheaper there than at Newport. She went to the wife of Charles George, ostler at the Angel in Cardiff, who she believed was in the habit of passing counterfeit money. Later on the same day she met Michael Leigh near the Castle at Cardiff, who asked her how she did. She replied she had married a good and quiet husband, when he asked her what made her marry a flat. He then told her to go into the Castle Green and he would give her some money. She said "Let us go into a liquor shop first, and have something to drink." They went to a liquor shop kept by a Mr. Dalton. Next morning she met him near the Red Cow public house. Leigh had given the Examinant a forged ten-pound note by mistake for a (forged) ten-shilling note, and offered her a Cardiff pound note for it. She would not give the ten-pound note back, but undertook to get it changed and give him back a portion of the money. He then told her to be very careful how and where she changed it. She, however, returned to Newport with the forged ten-pound note, and, wishing to change it, told her husband she wanted to go to St Mary Hill fair to buy flannel. She changed the note there accordingly, after vainly attempting to do so at Caerphilly fair.

Autumn 1816.

Rachel, wife of Henry Harry, of Llandaff, labourer, was committed for having stolen, at the parish of Saint John Baptist, Cardiff, two prayer-books, three velvet pincushions, three Bibles, one Russia leather purse, one pewter inkstand, one metal inkstand, three Johnson's Dictionaries, two odd volumes of Scientific Dialogues, seven spelling-books, one metallic pocket-book and pencil, one book commonly called Ready Reckoner, two paper books commonly called the Death of Abel, three Child's Reading Books and the third volume of Young's works; all being the property of John Davies Bird, of Cardiff, bookseller. She had also stolen a number of articles from the shop of John South, ironmonger, of Cardiff.

For conspiracy in uttering forged ten-shilling notes of the Merthyr Bank, John Smith and three confederates were sentenced to two years' imprisonment and to stand in the pillory at Cardiff on two market days.

Spring 1817.

A number of persons were convicted of rioting at Merthyr Tydfil. The Riot Act was read, after the mob had begun to demolish the Penydarren Ironworks.

Autumn 1817.

This year for the first time occurs a form in lithographed handwriting, filled up in manuscript.

At this time the greater number of documents on the Files relate to Merthyr Tydfil. Cardiff is but scantily represented.

Autumn 1818.

Depositions signed by David Evans, of Cardiff, landlord of the inn called the Cardiff Boat. He gave a night's free lodging to Hannah Price, but she left the house in the night, secretly, taking with her all the valuables she could lay hands on. She was caught at Newport. The Depositions were taken before Thomas Charles, esquire, J.P. Edward Priest Richards was the Attorney for the King.

Cardiff Town to Wit. Thomas Thomas the Younger of the said Town Yeoman Acknowledges himself to be indebted to our Sovereign Lord the King in the sum of Forty pounds. William Stanley of the said Town Hatter<sup>1</sup> Acknowledges himself to be indebted to our said Sovereign Lord the King in the sum of Twenty pounds. James Rees of the said Town Publican Acknowledges himself to be Indebted to our said Sovereign Lord the King in the sum of Twenty pounds. Upon Condition that the said Thomas Thomas do personally appear at the next Great Sessions to be held for the County of Glamorgan then and there to answer an Indictment to be preferred against him for a Riot and Assaulting beating bruising and Wounding one Daniel Hooper one of the Constables of the said Town against the peace of our said Lord the King and do not depart the Court without leave then this Recognizance to be void or else to remain in full force. A similar Recognizance for James Phillpotts, yeoman, £40; Nathaniel French the younger, mercer, £20; and William Jenkins, scrivener, £20, all of Cardiff, upon condition that the said James Phillpotts do appear to answer a charge of riot and assaulting Constable Henry Hooper.

Spring 1819.

Edward Prees was indicted for a burglary at Place Turton, the house of Philip John, in the parish of Saint John Baptist, Cardiff. Among the stolen property were several silver Bank of England tokens.

A Presentment of Morris Morgan, of Aberavon, for forging several £1 Bank of England notes, contains some beautiful texting—an early example of the modern revival of this art. The prisoner was sentenced to death.

The Jurors present that John Wood, of Cardiff, esquire, made an assault upon Richard Griffiths.

Autumn 1819.

Thomas Davis was convicted of stealing two sow pigs, the property of Evan James, of Mynachty in the parish of Llandaff, farmer.

Spring 1820.

William Mathew, of Llanridian, yeoman, was robbed of his silver watch by two footpads in the White Stile Fields, near Swansea. One of the robbers held a pistol at Mathew's head, and cried "Stand and deliver!" A witness refers to a greatcoat known as a "fear-nothing."

Spring 1821.

Seven large sheets of parchment containing various documents in connection with the prosecution of John Chitty, of Cardiff, on a charge of forging several Letters of Attorney in order to enable certain persons to receive prize-money due for the services of the late Thomas Simpson, a warrant officer on board H.M.S. "Bucephalus";

William Sellers, a gunner on H.M.S. "Wolverine"; William Willock, a commissioned officer of H.M.S. "Diligence"; and John Beardley Smith, a commissioned officer of H.M.S. "Surinam."

Autumn 1821.

John Bateman Woods, Keeper of His Majesty's Gaol at Cardiff in and for the County of Glamorgan, informs the Judges, in a formal written statement, that the said gaol is insufficient in accommodation. There ought to be separation between male and female prisoners, and between those convicted and those only suspected of felony, and misdemeanants. Also there ought to be separate sick wards for the men and for the women, as also a chapel, baths, &c.

Signed "J<sup>no</sup> B. Woods, Governor."

A very long Presentment, on several skins conjoined, to the effect that the abovenamed John Chitty was convicted at the prior Session on the charge of forging, and sentenced to be hanged. And that John Shannon and Charles Thomas Gratiano Millington, both of Cardiff, feloniously caused the said John Chitty to commit the said forgeries.

Spring 1822.

It appears that at this period persons charged with felony were usually termed "labourers" in the documents, regardless of their actual position in society.

Philip Williams was killed in a fight outside the Rose and Crown public house, Cardiff, by William Thomas.

Autumn 1822.

The Jury present that Walter Williams, of Cardiff, embezzled certain money, bills, notes and securities, the property of his employer, Joseph Davies, of the same town, merchant. [M<sup>r</sup> Joseph Davies was proprietor of a well-known timber yard on the river bank, in Saint Mary Street.] The accused was found "Not Guilty."

Nathaniel French, of Cardiff, yeoman, was presented for unlawfully building a certain projecting window, commonly called a bow window, contiguous to and overhanging Angel Street in the said town. At foot of the Presentment is the note: "The Cardiff Street Commissioners prosecute this Bill for our Sovereign Lord the King." The Bill was thrown out. (Some curious entries relative to this matter will be found in a later volume, among the Minutes of the Cardiff Town Council.)

Autumn 1824.

This year for the first time there is appended to the Gaol Calendar a MS. Return of persons who have been sentenced to hard labour, the particular species of labour in which such persons have been employed, the number of hours in a day for which such persons so sentenced have been kept to work, and their behaviour. Four prisoners are named. They were employed eight hours a day, in washing and carding wool—except one, whose behaviour was indifferent, and who was put to break stones. The report is signed by the Governor, John B. Woods, and countersigned by Richard Griffiths, the Visiting Magistrate.

Joseph Davies was sentenced to death for the murder of Henry Harris, at Gellygaer, by shooting him with a gun.

Spring 1825.

Thomas Hopkins, of Merthyr Dovan, farmer, had his pocket-book stolen by Morgan Williams, in the Market House under the Town Hall at Cardiff. John Hussey, of Cardiff, yeoman, said that he was in the Market in High Street, Cardiff, when he saw the Prisoner running through the crowd; and hearing Mr Hopkins call out "Stop thief," Examinant took the Prisoner into custody, who thereupon threw away the pocket-book. Examinant immediately took it up and, shewing it to the Prisoner, said "Here it is, Mister." Prisoner said "I know nothing of it," on which Examinant replied "Why, man, it came out of your pocket this minute." Prisoner made no reply, but looked as white as the wall.

John Hussey.

Taken and acknowledged before Thomas Charles and John Bradley, Justices.

John Hussey, Town Crier of Cardiff, gives evidence in another case of larceny, in which a woman stole a greatcoat from the parlour of the Griffin inn, High Street, Cardiff.

Spring 1826.

Richard Poole was charged with stealing sheep from a farm at Radir. The following was the written Statement handed in by Joseph Gray, butcher, charged as a receiver:—

[At foot :—] Delivered in by Gray the 7th Jan<sup>y</sup> 1826 as his defence when informed he was to be committed.

W. Coffin.

John Westmacott, of Fairwater, deposed to certain suspicious circumstances observed by him when he "went to a Pie" at the house of Anne Evans at Ely, where he saw the two shepherds who are accused of sheepstealing, "drinking together with a China Man and other persons."

Charles Hardyman, one of the shepherds, was convicted of this crime and sentenced to death; Joseph Gray (the writer of the above Statement) was acquitted.

Autumn 1826.

At the head of this Bundle is a letter addressed from Ewenny Abbey, 1 August 1826, to Judge Casberd, and signed Richard Turberville Turberville, in which that magistrate defends himself against an allegation of having sent to the Great Sessions a case which ought to have gone to the Quarter Sessions. He excuses his apparent remissness on the ground that he was not bred to the law, and adds "The office of Magistrate is at all times a most unthankful one & I am sure I find it equally troublesome & disagreeable & certainly sh<sup>d</sup> not remain one inst. on the commission was there another Magistrate that w<sup>d</sup> act in the Hundred."

M<sup>rs</sup> Susannah Griffiths, of Oystermouth, widow, passed a very bad night on the 9th April 1826. Shortly after midnight she and her sister, who slept with her, were awoke by hearing their bedroom door smashed in. Then the bed-curtains were pulled apart, and two men with blackened faces and a dark lanthorn began beating on the bed with sticks. When the burglars had sufficiently terrified the poor ladies, they proceeded to ransack the house, which they accomplished in a businesslike and effective manner. Prisoners were convicted, with the exception of one who had turned "King's Evidence."

Grand Jury present a portion of the "highway leading from the Turnpike Road going from the Town of Cardiff to the Town of Lantrissant in the County of Glamorgan towards the parish of Pentyrch and until it adjoins the same parish of Pentyrch," situate in the parish of Saint Fagan's; to be repaired by the inhabitants of the said parish of Saint Fagan's.

Spring 1828.

Sentence of death is recorded as having been passed on Elias Jones, collier, aged 29, for having broken and entered a shop at Margam and stolen therefrom a piece of brown cloth and various other articles.

Also on John Rosser, for stealing two lambs at Llansannor.

Also on Elias John, for complicity in the lastmentioned felony.

Autumn 1828.

A very long Presentment on parchment, alleging perjury on the part of the Hon. William Booth Grey, of Duffryn in the parish of Saint Nicholas, in swearing a certain affidavit against Charles Courtail, of Ely House, near Cardiff, theretofore of the King's Castle, Cardiff, gentleman. It was asserted on the one hand that Frances Ann, wife of Mr Grey, had surreptitiously obtained possession of a certain Lease, at the King's Castle; and, on the other, that Mr Grey had gained possession of the document in Mr Courtail's rooms in Paris. ("No True Bill.")

Spring 1830.

This year for the first time the Gaol Calendar is printed on parchment.

Autumn 1830.

This is the last parcel in the latest Bundle of Gaol Files of the Court of Great Sessions. In the following year these Welsh Courts were abolished in favour of the English Assize system, after an existence of nearly three hundred years.

CHAPTER VI.

Great Sessions Miscellanea.

THE Welsh Records in London comprise a number of small classes of archives connected with the Court of Great Sessions. It seems expedient to group these together under the above title. I am unable to preface them with a general dissertation, because at the moment of writing these lines, I have but just commenced the making of extracts from the original documents.

I must content myself with annotating them as the work of copying and printing proceeds. Let us begin with the

Glamorgan Mainprize Rolls.

These records, under the name "Manu captio Communis Manu captio nis," exist only for the years 33—37 Hen. VIII. (1542—6), and for the reign of Philip and Mary (1553—8), and are written on two bundles of parchment, most of the skins being inscribed on both sides. Their contents are entries, in Latin, of sureties and recognizances taken as security for the future appearance and interim good behaviour of persons charged with misdemeanours. The first entry for each year was written in full; in subsequent entries only the barest particulars were recorded. The following translations will serve as examples.

MAINPRIZE of the Common Mainprize taken at Cardyff before John Pakyngton, esquire, a Justice of our Lord the King for the County of Glamorgan, at the Great Session of the County aforesaid holden at Cardyff aforesaid on Monday, to wit, the seventeenth day of March in the thirty third year of the reign of King Henry the Eighth after the Conquest. * * *

Our next set of documents is a

Calendar of Indictments

for the reigns of Philip and Mary, and Elizabeth (1582—1608). This also is in Latin, written on both sides of a number of membranes made into two neat rolls. These records differ but little from the Gaol Files as to the matters recorded in them. They contain the findings of Coroner's Inquests, very briefly set out, Presentments of Grand and Petty Juries of the County and of the Boroughs, lists of Recusants etc. They are practically duplicates of the contemporary Gaol Files, but the following additional matter has been found in them.

1593.

March 1598.

Presentments.

John Gwyn and John Pepam, both of Cardyff, by the Burgesses, "pro absentia ab eccl'ia"—for absence from church.

Henry Lewys, of Cardyff, "per le weryng of a lyu'ye coate contra &c."

Edward Gwyn of llansannor, "p' transgr' & insult' sup' constabular'"—for a trespass and assault upon the Constable.

1600.

Coroner's Inquest found that Miles Mathewe, gentleman, met his death by misadventure.

Arthur Stradlynge, gentleman, was presented for having been absent from church for a month. (The fine was twenty pounds.)

1608.

James and Lewis Turberville, gentlemen, died in Cardiff gaol, "by the visitation of God." (They were Recusants convict.)

Cristofer llewelin, of Cardyff, "for mayntaynyng one to sell drynk vnder hym."

Thomas Mote, of Cardyff, "for maynteynyng a forryner to sell drynk."

Henry Grocer, of Bristoll, "for selling Spyces beyng a forryner."

Next we come to a series of Bundles known as

which commence in the reign of Edward VI., and continue to the early part of the 18th century. Taken as a whole, they possess more interest for genealogists and legal antiquaries, than for the general public; but a certain number of items are sufficiently to our purpose to be printed here. These records are mostly written on paper, in Latin, English, and Norman French, and consist of draft Pleadings, Sheriffs' Writs, Jury Lists, entries of Bonds, copies of Deeds, &c., for the most part in a running hand. All are documents relating to the Civil side of the Court of Great Sessions, and the matters treated of are suits in respect of lands, leases and advowsons, debts, &c.

The first that we will notice is a curious piece of legal lore, probably rare outside of Welsh records; and, indeed, hardly to be met with save in the old Plea Rolls of the Principality, where it is comparatively frequent. This is the procedure whereby a party to a lawsuit, objecting to a Juror or Sheriff, "challenged" him on the ground of "cosenage," and established his point by shewing that such Juror or Sheriff was a blood relation of (usually) the opposite party. This had to be done (perhaps it was not a difficult task in Wales) by setting out a pedigree which shewed the descent of the challengee and the opposite party, step by step downwards from a common ancestor.

The heading is in Latin, and names the parties to the suit, which is "Between Henry Franklen, plaintiff, and William David ap Richard, defendant, in a Debt."

Then comes the Challenge, in Norman French, thus :—

Le chalenge fait p' dit Henry al Edward Carne chivaler ore vic' de cest Cont' pur cosinage p'ent le dit Henry et le dit Vic' in cest man' cestasavoyr vn

Then comes an explanation in Latin :—

Et sup' hoc idem q' dic' q'd Edwardus Carne Miles nunc vic' Com' p'd'c'i existit qui quidem vic' est consanguineus ip'ius quer' viz filius Cecilie filie Will'i p'ris henr' p'ris kat'ine matris ip'ius nunc quer' Et ea quidem de causa p'bet bre' d'ni R'g's & d'ne Regine de p'uenire fac' hic xxiiij Coron' Com' p'd'c'i dirigend' Et quia p'd' det' hoc non dedic' ei concedit' Et J's &c.

[Translation.]

The Challenge made by the said Henry to Edward Carne, knight, now Sheriff of this County, for cosenage, presents the said Henry and the said Sheriff in this manner, that is to say: One William Kemce had issue Harry Kemes, who had issue Catherine, who had issue Harry, the now Plaintiff. [Also the said William Kemce had] issue Cecily, who had issue the said Edward Carne, now Sheriff. And hereupon the said Plaintiff saith that Edward Carne, knight, is now Sheriff of the County aforesaid; which said Sheriff is cousin to the said Plaintiff, namely, son of Cecily, daughter of William, father of Henry, father of Katherine, the mother of the said now Plaintiff. And for that cause he proffers a Writ of our Lord the King and Lady the Queen of Pervenire facias hic xxiv., to be directed to the Coroner of the County aforesaid. And because the aforesaid Defendant doth not deny this, it is granted unto him. And the right, &c.

[It will be noticed that in this particular case the Challenge comes from the party related to the challengee, not from the other.]

Next comes a copy Lease of certain cows. We may notice this at some length, because similar chattel Leases are now of very rare occurrence:—

Copy deed of "Anthony Bushoppe of Landaph, the deane, archdeacon, p<sup>r</sup>sident and Chapter of the cathedrall chyrche of Landaphe," appointing John Smithe, of Landaphe, clerk, Doctor in the Lawe; William Gefferey, of London, clerk, L.L.D.; and James Button of Worleton, gentleman, to be their Surveyors and Auditors General of lands, tenements, rents and revenues, parsonages and churches, with all and every other ecclesiastical and spiritual promotion whatsoever in the counties of Glamorgan and Monmouth; to occupy the said offices to them and the longest liver of them. The annual fee for all the said offices is to be five pounds, divided among the grantees; the whole to become the right of the survivor. (Dated temp. Edw. 6.)

An action wherein Maurice Mathew sued Thomas Spencer for possession of certain lands, is in this Bundle represented by a Pleading in Norman-French (with a Latin gloss). This document sets forth the names of all the persons who have held the lands in fee, beginning with Gilbert Le Despenser, down to 1547, the date of the action. The owners were the Spencers of Penmark, in whose family the lands descended in tail male; and the succession in the eldest male line is given as follows:—

Gilbert le Spencer (v. 1334) m. Joan.

John Spencer.

Walter Spencer.

Nicholas Spencer.

John Spencer.

Thomas Spencer.

John Spencer.

Thomas Spencer, v. 1547.

Other persons mentioned are Margaret Gyle, Thomas Bawdrye, Elizabeth his wife, and Katherine, John and Maulde, their children, Morice Carter and Richard Hopkin—all being, apparently, then alive.

From another document of about the same date we learn that Maurice Mathew and Richard Thomas were then Coroners for the County.

Our next extract is also of the year 1547, and is an echo of troublous times :—

Then come a series of slips of paper with various legal formulæ, such as the following, in Latin and French, which relates to an obsolete procedure known as "vouching to warranty":—

Voz avez cy le vaudit henry Griff' Benett q. voch' a garante Jankin francklen & pray q il soit som' in cest count' p' le aid de ce' cause &c.

For the year 1570 there are some interesting Bonds.

The first, taken at Cardif, is that Thomas Watkyn remain a true prisoner within the castle of Cardif, in any such chamber or ward as the within-named Hughe Richard as gaoler shall appoint him, until payment of his debt.

The next, taken at llangewelagh, is sufficiently amusing. The condition is that whereas David ap Rethergh hath this day had and received of David ap David "one brassen panne of xvj gallons or there a bowtts," in pledge for 40s. to be repaid on SS. Philip and Jacob's day next will be twelve-month, for the full and quit redemption of the foresaid pan, if the said David ap David, his heirs, executors and assigns shall make a sufficient estate in the Law upon the foresaid brassen pan, a surrender or by any other means as by the learned counsel of the said David ap Rethergh shall be best advised, if the said David ap Rethergh may well and "peasably" have, hold, occupy and enjoy the said pan for ever without any claim, interest, vexation, trouble or demand of the said David ap David or of any person claiming any right or title to the same pan by any manner of means, that then this obligation to be void.

Bond, taken at Landaf, for delivery of 20 bushels of good and sufficient wheat cleanly winnowed, of the measure used at Cowbrydge.

Between John Yeman, plaintiff, and John Kemeys, defendant, in a debt.

Memorandum for 7l 10s., that the defendant buys of the aforesaid plaintiff, at Cardif, on the 2nd August in the 11th year of the now Queen etc., three dolia of white wine, called "hogsed"; to be paid on the eighth day of September, &c.

Memorandum for 10*l*, that the defendant buys of the aforesaid plaintiff, at Cardiff, on the 15th day of January in the 12th year of Queen Elizabeth &c, one dolium of claret wine, called "a pippe," and one other dolum of white wine, called "a pippe"; to be paid at Lady Day, &c.

Bond taken at Landaf, with condition that James Turbyll, esq., shall fulfil the articles of an Indenture made between him and Robert Stradling, concerning a marriage to be solemnised between Thomas Turbyll, son of the said James, and Elizabeth Stradling, daughter of the said Robert.

Bond taken at Landaf, with condition that Jenkin Morgan gwin shall pay to Edward Kemes 28*l* "at and in the manc'on howse of the seid Edward Kemes callid comenly Kevenmably."

Bond taken at Landaf, with condition that Thomas Mathew shall pay to Harry Mathew of Llanissen, gentleman, 6*l* 13*s.* 4*d.*, to the use and behoof of Agnes Mathew; and, in default, that the said Harry Mathewe shall have a right of entry into the said Thomas Mathewe's lands and tenements called Golds Landes, in the parish of Wenvoe.

Bond taken at Saint Nicholas, with condition that Thomas Turbill shall fulfil the articles of an Indenture made between him and Myles Mathewe, and Christopher St John of Ychellole in the county of Glamorgan, gentleman.

Owen Henry, of Estille in the county of Glamorgan, yeoman, was attached to answer William Herbert, late of London, gentleman, concerning a plea wherefore by force and with arms on the soil of the said William at Seynt John he digged out, took and carried away sea coals there to the value of a hundred shillings.

Morgan Gibon versus Morgan John Jevan, concerning parcel of a messuage and 14 acres of land in St Fagan's, heretofore of Philip Llewelin, then of his son John ap Morgan, and of Didvill, wife of the said Philip.

Nicholas Button, esq., prays a Writ of Disseisin in le post at the Common Law, according to the Statute of Ruthlan, against William Carne, esq., in respect of a messuage, 30 acres of land and 30 acres of pasture, in Rothe.

Indenture dated 6 September anno 12 Eliz. (1570), between William Herbert of Cardif, esq., and John Myvon of Mere in the county of Wiltes, gent', of the one part and Thomas Carne of Ewenny, esq., of the other part. Reciting Bargain and Sale by the said Thomas Carne to the said William Herbert and John Dodington of the manor of Little Nash, otherwise called St Osmond's Aishe, in the parish of Nashe in the county of Glamorgan, together with all other his messuages, lands, advowsons &c (with certain exceptions) in Lekewith, Dennis Powes, Cogan &c, or within the franchises or parishes of Cardiff and Routh. It is witnessed that the parties hereto of the first part do grant the said premises unto the said Thomas Carne and the heirs of his body, with the following remainders in succession :—

To John Ragland, son of Sir Thomas Ragland, knight, in tail male. Then to the following sisters of the said Thomas Ragland, in tail male.

Cicell, wife of John Ogans, esq.

Barbara, wife of Robert Longe, esq.

Jane Huntley, widow.

Mary, wife of John Palmer, gent'.

Then to our Sovereign Lady the Queen's Majesty, her heirs and successors for ever.

This is upon condition that the said Thomas Carne do pay unto the said William Herbert and John Dodington twenty shillings to the use of our said sovereign lady the Queen.

Deed Poll. Appointment by William Gerrard, esq., Justice of the Court of Great Sessions, of John Tyttleye, esq., to be his true and lawful Deputy in the said office.

For this year we have three Imparlance Books. On some of the blank pages are entered notes of verdicts, sentences &c. in criminal causes. Thus :—

David John Lloyd, convicted of horse-stealing, claimed benefit of clergy, read, and was "to be burnt in the Cheeke" before being released.

In the matter of Elizabeth Pierce, spinster, a pauper, versus William Gibbon, both of St. Bride's Major, the defendant was prosecuted for slandering the plaintiff. John Jones, Doctor of Law, Vicar General of the Bishop of Landaff, and Surrogate, declares that the said defendant has by such his offence incurred the sentence of Greater Excommunication in the Spiritual Court. The slander consisted of these Welsh words: "Puttein Robert Lewis wyt ti; mi a'th brwfo di yn buttein iddo, ag mi a ddawa a digon o ddynon y brwfi dy fod di yn buttein iddo." (Thou art the whore of Robert Lewis, and I will bring plenty of men to prove it.)

Harries v. Morgan. Richard Trueman & John Lewis of the towne of Llantrissant in the County of Glamorgan yeomen doe joyntly and severally make oath that they being on Tuesday the 31st day of March last in the Church porch of Llantrissant aforesaid sawe m<sup>r</sup> Gervase Powell the undersheriffe putt m<sup>r</sup> James Harries cl'r' into the possession of the said church by vertue of a writt out of the High Co<sup>r</sup>t of Chancery as the said under sheriffe then declared, & the said Richard Trueman sayth that he heard Walter Morgan clark give divers abusive words to the said undersheriffe and say that he would within 3 houres turne the said m<sup>r</sup> Harries out of the said Church, & the s<sup>d</sup> John Lewis deposeth that on Good fryday last the sayd Walter Morgan came into the Churchyard of Llantrissant aforesaid & demanded the church doores to be opened, he having great numbers of persons following him to the intent of getting into the said Church by force as this depon't believes, and as the said Morgan & his followers did give out that he would enter into the said Church by force, had not the said under sheriffe come along with the said m<sup>r</sup> Harries into the said Church to Evening prayers that day.

Alice Mathew, a prisoner in Cardiff gaol, petitions for the return of £1 5s. which she alleges were taken out of her trunk by the Neath Constables in payment of the charge for bringing her to Affidavit by Mary Hughes, of Ystradevoducke, widow. Walter Morgan came to her house at Michaelmas and threatened to sue her at law if she would not pay what he pretended was due for tithe corn of this deponent in the parish of Lanwonno, one of the chapels annexed to the vicarage of Lantrissent.

Action for slander. Gwenllian William, Spinster, versus Elizabeth David, widow, of St Bride's Minor. The words complained of were: "Whore cōmon wyt ti; wyt ti yn Kadw bawdy-house ar ben yr hewl im mrawd." (Thou art a common whore, and dost keep a bawdy-house at the end of the lane, for my brother.)

Libel in the Bishop's Court at Landaff, by the Rev. Walter Morgan, vicar of Lantrissent &c., versus Rees David, for subtraction of tithes of wheat, barley, rye, oats, pease and hay, farrow-pigs, cheese, geese, lambs and wool.

Memorandum that at a Court of Great Session holden at Cardiff came David Lewis, of the town of Lantrissent, parish clerk, and informed the Court that he was cited to appear in the Court Christian (Cur' Xtianitat') of Landaff, to reply to certain Articles exhibited against him at the motion of Walter Morgan, of Lantrissent, clerk, for the pretended defamation of the said Walter and for assaulting Jenkin ffreame and Catherine ffreame, of Lantrissent, wherefor the said David Lewis was prosecuted at Westminster and arrested by Virtue of a Writ of Quominus ex Scio; and that he uttered certain scandalous Welsh words to and concerning the said

Walter Morgan, to wit: "Rogue wyti, a phwteiniwr digwilidd," (Thou art a rogue and a shameless whomaster.) The said Walter Morgan was admitted to prosecute in forma pauperis in the Bishop's Court, for the said slander, and the said David Lewis was there declared to have incurred certain penalties for his offences in the secular Courts. Nevertheless the said Walter Morgan, pretending to have been admitted to plead in the Bishop's Court, procured the said David Lewis to be there excommunicated; and so the said David Lewis is rendered unable to have his remedy in the secular Courts, to his great loss and injury and against the laws of the land. In The Queen against William Aubrey and John Aubrey, Mary Morgan, of Cadoxton by Neath, and Mary Llewelin, of the same parish, spinsters, make oath that they were present when the said John Aubrey (then one of the High Constables for the Hundred of Neath) and his brother William Aubrey committed the assault and battery whereof they stand indicted. The only other witness of the quarrel was one Gwenllian John, who has since been seen with the defendants in Cardiff. The defendant John Aubrey offered to bribe this deponent Mary Morgan not to give her evidence, last week, when she came to Cardiff as a witness for the Queen.

From another paper it appears that the person alleged to have been assaulted was John Bevan, of Cadoxton by Neath.

Ch. Coxe.

Michaell Richards of Cardiff, gentleman, saith that the said Horton, in the beginning of October last, came into this Deponent's company, when there were present William Herbert, esq., now deceased, George Howell junior, esq., and William Morgan, gentleman; that as soon as the said Horton came in a discourse arose

“about some Gentlemen being Stopt when they were goeing a ffox Hunting over Sr John Awbrey’s lands.” This Deponent said he verily believed that Sir John Awbrey knew nothing of such interruption, the said Sir John’s steward having so informed this Deponent; upon which the Defendant answered to this effect that when gentlemen are put on unreasonable actions, the advisers endeavour to bring themselves out and to throw it on the gentlemen themselves—which reflection this Deponent apprehended the said Horton intended to this Deponent. Yet, notwithstanding, this Deponent took no notice of it, to avoid a quarrel, which he believes the said Horton designed. And this Deponent further saith that immediately afterwards the said Horton began a discourse that he understood one Mr Roger Powell made an interest on some Elections against his master (as he called him) Mr Lewis; and if he did, he said, he was ungrateful, and that, was it not for his master, the said Mr Powell would not have a vote in the County himself. And though this Deponent was well satisfied that the country knew that aspersion to be notoriously false, yet this Deponent only replied that Mr Powell was not present and that both he, his father, grandfather and great-grandfather having been freeholders in his County, he had as good a right to make what interest he could as any other person whatsoever. Whereupon the said Horton gave this Deponent the lie, and immediately assaulted this Deponent and gave him several falls and several blows in the face, head and body; and this Deponent was very much bruised in all those places, having had great hurt and much bruises by such falls and blows; and particularly one of this Deponent’s eyes was so much bruised by one of the said blows, that great bloodshed continued fixed in his eye for near six weeks. And this Deponent further saith that the said Horton having some months afterwards most cowardly assaulted Phillip Bassett, esq., by breaking a great stick on his head—as this Deponent doubts not but to prove, and for which the said Horton stands indicted—and this Deponent being made sensible of the said last notorious battery, and several other batteries committed by the said Horton on several other persons, this Deponent thought fit, for the preservation of the public peace, to cause the said Horton to be indicted for the battery of this Deponent.

CHAPTER VII.

South Wales Chantries Certificate, 1548.

URING the religious changes of the 16th century the royal confiscation of the property of ecclesiastical institutions was rigidly carried out in Wales, as in England. Before the Reformation, every charitable foundation was religious. Whether it was a trade guild, a school for poor children, a hospice for the infirm, or even a stone bridge across a river, the Church was the body which organised and maintained it.

When, therefore, in pursuance of an anti-Catholic policy, the State seized for the royal coffers the funds upon which the religious institutions rested, charities which would nowadays be considered in their nature secular were involved in the common ruin. Educational and poverty-relieving organisations suffered as much as those which were purely ecclesiastical, and funds which had been given for the maintenance of schools and hospitals went the same way as moneys left to provide Masses for the dead.

Hence, in the document before us, we see not only the extinction of lights which burned before altars, shrines and images; not only the cessation of dirges, obits and month's minds—but also the closing of the poor-school at Llandaff Cathedral, which David Mathew had founded, and in which the children were taught by the priest who daily said Mass of Requiem for the donor's soul.

The information contained in this document is of such great interest in every respect, that I have included particulars relative to some places outside the Cardiff district. Had the whole not been so long, I should have printed it in full. Very interesting is the information given as to the number of "houseling-people" (i.e., Easter communicants) in each parish. Great as the number is, it had probably fallen off very considerably since the commencement of the religious changes. The two Cardiff parishes together held 1,360 houseling-people. We have also some interesting particulars as to vestments, altar-vessels, organs and church furniture. The whole record constitutes a schedule or inventory of property which, having been given to or acquired by the Church, was now regarded as the possessions of the Sovereign, his father and predecessor having declared himself to be Supreme Head of the Churches of England and Ireland.

It would seem that Saint Mary's had already ceased to rank as the premier parish church of Cardiff—since Saint John's takes precedence in this document. If so, this was perhaps because Saint Mary's had been dependent upon the now suppressed Abbey of Tewkesbury.

The late possessions of the churches, chantries and guilds of Cardiff are referred to also in Vol. I., pp. 208—223, 254—258, 380, 397, 398, 427—429, 452, 472—483, where their gradual disappearance by sale may be traced in Ministers' Accounts and Patent Rolls.

The Guild of the Holy Trinity, established in Saint John's, was a very wealthy and important fraternity. It had an altar and chantry in the church, where Mass was daily celebrated for the members, living and dead, by a priest specially retained for that purpose. At the altar (doubtless before a painting of the Arcus Fœderis, or symbolic representation of the Trinity), a lamp was kept constantly burning. The matrix of the Guild's official seal is reproduced in

Vol. I., facing p. 261. Trinity Street takes its name from property of this brotherhood.

From a comparison of this Inventory with that drawn up in 1558 (Vol. I., p. 380), it would seem that, whereas the present (1548) list comprises only the belongings of the guilds, chantries, free chapels, colleges and hospitals, the confiscation of 1552 extended to the vestments, vessels and ornaments of the parish churches themselves. Whatever things of the like nature were restored or given to the Church in the reign of Queen Mary Tudor, were soon taken away again under Elizabeth. The difference in value between the chantry vestments and those of the church, as shewn on a comparison of the same two lists, is so strikingly in favour of the latter as to suggest that the more valuable of the chantry vestments had been confiscated earlier than 1548—especially as we find that Saint Mary's parish church this year was quite devoid of such property.

CHAPTER VIII.

Corporation Miscellanea.

THE old tin box in the Town Clerk's safe contains a mass of miscellaneous documents, on paper and parchment, the bulk of which seem incapable of more definite classification than that adopted above. Nor is it an easy matter to arrange these heterogeneous papers in a satisfactory order. The sequence in which they are here set out appears to be the only one practicable, though it is not strictly chronological. I begin this chapter with a note of nine Bonds in security for moneys payable to the Corporation for the relief of the poor. The dates range from 1687 to 1701.

Next we have a notice dated 1734, to the Cardiff Churchwardens and Overseers, concerning funds bequeathed to the poor of Cardiff by Captain John Price, R.N. This matter was, many years later, the subject of a suit in Chancery. Under date 1767 comes another notice relating to the Price charity.

The muniments of Fonmon Castle, which have been kindly submitted by Oliver H. Jones, Esq., J.P., furnish (besides other records which will be hereafter cited) an interesting appointment, by the Town Council, of two gentlemen to act as collectors of voluntary contributions towards the building of a new Town Hall at Cardiff. It is of the year 1741.<sup>1</sup>

From 1739 to 1818 I have given some notes of apprentices indentured at Cardiff.

In 1792 appears a notice to the Constables concerning the licensing of inns in the Borough, to which is appended a list of the licensed houses of Cardiff.

In 1771 appears, as a single sample of such a record, a Warrant in a bastardy case.

For 1811, 1813 and 1837 I have given an example of some papers connected with the procedure in the old Town Court, of which obsolete tribunal more will be said at a later stage of this work. The papers are an Entry of Action, and a Warrant of arrest for Debt, with the Process.

We now come to a most interesting and amusing series of small papers, viz., a selection from the Vouchers or receipts for payments made on behalf of the Corporation, 1789—1803. They abound in allusions to curious bygone customs and obsolete institutions, and also in touches of unconscious humour. Among them we have such minutiae as repairs to the Town Hall and its clock, the stocks and the pillory, the maces, the Corporation pews in Saint John's church, etc. Not the least interesting are the vouchers in connection with the celebration of occasions of public rejoicing, viz., Christmas, Royal anniversaries, national victories, the Peace of 1801, the perambulation of the bounds, and the arrival of the Judges. Similar proceedings attended the marriage of Lord Mountstuart in 1792, and the birth of his son in the following year. Such celebrations were marked by the ringing of Saint John's church bells, and, on days of special solemnity, by the illumination of the Town Hall, the holding of banquets, and free drinks in public houses—all paid for by the Corporation. This was, indeed, the era of feasting in general, and of rum punch in particular, and the loyal Cardiff burgesses thoroughly imbibed the spirit of their age. In 1792 the Cardiffians burned an effigy of Tom Paine, the Deistic and Republican writer, who had incurred the dislike of Britons by his active sympathy with the French Revolution. The effigy was fully dressed, it was hanged and burnt, and the auto dà fè seems to have been publicly announced three days beforehand. In 1796 the Corporation subscribed five guineas to the Cardiff Races, a payment which was regularly made for many years.

Previous to the Municipal Reform Act of 1835, the finances of Cardiff Borough were managed by two officials known as the Common Attornies, who were chosen annually with the other elective officers—though in practice they often continued in office over successive years. The old papers in the Town Clerk's safe comprise the Accounts of the Common Attornies from 1783 to 1822. The matters of interest most frequently referred to in these accounts are the annual chief-rent paid to the Lord, the Bailiffs' charities, Corporation rents, repair of the gates and bridges, weights and measures, the Water Bailiff's receipts, conviviality, and the Town Pump—which last occupied quite an undue share of public attention at this period. From an entry under the date 1 June 1786, we learn that there was a Record Room at the Guildhall. Considerable sums were from time to time paid to the landlord of the Cardiff Arms, that being the hostelry patronised by the Corporation for purposes of public festivity.

There are some Bills of Costs paid by the Corporation to their Town Clerk, from 1789 to 1825. They contain many curious particulars relative to such matters as Elections, wherein we may mark the intimate connection which then existed between Cardiff and her "contributory boroughs." We see also how a compliance with the Test Act, as a guarantee against Popish opinions, was indispensable to every candidate or nominee for public office. The Serjeants-at-Mace, no less than the Bailiffs, had to receive the Sacrament in the Established Church before they could validly hold their several offices.

The oldest book of the Town Court commences 1729, and continues to the year 1732; but these earliest entries are made in the volume which is mainly taken up with Minutes of Council, and which will hereafter be printed under the heading "Minutes of Council, Vol. II." Later Town Court Books extend from 1774 to 1818, but their contents are of a nature so purely formal and uninteresting, that I need not extract from them more than may serve for an illustration. The actions are all for small debts, and call for no particular dissertation. Debtors arrested by process out of this Court were detained in the custody of the Serjeants-at-Mace.

Bonds.

[On several slips of paper, tied in bundles.]

Book of the Town Court of Record.

1774—1814.

(See also Town Book II., and ante p. 322.)

[Quarto paper book bound in calf.]

Very little business was transacted by this Court, though the fortnightly sitting was always duly recorded, for the approval of the examining official. The following will serve as an example of an ordinary suit for debt in this Court :—

Cardiff Town to Wit. At a Court of Record of our Sovereign Lord the King held for the said Town on Thursday the 12th day of January in the 15th year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord George the third and in the year of our Lord 1775 before Francis Minnitt Esq<sup>re</sup> one of the Bayliffs of the said Town

John Griffith

At the next Court, in the same case, there was filed a Declaration to the Plaintiffs Damage of £30.

On the 18th May It was: Ordered that the Defendant be discharged out of the Custody of the Serjeants at Mace for the Plaintiffs not charging him in Execution unless Cause shall be shewn to the contrary by the Plaintiff or his Attorney at the next Court upon Service on them or either of them of this Rule or a true Copy hereof.

June 1st On the Motion of Mr Henry Williams, Plts. Atty: Ordered that final Judgment be entered.

June 29th Upon reading the Petition of the Defendant a poor prisoner confined for debt at the Plaintiffs suit in the Town Prison of the said Town and upon reading the Affidavits of William Cobb of the Defendants signing the Notice and Schedule and service of a true Copy thereof upon the Plaintiff: It is Ordered that the Defendant be brought up upon the next Town Court day held for the said Town in order to be discharged pursuant to the directions of the several Acts of Parliament made for the relief of insolvent debtors touching the imprisonment of their persons unless the Plaintiff or his Attorney shew then good cause to the contrary upon service of this Rule or a true Copy thereof.

July 13. It is Ordered by the Court that the Defendant John Griffith be remanded to Prison and brought up at the next Court to be held for the said Town, the Plaintiff Bloom Williams being dissatisfied with his Schedule, and that the said Plaintiff do attend at the next Court with such Witnesses as he may be enabled to produce to confirm his objections, otherwise the Prisoner will be discharged, the Plaintiff admitting Notice of this Rule.

July 27. Plaintiff signed the following agreement:—"I Bloom Williams do hereby Agree to pay and allow to the Prisoner John Griffith the weekly sum of Two shillings and four pence to be paid every Monday in every week, so long as the said John Griffith shall continue in prison in Execution at my Suit."

It is Ordered that the Prisoner be remanded back to Prison and there to continue in Execution until further Order.

September 21. Whereas it appears to the Court that matters are compromised between the Parties and that the Plt. hath waved the payment of 2/4*d.* per week to the Defendant: It is Ordered that the Defendant be discharged out of the custody of the Serjeants at Mace.

CHAPTER IX.

Custom House Records.

IDE by side with her importance as a municipal borough, Cardiff's position as a port of commerce has advanced and increased; and her harbour was for ages the headquarters of maritime jurisdiction on a coastline extending from the mouth of the Wye to Worms-head Point. All the harbours along this line (including Newport and Swansea) were then but creeks in the Port of Cardiff. Swansea and

Newport had each the privilege of a public quay, for the shipment and unloading of goods; but it was not until the year 1685 that Swansea was raised from being a mere "Creek in the Port of Cardiff" to the position of a "Member of the Head Port of Cardiff." This promotion made Swansea practically independent of the mother port, and gave her jurisdiction over the Creeks of Newton, Neath and South Burry; but the very instrument which conferred upon her this liberty, re-asserted the nominal supremacy (at least) of the county town, in matters maritime. Early in the 19th century the port of Cardiff was placed under that of Bristol, so far as concerned pilotage; but later in the century Cardiff's independence in this respect was secured. In 1847 the Treasury Commissioners declared the limits of the Port of Cardiff to extend from Redwick Pill, east of Newport, in Monmouthshire, westward to Nash Point, near Llantwit Major, in Glamorgan; thus excluding Chepstow on the east, as well as Neath etc. on the west.

The old Customs muniments of Cardiff were kept in a loft over the Custom House, which stands on the Canal bank near Saint Mary Street.<sup>1</sup> I made these extracts from them in 1897, working in the loft for about three weeks. My desk was a seaman's chest, my seat a roll of canvas. There was not room to stand up, and the services of a tallow candle were employed to give the required light. The books were covered with the dust of at least a score of years, and in many cases had suffered severely from damp. Yet I never spent a more enjoyable three weeks of record-searching. The contents of these long-forgotten tomes of musty manuscript proved to be replete with information of the greatest possible interest and importance, bearing upon local history. While, in the spacious rooms beneath me, a large staff of officials were dealing in their ledgers with the huge exports of modern Cardiff, I was going page by page through the records of a period when the trade of this port was represented by a score or so of coasting vessels; when the purchase of a new writing desk for the office was a matter to agitate the mind of the Collector of Customs; when the Searchers were almost daily in conflict with armed smugglers; and when the authorities were officially informed that no coal was exported from Cardiff, nor ever would be. The busy roar from the streets of the Welsh metropolis died away in my dusty retreat, and all that I heard was the plashing of the sea on the pebbles of Penarth, the grinding keel of the King's boat as she ran ashore under the Kymin, and the stealthy footsteps of a little party on their way to look for a secret store of rum and lace in the cellars of the inn by the beach.

The old manuscript records of the Cardiff Custom House consist of Order Books, containing formal instructions and directions signed by the chief officials of Trinity House; Letter Books, with copies of letters sent to the London authorities from the officers at Cardiff;

<sup>1</sup>They are now stored in the Book Room of the new Custom House at the Docks, as I am informed by the present Collector, M. J. Harte, Esq.

Books of Record of Vessels entering and leaving the port, with particulars of their cargoes, destination, &c.; Account Books.

The local Customs officers and servants were the following:—

Comptroller Collector
Customer
Surveyor
Weigher and Meter
Searchers
Tide Waiters
Boatmen.

In 1689 the Lords of the Treasury order that Exchequer and Revenue officers are not to refuse cracked money in payment of their salaries.

In the same year an embargo on the West Coast ports, from Saint Ives, in Cornwall, to Carlisle, was re-imposed after being temporarily raised in consideration of Bristol fair.

In 1690 special orders were issued for preventing the escape of Jacobite fugitives.

In 1710 similarly stringent directions were given the Customs officers to look out for priests, Irish officers and Papists generally, who were coming over from the Continent in the interests of the "Pretender," Prince James Edward Stuart.

In 1714 the Commissioners of Customs send a copy of the document whereby the Court of Exchequer in 1685 had defined the limits of the Ports of Cardiff and Swansea. It is interesting to note that the Commissioners of the Exchequer, in defining those limits, speak of the Quay of Cardiff as "of right belonging to the said town," while Swansea Quay is spoken of as "of right belonging to His Grace Henry, Lord Duke of Beaufort."

In 1730 an extra allowance was made to the Collector, to enable him to keep a horse. He is to "ride the coast" from Redwick Pill to Nash Point—exactly the limits assigned to the Port of Cardiff in 1847. It appears that the coast-line between those two points was the district subject to the personal supervision of the Collector of Cardiff, and that this was what Trinity House meant when, in 1718, they wrote of Redwick Pill and Nash Point as being the "extents" of Cardiff Port.

In 1728 the Trinity Brethren insist that Swansea had been appointed "a distinct port from Cardiff," although it remained "a member of Cardiff." Consequently, coals shipped from Swansea to Cardiff must pay duty at the latter place.

In 1729 mention is made of goods carried coastwise from Caerleon. The ancient capital of Siluria still possesses a couple of deserted wharves and ruinous warehouses, but it is probably many years since a sea-going vessel hailed from that creek.

The Letter Books contain frequent reports as to the smugglers who swarmed in the Bristol Channel, and show that the Cardiff Customs officers found great difficulty in impressing upon their superiors in London the necessity for reinforcing the preventive strength of the Coast Guard—for such the Customs Officers were at this period.

In 1737 the Cardiff officials write to Trinity House that the country people "are not so desperate" as to attempt anything in the way of forcible wrecking or smuggling; but later in the same year they have to report the wholesale pillaging of a wrecked vessel at Nash Point.

In this same year we have an entry shewing that the trade of Newport was by law strictly confined to coasting, all carriage of goods to or from foreign parts being the exclusive privilege of the Head Port of Cardiff.

The Jacobite rising of 1745 occasioned the sending out of circular instructions from Trinity House, calling upon the Customs officers to be zealous in discovering and reporting any designs of disaffected persons. This the officers promise with apparent enthusiasm, and further send a cheerful report to the effect that there are no Papists or Nonjurors in Glamorgan, except a few "of the meaner sort." They call attention, however, to the defenceless state of the South West coast of Wales.

Towards the end of the 18th century, the boldness and activity of the smugglers are very surprising; the Revenue Officers were almost powerless against them. A desperado of the name of Knight fortified himself on Barry Island and defied the authorities for a considerable time.

A few words must here be said as to the Book of Entrances and Clearances, 1686 to 1767. This is undoubtedly the oldest record in existence relative to the business of the Port of Cardiff. It commences at a time when the official entries of shipments were still written in Latin; and the inconsiderable nature of the trade of the port during the period named may be gauged by the fact that the whole of the entries are contained within a few pages written at the beginning and end of the volume, which is otherwise blank. The first part consists of entries outwards from Cardiff. Only four vessels sailed hence in the year 1727, and seven in 1728. There are only three entries for 1730, each being of the "Charming Sally," of Dublin; and up to this date the only export is oak bark. At the other end of the volume are some entries inwards, the first being of the year 1686. I have thought it best, in view of the importance of this, the earliest document of Cardiff's commerce, to print the volume practically in full. It deserves to be perpetuated in its entirety.

There are probably few readers who will not enjoy these word-pictures of the days when our mighty seaport was a drowsy county town, with a few coasting vessels to nestle in the mud of the river's mouth, waiting their turn to creep up to the quay near the Market Cross.

The Commissioners of Customs ordered the Collector at Plymouth to promise a reward of £50 for the apprehension of these men.

1732. "Having Advised with our Solicitor on that part of your l<sup>re</sup> dated the 15th Ult<sup>o</sup> relating to Thomas Isaack carrying away a Cask of Brandy after it was Seized by the officers, and Staving it Youre to prosecute the s<sup>d</sup> Isaack for this offence before the Justices of the Peace reporting to us the Success."

William Richards appointed Surveyor and Deputy Comptroller (but not to act as Coal Meter), vice George Watkins resigned. He was subsequently deputed to act as Coal Meter.

William Jones, Extraordinary Boatman and Tidesman at Cardiff.

Rowland Vaughan, Boatman at Penarth, vice Edward Williams deceased.

The officers are to watch for Hugh Crouch, master of the ship Prideaux who turned two Spanish supercargos adrift in an open boat, off Barcelona, whereby one of them was drowned. Also for three valuable pictures stolen from the Royal Palace of the Old Louvre at Paris. The annexed Memorial of the French Minister gives particulars of the theft. The pictures were torn out of their frames.

The first, drawn by Titian, represented the figure of a man "Drest in Black near a Pillar Drawn to the Life."

The second, by Tintorett, was a Venetian lady "Drest in that Country habit."

The third, by Hannibal Carachi, represented D<sup>r</sup> Boisly holding in one hand a death's head, and in the other a paper, drawn as large as life.

1733. Fourteen pounds of smuggled human hair was seized at Aberthaw.

Letter Book.

Commencing 29 September 1732.

[Quarto vol. bound in calf. Fair condition.]

The Hawk Revenue Sloop, Capt. Hawshaw, was appointed in 1732 to cruise between Milford and King Road.

The Cardiff Custom officials write to the Board in London under date 5 February 1732, informing them that "the Smuglers do begin in this Channel to appear already, and about a fortnight ago there was one of them, of Aberthaw & Barry, but no Boat did Venter out to her, the prosecution against Butler and Walters having so much alarm'd them." They request the Board to station in the Channel a small sloop, "built plain, without any painting or ornament, nor any Colours to be put out." They apprehend that then the smugglers "would be afraid of every sloop they saw, that came near to her burthen, when she is so disguised."

1733. At this time many vessels entered the Port laden with "hillingstones," i.e., healing-stones, or roofing-stones.

Letters to London from Cardiff were taken by the Monmouth carrier, at this period.

1734. Writing to London, the Cardiff officials report concerning smugglers that "At Aberthaw and Barry, when any boats goes out to em from thence, the Owners of em have always a Spye on the officer; and when they find him of one side of the River at Aberthaw, they'll land what they have of the other; and by reason there's no Boat in the Service, nor any boat on those acco<sup>ts</sup> to be had for love or money, and the Officer obliged to go to a bridge about two Miles round, they have time enough to secure the goods before he can get there. Nay, there is instances that they have run'd goods in the day time before the officers face in this Manner. At Barry tis the same case; if they find the officer on the Iseland they'll land the other Side of the Harbour. If the other Side of the Harbour, they'll land on the Iseland, and the officers can't get over till the Tide is out, w<sup>ch</sup> may be five or six hours; and there is so much Cover on the Iseland, and such conveniencys for hiding of goods the other side, that an Officer has but a poor Chance to meet with em after they are landed. At Ogmore River it is the same case, and so at Aberavon."

The authorities' opinion was that the sloop Severn stationed at Portishead, should suffice to prevent smuggling in the Bristol Channel; but to this the Cardiff officials humbly demur, and crave the appointment of an effective Revenue cruiser.

1735. Account of a seizure of rum at Aberthaw. The officer saw a small boat go out of the harbour to a ship going up Channel. About noon the boat returned, and one Richard Forest came on shore very drunk, with one Thomas Sweet to whom the boat belonged. One George Robins stayed on board to keep the boat off, so that the officer could not get on board. Sweet told the officer that Robins had a mind to have a little fun with him, and that he had a few bottles of rum on board. The officer borrowed a boat and made for Robins, but the latter escaped in the direction of Barry. After nightfall, by moonlight, the officers on shore saw Sweet and Robins bring the boat into Aberthaw harbour, and a person come ashore with a cask on his back. The excise officer gave chase on horseback; and on the smugglers' being overtaken, one of their party, Thomas John, took a stone and caved in the cask.

1737. The Cardiff officials write to London denying the report that great quantities of tea and other goods are daily run on their coast. Since the Act of Indemnity came in force the smugglers have made no attempt within this district. As for soldiers, there are none in these parts, neither have there been any quartered here time out of mind. There is no occasion for them, for the country people are not so desperate in these parts as to attempt anything by force.

The Pye snow, with tobacco from Virginia to Bristol, Charles Adlam master, and the brig Priscilla, likewise with tobacco from Virginia for Bristol, John Longland master, were wrecked at Nash Point. The authorities had great difficulty to keep "the country" from pillaging the wreckage. The merchant, a M<sup>r</sup> Chamberlain, went down there. The hogsheads were all damaged, but the people had hoisted some of the cargo up the cliff with ropes. M<sup>r</sup> Chamberlain desires it may be thrown into the sea, in the interests of the merchants and the Revenue. The mob were very insolent, not only pilfering the damaged hogsheads in spite of the officers, but even burning the hull to get at the old iron. Three or four hundred people assembled there every night "from all parts of the Country towards the Hills; p'ticularly from a place calld Bridgend, from whence came a Gang of Ruffians the last day the Proclamation was read."

The Cardiff officials write to London on behalf of Mr Thomas Williams, "Deputy Cust<sup>r</sup> at Newport (a Creek of this Port)." They certify that the said Mr Williams "is very well vers'd in the Coast Trade, w<sup>ch</sup> is the only Business they have in that Creek (all Importation of goods from foreign Parts, or Exportac'on of goods to foreigen Parts, being confined to the Key of Cardiff by virtue of a Commission from the Court of Excheq<sup>r</sup> dated the 23<sup>d</sup> November 1685 and executed at Cardiff the 31th of December 1685.)" It appears from this document of 1737 that foreign goods could not be imported to or exported from any other place within the Port, except by Special Licence of the Commissioners of Customs.

1738. Process has issued against certain men concerned in the looting of the Pye snow; but the officials are of opinion that, unless some extraordinary gratuity is promised to the Deputy Sheriff, they will never be taken, "for he must run the Risque of his life, there being no less then thirty or forty of the Mob that live together in a little Town called Bridgend in this County, and Most of them Shoomakers."

In a subsequent letter they say they learn that the soldiers from Swansea will need to be paid about £20 a man, to take Edward David and Lazarus George, the Bridgend looters, as "they are a very desperate people." Also that they suspect the Deputy Sheriff is a friend of these men, as he did not grant a warrant on the process of the Crown prosecutor.

The officials submit that the office of Coal Meter should continue to be discharged at Cardiff by a Customs Officer, as "the Quantity of Coals &c Dischard in this Port will not be worth any Persons while to be appointed Meter unless he is an Officer; and there is no Officer that resides at Cardiff besides the Coll<sup>r</sup> and Survey<sup>r</sup>, the last being Meter."

Jan<sup>y</sup> 2. Smuggling at Penarth. "Acco<sup>t</sup> of a sm<sup>l</sup> Seizure made on Board of a Coasting Vessel that uses no other trade than to carry Culme for Burning of Lime and Stones to the Sea Walls . . . The Officers seeing light on Board the Vessel before day, some time before high water, made em suspect they were taking in some goods or other; for there was no other Vessel in the Harbour at that time. And when they went on Board they found the two Casks of Brandy Open and Unconcealed in the hold; and when they asked the Master whose it was and how he came by it, he Answered the Man of the house might inform them (meaning Edwards.) This Edwards has lately Built a House by the Harbour, where there never was one before, and has been an old offender . . . and we presume his living in such a place (as he is a Man of some substance) is wth a Design of defrauding the King of his Customs. The King's Boat at Pennarth is Moored on his ground (but never any Acknowledgem<sup>t</sup> paid) and he has told the Survey<sup>r</sup> that he will cut the Moarings & let her goe adrift, and likewise threatens the officers or any body Else that will offer to come Near the house in the Night time; and the Officers have no other way . . . to go to the harbour without passing Close by his house." The vessel's owner is M<sup>r</sup> Edward Lewis.

1738 Feb<sup>y</sup> 9. "William James, Extraordinary Boatman at Pennarth, was obliged by the Justices of the Peace to serve the office of a Constable; and by virtue of a Warr<sup>t</sup> was searching for some Young Timber Trees &c. that had been Cut down and Carried Away, found upon his search in one house about a gallon of Brandy in Bottles, and in the Barn belonging to this house a Brandy Ca<sup>s</sup> in a Manner quite out not having above a Pint in it; and in another house a Brandy Ca<sup>s</sup> having about a gallon in it, w<sup>ch</sup> he bro<sup>t</sup> here last tuesday the 6th inst. but not in Due time the Quantity being so sm<sup>l</sup> as not to answer Condemnac'on of it self. . . . tis Undoubtedly part of Edwards's Brandy and the Persons in whose Custody it was found offered to take their oaths they found it on the Beach near Pennarth head the Night the 18 gallons was Seized; and wee are in hopes of having the whole Villany Discovered very soon, for the Persons Concerned with Edwards have quarrel'd among themselves, w<sup>ch</sup> I hope will be a Means to discover the whole fact, and we humbly beg your direc'ions herein. We are &c.

W. R."

The full name of the above smuggler was Edward Edwards, of Penarth, Victualler.

1739 June 16. Report a design for carrying pit coal from Cardiff to Bridgewater without paying duty, and ask for directions.

June 29. Desire directions as to whether the embargo necessitates their stopping passage boats that carry cattle, pigs &c. from Sully to Uphill. The stoppage of these has already been of great detriment to two fairs in this neighbourhood, by preventing the English drovers from coming over, on which the sale of cattle in this country entirely depends.

1740. Suggest sending letters in future by the Bristol carrier, as the Monmouth carrier goes now so seldom.

About this time considerable correspondence took place on the question whether Cardiff was below the Holms and therefore on the open sea, or above the Holms and therefore in the river Severn.

1741. The Stradling family hold a Patent from the Crown permitting them to carry live goods to any place in England that borders on the Bristol Channel.

William Richards, Surveyor & Comptroller of Cardiff, having applied for an extension of leave, Llewelyn Trahern, the Collector, writes that he can well spare the said Richards, who is "a loose infirm man."

1743. In reply to enquiries from headquarters the Collector submits that the subordinate officials' "keeping a Couple of Cows to make their own butter & Cheese & getting a Neighbour to sow an Acre or two of Wheat for em some years in order to Enable em to live on their own P'visions Prevents their being Absent from their Duty in going to Markets to buy provision."

The Collector suggests that the seven Preventive Officers of the Port should be provided with "a pair of Pistols, a hanger & a Short Gunn of three foot."

We have rece<sup>d</sup> two letters from m<sup>r</sup> Secr<sup>y</sup> Wood Dated the 26<sup>o</sup> Ult<sup>o</sup> One in regard to the Unnatural Rebellion And the Seditious & Traiterous Designs Carrying on Against his Majestys Person & Government The other in regard to the Remittance of the Kings Money. As to the former had we rece<sup>d</sup> no such Letter We do Assure Your hon<sup>s</sup>, that Nothing in us sh<sup>d</sup> be wanting, to give You the Earliest Acco<sup>t</sup> of any Seditious or Traiterous Designs, Carried on Against his Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Person & Government, And to Disclose and Make known the Same to his Maj<sup>ty</sup> or any thing tending thereto, that shall or may come to our knowledge.

The Deputy Lieutenants and Justices of the Peace for this County (of Glamorgan) Met last tuesday by order of his Grace the Duke of Bolton [lege Beaufort] (Our Lord Lieutenant) And Isued out their Warr<sup>ts</sup> to the Sev<sup>l</sup> Constables throughout the County, requiring them that they sh<sup>d</sup> make a Return of the Names & places of abode, of all Papist Reputed Papists and non Jurors, on Tuesday Next in order to proceed Against them as the Law Directs, But thank God, we hant one Gentleman in this County of any ffigure or ffortune that is a Papist or Nonjuror. And we are told that there are but Very ffew of the Meaner Sort, And every thing in this County is quiet and Easie as Yet, But what we have most reason to be Afraid of here, is, the Landing of a fforeign fforce to the Westward, The Countys of Pembroke Carmarthen and Glamorgan having not one place of any Strength to resist their progress, besides the Want of Arms. And in Case any should land Miserable must be our Condition But hope our ffleets will either Deter or obstruct their Wicked Designs.

As to the latter We had Remitted all the Kings Money in our hands before we rece<sup>d</sup> the said Letter As we have been always Carefull to Do at the end of every Quarter. We are &c.

[Vellum-bound folio Letter Book, commencing 26 December 1786, and ending 26 December 1794. Good condition.]

1787. "It was thought absolutely necessary on the Death of Charles Bassett, to put a Person at Aberthaw immediately; for if that place had been left open, it would have been fill'd with Smugglers."

There is no more smuggling tobacco carried on by vessels here now; "that Trade was totally put a stop to by our driving that Notorious Smugler Knight from the Island of Barry. When his armed Vessel was there, he was in such Force that it was impossible to approach the Island."

Sloop Betsey, of Caerleon.

1788. The Collector sends to London a full account of two expeditions against Arthur, the smuggler. He asks them to station another cutter at Penarth; "but we are confident that Sixty Men of light Infantry are likewise wanted. How can the People of Neath and Swansea face Arthur without some such Assistance? And as in all probability the Island of Barry will be again inhabited by Smuglers, we shall not be able to approach the Place without Soldiers."

"The Island of Barry, the Fortress of Knight the Notorious Smugler." The people of the Island ill-treated Alexander Wilson and Evan Thomas, the Deputy Comptroller & Surveyor. Their chief assailant was William Doggett.

"We have forwarded to Your Honors by the Coach this Night, which sets up at the Swan with Two Necks, Lad Lane, the Accounts of this Port for Midsummer Quarter 1788."

"There are at this Port three private Wharfs for Shipping and Landing Goods, chiefly Iron."

Good Hope, Cardiff, John Jenkins.

Providence, Cardiff, Thomas Miles.

The Collector sends an account of a seizure of wool, made by Alexander Wilson, Surveyor, and Thomas Dayas, Officer of Excise. The wool was not intended to be carried coastwise, but was intended for a Fair at Caerphilly, up in the country about 10 miles from this place, to be sold to the country women for making stockings. He will endeavour to make the new Act of Parliament known to the ignorant country people as soon as possible.

1789. Zephyr, Cardiff, James Moss.

Friends, Cardiff, William Evans.

1790. Venus, Cardiff, John Westley.

Evan Thomas, Deputy Comptroller till now.

Moderator, Cardiff, Thomas Miles.

Tredegar, Cardiff, John Smithers.

Prince of Wales, Cardiff, Thomas Johnson.

Minerva, Cardiff, Christopher Wilson.

William Jones, Deputy Comptroller, nominated only.

Richard and Betty, Cardiff, John Rowland.

Certain accounts were forwarded from Cardiff to London. They were sent "to Bristol, to be forwarded from thence by Wiltshire's waggon w<sup>ch</sup> sets up at the White Swan on Holborn Bridge." Such was the usual mode of forwarding at this time.

1769 Feb<sup>y</sup>. The French snow La Concorde, of Calais, Dominique Berthe master, 140 tons burden, overset suddenly off Aberthaw. The crew got ashore in their small boat, but the vessel drifted down to the rocks westward of Saint Donat's Castle, and there stranded. "The Country People as soon as ever the Tide left her according to the savage Inhuman and Detestable Custom of the Country fell upon her and before I c<sup>d</sup> get together the officers belonging to the Port and arrive at the Place, it being almost Twenty Miles Distant, at least two thousand People with Hatchets were at work on her cutting and destroying everything they met with and carrying off the Brandy and wine in small casks a great Part of w<sup>ch</sup> they spilt in the general hurry and confusion which must ever attend a scene of such Rapacity and Devastation. I exerted myself as much as possible at the hazard of my Life and the officers that attended me indeavoring to Prevent them but to no purpose. The Justices that attended were equally unsuccessful. The Country People by taking lights on Board to work in the night set her on Fire by w<sup>ch</sup> she was intirely destroy'd."

The County Justices met at Cowbridge and issued Warrants against four persons. One of these was taken, but the Constables suffered him to escape. A threatening letter was sent to the Cardiff Collector about his proceedings in this affair. The Collector asks to be allowed to purchase two brace of pistols and sidearms.

Hon<sup>d</sup> Sirs,

Having been desir'd to Report at what Creeks or places (except the legal quays) within the Limits of this Port Goods are permitted to be Landed or Shipped to or from Foreign parts or Coastwise And by what Orders of the Board such Indulgences are Granted :—This is to Inform Your Honours that according to the Information I have Receiv'd from the oldest Officer in the Port, Goods have been permitted to be Landed at Rumney Bridge, at the Bank and Old Quay below Cardiff, at Leckwith Bridge on the River Ely, and at Sully, but never without an Officer being Present, this have been the Old Established Custom and its Absolutely Necessary that the Indulgence should be Granted, but I cannot find any particular Order for the Granting the Indulgencies above mentioned.

We are with the Utmost Respect

1773 Aug<sup>t</sup> Account of a seizure of china ware at Hay, near Brecon. They are to be sold at the Cardiff Customhouse, and "most of the Gentlemen and Ladies in this Country are dispos'd to buy them. We had a tedious Journey over the Welsh Mountains, and were Six days out on this Expedition."

Hon<sup>d</sup> Sirs

In Consequence of your Order of the 10th Inst. we beg leave to Inform your Honours that no Coal can be ever raised within this Port in Order to be ship'd for Exportation or to be carried Coastwise, its distance from the Water rendering it too expencive for any such Sale. We therefore apprehend it's unnessesary to name any Officer of the Customs, or other Persons for any Appointment in that Commission to be issued out of the Court of Exchequer for executing the Powers given by the Act for admeasuring Waggon and other Carriages used in loading Coals on Board Ships, at the Several Ports in this Kingdom in the same manner as at the Ports of New Castle and Sunderland. We waited to see some Gentlemen who have the Coal Mines in this country in Order to be informd in regard to the state of them, and we now find that they have not the least Idea of anything here but for the internal use of the Country.

14th Oct<sup>r</sup> 1775.

[Letter Book, bound in vellum, in fair condition. 26 October 1746 to 20 December 1766.]

1748. The Collector and Comptroller send to London a Copy Information "made by one Thomas Jones but the s<sup>d</sup> Jones was in Drink when he made it & we have not been able to get him to us when Sober to goe before a Magistrate & the Magistrate refused to give him his Oath when Drunk." The Information states that some Irish soap was landed "at a place called the Gall Gate being bro<sup>t</sup> up as this Deponent believes out of a Tile Boat at Pennarth." The vessel was laden with "Hillingstones" and empty Cyder hogsheads. "The Information was made on a quarrel that hap'nd betwixt the s<sup>d</sup> Jones & Hugh Lewis, however in time of Peace we have had several instances of those Tile Boats bringing over Tea & Brandy &c from Cornwall."

The original Information before the Collector is pinned into the book, and bears date 21 Nov. 1748.

1750. Mr Richard Priest was captain of one of the market boats running to Bristol.

John Phillips, aged 75, of Penarth, is an object of charity, for his pension has been in arrears three years last Christmas. He has borrowed money on the credit of it, and, if the Collector had not accepted of orders for the payment thereof, Phillips "would have been Clap'd in Jail long since."

1752. The Officers report that "of late Years there are so Many little Shops set up in the Country for Selling Tobacco &c within a sm<sup>l</sup> Distance of this Town & Newport & Aberthaw that they cant be less in Number (as we conceive) than four score or a hundred, and Chiefly by Ignorant Illiterate people that Dont understand one word of English who Seldom come for their own goods but Send by a Carrier more Ignorant than themselves and how Such people can take the Oath required on the back of the Certificate . . . is humbly Submitted for your Consideration."

The Indian Prince, of Bristol, John Watkins commander, homeward bound from Guinea, laden with rum, sugar, cotton, ebony and about a ton of "Elephant's Teeth," was stranded a league to the westward of Aberthaw, and was promptly pillaged by the country people.

1766 March 5. Llewelyn Traherne died. Edmund Traherne (his son) succeeded him as Collector.

1782 July 12. The Collector reports to London and mentions that "In regard to Bonds likewise as are given on the Exportation of Coals, we have no Coals Exported from this Port, nor ever shall, as it would be too expensive to bring it down here from the internal part of the Country."

August 17. "We have seized and brought into this Port, a small Vessel of about 18 Tons, a Smuggler, very well Built and will do Exceedingly well for a Customhouse Boat at Pennarth. She has sustained some Damage by striking on the Rocks at Bracksea Point near Aberthaw where she was left by the Smugglers at the appearance of the Officers at Aberthaw. A Horse was likewise taken loaded with Brandy."

In answer to enquiries from headquarters, the Collector reports that "The Telescope was bought without any order, but is thought very necessary, as we can see every Vessel that goes to the Flat Holmes an Island where Smugglers at present run a great deal of Goods, and cannot just now be prevented by us as our Boat is too Old to go into any Sea."

1783. Eighteenpence a day is stated to be "the common hire of the Men that Work about the Keys and that are Used to the Water."

1784 April 3. Report of a seizure of wine on Barry Island. "Tho<sup>s</sup> Knight a Noted Smuggler who resides a great Part of his Time on the said Island," told Thomas Hopkins, Waiter and Searcher at Barry and Sully, that the wine should remain there; "which Wine on entering the House a Second Time was all removed from thence. . . . The said Knight carries on a very Considerable Trade in the Smuggling Way, and is so strongly supported, that there are but particular Times that I can venture to send my Officers to the said Island, he has sometimes I am informed 60 or 70 Men with him from on Board a large Cutter on the Smuggling Trade, which we suppose Knight to be the Proprietor of."

April 17. Great activity among Smugglers. "A large Cutter is now off the Island of Barry of 24 Guns and 35 Men running Goods on the said Island."

Nov<sup>r</sup> 18. Correspondence re seizure of tobacco. "it's with great Truth we assure you that the People here are in such Dread of Knight and his Gang, that we found a difficulty in finding People to Work for us."

1785. "Herewith we return you Griffins Petition relative to his Boat seized at Knights Island of Barry . . . and beg leave to remark beside, that we can't conceive any body has any Business there, who is not connected with Knight in Smugling."

Mr Evan Thomas shall be sworn into the office of Deputy Comptroller (in the room of E. Jones deceased) "as soon as we find a Sentence of Excommunication, which now Stands against him, is taken off."

March 29. "Hon<sup>d</sup> Sirs—We have enquired for what Cause Evan Thomas (who was to have been Admitted to the office of Deputy Comptroller at this Port) is under a Sentence of Excommunication, and find it was for Defamation and excessive Abuse a like behaviour which in his Liquor he is daily guilty of. He is the most improper man for Business that ever was thought of; nor is he likely to get rid of the Sentence of Excommunication now standing out against him, he has no Money to pay the Expence of the Court, nor does he care the least about it."

Evan Thomas was appointed soon afterwards.

Knight, the smuggler, is now at Lundy Island, having been driven from Barry. The protection of his armed brig having been removed, smuggling has greatly diminished here.

Evan Thomas eventually got into trouble, a ship's master charging him with dishonesty.

1795. Sloop Five Brothers, of Caerleon.

On board the Cardiff Castle, one of the market vessels running to Bristol, the officers seized (with other articles) "a box containing 2680 plain round copper pieces, about the size of halfpence . . . and as this part of the country abounds with copper pieces passing current as halfpence, tho' intrinsically not worth a farthing, it is clear that the pieces above mentioned were designed for the like purpose, and that they were purchased considerably under the value for which they were intended to pass."

1797. Report that "owing to the shallowness<sup>d</sup> of the water at this port at Spring Tides, and the consequent inconvenience to the Trade by reason thereof, no Holidays (except the Sabbath) have been strictly observed at this Port."

Henry Hollier, Collector, vice Edmund Traherne deceased.

1798. Large seizure of brandy and port wine on Barry Island.

1799. Edward Morgan was appointed Collector.

1800. Mr Brewer, the Searcher at Newport, denies the charge that he practises as a surgeon and midwife. He has resigned such practice to his son.

William and Jane, Cardiff, John Llewelyn.

21 June 1806.

Sir,—Agreable to the directions contained in your Letter rec<sup>d</sup> this day We beg leave to inform you that there are five Pilots occasionally acting in this Port and as we are informd by one of them (who has been in that practice upwards of twenty years) subject to no authority or control. We are Sir

Sir,—Since we wrote on saturday respecting the jurisdiction over the Pilots in this Harbour, it has been suggested to us by the Town Clerk that it is vested in the Constable of the Castle Senior Alderman & Bailiffs of the Town of Cardiff. Yet we have reason to think, as we before stated from the authority of the oldest Pilot, that no control or jurisdiction has ever been exercised over them.—We are, Sir, &c.

My Lords,

Being engaged in a considerable Mercantile Trade at Newport in Monmouthshire, I take the liberty to state to your Lordships the very great inconvenience to which the trade of that Port is subject in consequence of the present necessity of every Ship's papers being taken by the Masters to Cardiff, a distance of 12 miles before the Cargo's can be landed, and of the Masters attending there in person, accompanied by a respectable person sent by the Merch<sup>ts</sup> as Bondsman, before the vessels can clear out for Ireland or any foreign Port, which occasions much delay & extraordinary expense and a reason to many for not bringing their Vessels to the Port, who would otherwise come there.

I therefore humbly beg leave, on behalf of myself & the other mercantile part of Newport, to submit to your Lordships the propriety of appointing a proper Officer at Newport to supersede the necessity of Masters of Vessels going to Cardiff for y<sup>e</sup> above purposes, and trust that as the same indulgence has been granted to other Ports relatively situated as Newport is to Cardiff, where an increase of Trade has taken place in the Minor Port, your Lordships will graciously condescend to comply with this request, especially when the fact of the trade having increased in the proportion of 10 to 1 in the course of the last ten years is stated, & can be clearly demonstrated; indeed it appears by the last Quarterly Acco<sup>t</sup> of the Export from Newport that upwards of 80 Sail of Shipp<sup>s</sup> laden with Coals only, have cleared out for Ireland, independent of a considerable Iron Timber and Bark Trade.

Humbly praying your Lordships to take the matter into Consideration, I remain, my Lords, &c. &c.

The Lords Comm<sup>rs</sup> of H.M. Treasury are pleased to refer the foregoing Petition to the Comm<sup>rs</sup> of H.M. Customs, who are desired to consider the same and report to My Lords what in their opinion may be fit to be done therein.

By Order of the Commissioners.

G. Delavand.

Cust: Ho: Cardiff.

Pursuant to your Honors order of the 14th Inst., we beg leave to report on the Petition of M<sup>r</sup> T. Edwards Jun<sup>r</sup> which we have returned enclosed, that the statements therein are very erroneous, inasmuch as no necessity exists for Bondsmen to come to Cardiff with the Capt<sup>s</sup> to clear out, as all Masters of Vessels clearing here obtain sufficient Bondsmen at this Town which is much larger & more populous than Newport, nor have we for many months had an instance to the contrary; nor is he correct when he says upwards of 80 Vessels cleared with Coal only for Ireland independent of a considerable Iron Timber and Bark Trade—the N<sup>o</sup> of Coal being 71 & the whole number cleared being precisely 79 not independent of, but including the considerable Iron, Timber and Bark Trade he speaks of, and the greater part of those wou'd have stopped at Cardiff had there been a supply here, several Masters having put in here in their Boats to inquire for a Stem (the Coals of Cardiff being more markeatable in Ireland) which not being able to obtain they proceeded to Newport, added to which the Number at this Season is always much greater, for in the two Winter Quarters very few foreign Vessels come either here or to Newport on account of the dangerous Navigation; nor are Captains put to the inconvenience he describes, of going 12 miles before the Cargo can be landed, on the average 29 Vessels in 30 come in Ballast.

But was the Petitioners Statement correct we cou'd not for a moment suppose that your Honors woud permit the business of this Port to be so totally deranged as it must be, were the Officers at our Creek permitted to have the management of any part of our foreign trade which so universally belongs to the Head Port & which we are confident without our personal attention woud soon get into a state of confusion, as it is with much difficulty we can (in their present Coasting Trade which is very considerable) keep them correct to their time & statements, having often occasion to address them on this head—on the mere assertion of an Individual who as we find on inquiry has not long lived at Newport & has lately entered into a speculative Concern in a single Colliery there; nor have we the smallest doubt but your Honors will at one view see the impropriety of at all attending to the application of an individual of this sort, who grounds his Petition on the behalf of himself & other Merch<sup>ts</sup> but unsupported even with the names of those Merchants; was it admitted in such an instance we are persuaded that an inhabitant of every Creek calling himself a Merchant wou'd in like manner be continually troubling your Honors with such groundless Petitions. As a further confutation of the Petitioners application the Collector thinks it proper he shou'd add, that was the statement true, he himself wou'd most probably be a greater sufferer than the Petitioner as he is a very considerable proprietor, with some of his near relations and many of his friends, in the Canal at Newport, the prosperity of which depends entirely on the quantity of Coals shipped from thence, the whole being bro<sup>t</sup> down the same & the Railways belonging to it, but he is quite confident was the Petition granted, not a Vessel more in a whole year woud enter the Creek on that account.

In short, we are of opinion and humbly report that the Petitioner has no real cause of Complaint & that this application is such, as neither the Lords of the Treasury or your Honors ought to have been troubled with.

We are, &c. &c.

Under date 5 October 1806, the Officials of Cardiff write to those of Newport: "On applying to the Corporation here respecting Cardiff, we find their Charter directs no Controll over the Pilotage, consequently the present Pilots are acting under no particular jurisdiction."

(N<sup>o</sup> 73.) Cust. Ho. Cardiff.

Hon<sup>ble</sup> Sirs,

Pursuant to your Honors order of the 3<sup>d</sup> Ult<sup>o</sup> N<sup>o</sup> 80 transmitting us a Copy of a Bill for the better regulation of Pilots & directing us to collect & report such information & observations as we can obtain on y<sup>e</sup> subject.

We beg leave to report that we have applied to the chief Magistrate of this Corporation who informs us that he has examined the Charter under which they are governed but cannot find they have any power or controll over the Pilots acting here, & that consequently they are under no kind of jurisdiction whatever.

We have also to report with respect to our Creek of Newport, that we have obtained information that the Pilotage there is similarly circumstanced, as the business is generally undertaken by any one that can procure employment for which they agree in the best manner they can. Our officers there have inquired whether the Corporation have any Authority over the Pilots & they find they have none.

We are, Hon<sup>ble</sup> Sirs, &c.,

T. B. I. D.

Hon<sup>ble</sup> Commissioners.

The Officials report to London that in the 20 years ending 5 Jan<sup>y</sup> 1800, 343 vessels only were cleared from Cardiff for foreign ports, making an average of 17 per annum; but the yearly number had increased to 347 for the year 1806.

CHAPTER X.

Mr. Thomas Morgan's Commonplace Book.

ESIDE the shallow, rapid waters of the river Rhymny, where that stream divides Rumney and Saint Mellon's in Monmouthshire from Llanedern in Glamorgan, and in the latter county and parish, stands a modest farmhouse on the site of an old mansion known (like its successor) as Coed-y-gorres. This was anciently the seat of a branch of the Morgan family, and, during the first half of the 18th century, was inhabited by William Morgan of Coed-y-gorres, esquire. It is to this gentleman's younger brother, Thomas, that we must attribute the compilation of the manuscript described in this dissertation. I am indebted to the kind assistance and painstaking research of Mr. John Stuart Corbett, and Colonel Bradney of Tal-y-coed, for the identification of this Thomas Morgan among the numerous branches of the Morgan stock. An old MS. list of Sheriffs, Undersheriffs and County Clerks shews that in the year 1722 William Morgan of Coed-y-goras, Esq., was Sheriff, his brother Henry Morgan, Under-sheriff, and "Thomas Morgan, An<sup>r</sup> Bro<sup>r</sup>," County Clerk. A pedigree privately printed by Sir Thomas Phillips gives the following particulars:—

This descent agrees with the few genealogical data derivable from the Commonplace Book, and reveals the mystery of the writer's identity. No pedigree that I have seen states whether Thomas Morgan was married or not. The Commonplace Book, however, shews that he was, and that he had a son John. There is reason to suppose (see p. 463) that his wife was a daughter of Mrs. Anne Kemeys. It is not clear what the office of "County Clerk" was. It was not the same as Clerk of the Peace for the County, and seems to have become extinct about 1780. Thomas Morgan's place of residence is still a matter of doubt. His MS. only speaks of "the house we live in." This was certainly somewhere near Coed-y-gorres. The writer of the Commonplace Book was a near kinsman of David Morgan, "the Pretender's Counsellor," who was beheaded on Kennington Common in 1746, for having joined the army of Prince Charles Edward Stuart.

The greater part of the contents of this MS. are private accounts; but with these are to be found documents of considerable public interest. The whole presents to the modern reader an entertaining picture of the life of a country gentleman of ancient lineage and modest fortune, whose time was divided between his duties as a lawyer and a farmer, and the interests of whose tenants and clients yet left him a fair margin of leisure for enjoying himself. Mr. Morgan, indeed, displayed a wonderful aptitude for combining the joys of conviviality with the sterner requirements of business; and he rarely rode into Cardiff to transact his affairs, without calling for a friendly glass at the Red House or the Angel. That these potations were marked by strict moderation, however, appears from the minuteness with which, on his return home, Mr. Morgan entered up his accounts. No item was too small to be the subject of a separate entry, even halfpenny-worths of bread or milk being religiously set down. The book begins with a draft Bill of Costs, and several others appear on subsequent pages. Some are composed wholly or partly in Latin and written in courthand—a rather late survival of antique lawyership. There are some lists of debts owing by and to Mr. Morgan, accounts of cattle and horses sold, draft legal forms of various kinds and a Rent Roll for the year 1726; then we come to his own private account of “money expended on all occasions,” which, from the many curious particulars it gives of the old country life, is perhaps the most interesting portion of the book. I will refer to this in greater detail, but will first briefly call attention to the Agreement of 1716, which concludes the manuscript and relates to the Manor and Barton of Penarth, and will then say a few words about the valuable document, dated 1708, which deals with certain prerogatives of the Lord of Cardiff. This document seems to be a rough copy of a Case with Opinion of Counsel, and reminds one of Town Clerk Wood’s memoranda (ante, p. 112). The present paper is of earlier date, by more than a hundred years, and contains some points not touched upon by the more modern Cases and Opinions. Here we find it assumed that the Lord was Constable of Cardiff Castle, though Counsel considers the Lords to have been “under great mistakes” in believing themselves to be Constables. His grounds, however, seem distinctly weak. He points out that the ancient Charters provide for the Lord’s appointing his Constable—forgetting that the ancient Lords of Cardiff were Lords Marcher of Glamorgan, with jura regalia. Counsel’s further point, that a Lady could not be Constable, is no stronger, since a lady can even be a sovereign and wield the sword of empire. Nor is he warranted in assuming the absurdity of a man’s being Constable of his own Castle on behalf of the King. To turn to Thomas Morgan's private accounts, 3s. 6d. was paid for a pound of chocolate, 9s. for  $1\frac{1}{4}$ lb. of green tea, and 2s. 6d. for a quarter of a pound of Bohea. Every few days a boy was sent with some pence to fetch coal from the mine; this was termed, in the domestic phraseology of the Morgans, "going to coal." On one occasion Mr. Morgan bought a pennyworth of pipes and three half-pennyworth of tobacco. He seems to have been a moderate smoker. Under date 7 February 1731, an amount is entered as "7s. 6d. or 5s. I cant tell which"; but the total shews Mr. Morgan prudently assumed the correctness of the larger sum. In 1733 he bought turnips by the pennyworth. Just at this time these roots were being introduced by Lord Townsend into his Norfolk estates, for cultivation as a field crop, but as yet they were a culinary luxury. In 1731 Mr. Morgan was elected an Alderman of the Borough of Cardiff, and bought a wig for £2. He paid 2s. 4d. for stamps on the Certificate of his Freedom, and spent 8s. 3d. in celebrating the commencement of his municipal career. A large proportion of the commodities used in the household were obtained at Bristol and brought thence to Cardiff quay in Captain Priest's market-boat. Porters were then sent to carry the goods to the house; hence the occurrence of such entries as "Paid porter with things from the boat." Payments were made and received in kind and by work, almost as commonly as in money. Such farm labour as hoeing, weeding, sheaving and haymaking was done by women. There was much roasting of beef and baking of mince pies a few days before the Christmas of 1734.

These private accounts are written by two different hands, apparently of Mr. Morgan and his steward. The former seems to have been the elder, and wrote a modified courthand, while his steward writes a good Italian running hand.

For the loan of this valuable manuscript the Corporation are indebted to the kindness of Oliver H. Jones, Esq., of Fonmon Castle.

[CASE.]

The Lord Viscount Windsor in the Right of his Lady daughter & heir of Phillip late Earl of Pembroke is Lord of the Castle and Towne of Cardiff and as such is Constable of y<sup>e</sup> same Castle & intituled to a Duty called Bushelage (viz<sup>t</sup>) a Welsh Bushell of all Salt Apples Corne and such like imported to Cardiff and to a rent of 5*l.* 13*s.* & 4*d.* payable by the Bayliffs of Cardiffe and to all the p'fitts of the Town Court for which the Bayliffs ought to account at the L<sup>ds</sup> Audit And as Constable he had by himself or Deputy the right of swearing of the Bayliffs of the Towne and Serj<sup>ts</sup> at Mace and alsoe y<sup>e</sup> making of a Town Clerk & his Deputy is a Justice of the Peace within y<sup>e</sup> Corporac'on.

Upon the death of Phillip late Earl of Pembroke The first [sic] Earl of Pembroke claimed all the matters either durante bene placito or quam diu se bene gesserit but that office was generally held during pleasure and the Towne Clerkes were removed at the Pleasure of y<sup>e</sup> Lords of the Towne.

About two years since my Lord Pembroke being satisfy'd he had noe Title [? left] all his Castles Mano<sup>rs</sup> &c in Com. Glam'gan to my Lord Windsor who appointed Sr Edward Stradling his Deputy and one Watkin Lloyd Town Clerk and Sr Edward as Deputy Swore two of the Aldermen of the Towne Bayliffs but they being not elected by the Majority of the Burgesses the old Bailiffs continu'd acting still and Mr William Richards as Deputy to Sr Tho. Mansel continu'd receiving the Duties belonging to the Constable and Mr Mich. Richards to act as Town Clerk but neither the old or New Bailiffs did pay the afores<sup>d</sup> rent of 5 . 13 . & 4*d.* or give any acc<sup>t</sup> of the p'fitts of the Courts and Clare having brought salt to Cardiff Mr W<sup>m</sup> Richards caused him to be arrested for not paying the duty unto him & gott Judgm<sup>t</sup> ag<sup>t</sup> him in the Towne Court & he having brought his habeas Corpus in order to remove these Acc'ons to y<sup>e</sup> Queens Bench & sever<sup>ll</sup> moc'ons having been thereab<sup>ts</sup> they added the Expences thereof to the value of ab<sup>t</sup> 18*l* to the Costs of the Towne Court and before any Ca. Sa. return'd ag<sup>t</sup> the principle snapt a Judgm<sup>t</sup> upon Scire fac. ag<sup>t</sup> the Bail & imediately made out a fi. fa. whereupon Mr Richards his Bro. Cl. two Serj<sup>ts</sup> & four Constables went to the Bayliffs house in order to execute the same but the Serj<sup>ts</sup> being shy in taking y<sup>e</sup> goods Mr Richards ask'd them w<sup>t</sup> they were afraid off if they were he would doe it And then with<sup>t</sup> being desir'd by the Serj<sup>ts</sup> took sever<sup>ll</sup> goods of the Bayliffs and carry'd them to the house of one Wells where they were detain'd untill there was paid 22*l* for the delivery thereof.

The Considerac'on of the duty call'd Bushellage is the keeping of a Bushell for measureing of salt &c imported as it seems by the Surveys but there is noe [lege one] other Considerac'on (viz<sup>t</sup>) the making & repairing of a Key or place of Landing which is done at the expence of the Corporac'on And for that the Burgesses pay noe Duty.

Observe likewise that all these Duties are due to the Lord who is indeed the Constable of the Castle but is usually paid to and rece'd by y<sup>e</sup> Deputy by the Curtesy of the Lord and not as mre. of right.

Whether the Power of the old Bailiffs was determin'd on the swearing of the new though they were not duely elected And if it were whether the acc'ons did not lye ag<sup>t</sup> them for every Act they did?

[OPINION.]

I am of Oppinion that they being not duly elected s<sup>r</sup> Edward Stradling could not Swear them but the old Bailiffs continuing to act de facto for want of a New Ellecc'on I think noe acc'on will lie ag<sup>t</sup> them tho' an Informac'on may be brought them & the Corporac'on for acting without Warr<sup>t</sup>

Qre.

Whether an Indebit. et assumpsit for money rece'd or a Bill in Chancery will lie ag<sup>t</sup> Mr Richards for the profitts of the Town Clerks office and whether any act or thing necessary to be done by the Town Clerk appointed by my Lord Windso<sup>r</sup> to entitle him thereto

[sic] and w<sup>t</sup> Construcc'on will be given to m<sup>r</sup> Richards patten<sup>t</sup> if it be as it is said Gener<sup>lly</sup> wthout any limitac'on as to its continuance.

[OPINION.]

An Indebitat. ass<sup>t</sup> or a Bill in Canc. lies for y<sup>e</sup> fees but the latter is best because by it M<sup>r</sup> Rich<sup>ds</sup> will be compell'd to deliver Lloyd the Records & Books belonging to the Court & office as well as to the acc<sup>d</sup> [lege to account] for fees and Lloyd will be also quieted in the poss'ion of the office but the Title of the office will be tried upon a feign'd Issue at Law. M<sup>r</sup> Lloyd must be sure to qualify him self by taking y<sup>e</sup> oaths &c before he can bring an acc'on for any p'fitts rece'd for a Consid<sup>r</sup>able time but for the first ten weeks after he was made Town Clerk he may bring an Acc'on without being qualify'd. I canot observe by any of the Charters that a power is given to the Corporac'on and therefore the right of making one must be govern'd by the Custome and usage of the place as well as the right & Power of removing him and there is a Clause in K. James his Charter confirming the antient Methods of Ellecting such officers whose Ellecc'on is not provided for by that Charter.

Qre.

Whether it be not proper for my Lord Windso<sup>r</sup> to p'ferr a Bill in Canc. ag<sup>t</sup> the Corporac'on of Cardiff in order to setle his Rights by a decree for they now seem to deny every thing & have taken upon them to Ellect M<sup>r</sup> Richards for their Town Clerk and to deny sundry other things.

[OPINION.]

It is a very proper Method But if my Lord Windso<sup>r</sup> makes his officers as he should and they qualify themselves according to Law those officers may by acc'ons soon bring things to rights againe.

Nov. 1708. W<sup>m</sup> Phillipps.

Qre.

Whether a Mandam<sup>s</sup> will lie for the admitting the Town Clerk appointed by Lord Windso<sup>r</sup> And if it will to whom should it be directed to the old or New Bayliffs or w<sup>t</sup> Course can be taken for to put him in poss'ion of the office or to get the Records from M<sup>r</sup> Richards.

By a Bill in Canc. as before is mentioned.

Qre.

Whether an Acc'on of Trover will lie for M<sup>r</sup> Claro ag<sup>t</sup> William Richards for the Salt he has taken And whether it be proper to Join with him therein his Serv<sup>t</sup> that had the Salt. Observe by act of Parliam<sup>t</sup> all salt is now to be sold by weight and therefore it should seem to me that if the keeping the Bushell was the only Considerac'on for that Duty it is now lost.

[OPINION.]

Noe Salt is mention'd in the Case but w<sup>t</sup> Claro was arrested for and as to the Consequences of that and the Judgm<sup>t</sup> you have an Answer below.

Qre.

What Course shall my Lord Windsor take for the rent of 5*l* 13 & 4*d.* due to him from the Towne and for the profitts of the Town Court and ag<sup>t</sup> whom?

By a Bill in Canc. ag<sup>t</sup> the p'sent & late Bayliffs whose p'decessors were used to acc<sup>t</sup> for the same I doe not find by the Coppies of the Charters that I have that the Rent of 5*l* 13*s.* 4*d.* or any other fee ffarme Rent is reserv'd to the Lord of the Town Or that the Bayliffs are to acc<sup>t</sup> for the Perquisites of the Court but without doubt they are by some other whereof I had not y<sup>e</sup> p'usall.

Qre.

Whether an Acc'on does not lie ag<sup>t</sup> W<sup>m</sup> Richards for other p'fitts by him rece'd belonging to the Constable of the Castle Admitting the Lord Pembroke und<sup>r</sup> whome he claim'd had noe right And whether the poss'ion of My Lord Pembroke will be any p'judice to My Lord Winsors Claim when that his Lady was an Infant or feme Covert All the Time.

[OPINION.]

I Observe the Lords of the Towne have been under gr<sup>t</sup> mistakes for how long time I canot tell in believing themselves to be Constables of the Castle of Cardiff which they are not but they are to make a Constable of y<sup>e</sup> Castle and the old Charters menc'on that officers are to be sworn cora' Constabulario n'ro et q<sup>d</sup> Constabularius noster sui [Maior] ville et Burgi de Cardiff And it is indeed absurd and repugnant that one should be Constable of his own Castle or that Isabell Countess of Worcester and Lady of Glam'gan should be a Constable I doe not find any Mention of a Deputy Constable in any of the Charters soe that I doe not see there is any proper officer to call M<sup>r</sup> Richards to Account My Lord Windsor therefore must appoint S<sup>r</sup> Edw<sup>d</sup> Stradling Constable of his Castle then he can p'ferr a Bill in Chancery.

Qre.

Whether they could Justify the adding of the Costs in the Queens Bench to the Judgm<sup>t</sup> in the Towne Court to charge the Bayle And whether a Scire fac. could be granted ag<sup>t</sup> him before a Ca. Sa. return'd ag<sup>t</sup> princip<sup>l</sup> And if these proceedings may be Justify'd whether M<sup>r</sup> Mich. Richards would Justify taking the goods of the Bayle without being desir'd by the Serj<sup>ts</sup>

[OPINION.]

The adding of the Costs in the Queens Bench to those sustain'd in the Inferio<sup>r</sup> Court is certainly arbitrary and illegall as is alsoe the granting of a Sci. fac. ag<sup>t</sup> the Bayle before the Ca. Sa. was return'd but I doubt the Bail have noe way to relieve him self but by an Audita Querela.

ERRATA AND ADDENDA.

Page 18. Llystalybont. The prefix "llys" (court); the widely extended lands of this manor; its situation with regard to the ancient boundary of Cardiff burgh and Llandaff parish (the mansion stands within both); its including the very ancient Welsh monastery of Mynachdy; its being held in the 13th century by a native Welsh lord who married a descendant of Ifor Bach; the claim, made by the Maelogs in 1332, to a prescriptive right to have Mass celebrated in the mansion of Llystalybont, in consideration of a grant made to the See of Llandaff by their ancestors—all these circumstances seem to point to an original superiority in this manor, and even cause us to wonder whether Llystalybont may not have been the court and capital of the Princes of Glamorgan between the Roman period and the feudal.

Page 32. Penarth. It is interesting to note the memorials of Saint Augustine of Canterbury, apostle of the English, in the geographical nomenclature of the coast of South-east Wales. At Penarth we have his name in the dedication of the parish church, and his image in the eastern niche of the ancient cross in the churchyard. Rumney church is also dedicated in the name of Saint Augustine, and it is probable that this point on the Severn shore is identical with the Penrhyn Awst of Welsh mythological lore. Further up the river we have Aust Passage, the old ferry from England to Wales, near which it is supposed that the conference between the Roman missionary and the British bishops took place. These places are associated with the Benedictine abbey of Saint Augustine at Bristol.

Page 33. Cogan. The surnames Cogan, Barry, Kenefick, Sully, and Carey, still more or less common in Ireland, perpetuate the memory of Norinaus who went forth from this region to the conquest of Hibernia. Many persons of those names have come from Ireland to settle in the country just west of Cardiff, and have been astonished to find themselves thus identified with the district.

Page 68. The Latin description of the Borough boundaries is from the Charter of 1340 (Vol. I., p. 21). Their being cited in the original Latin is in keeping with ancient usage, and was meant to ensure accuracy. In the same way the bounds of the possessions of Llandaff Diocese, in the Latin Charters, were set forth in archaic Welsh. (Liber Landavensis).

Page 79, footnote. Walter Strickland also held lands in Monmouthshire, as I find by the Subsidy Rolls for that county.

Pages 128-9. The extracts of 1708 and 1762 from the Minutes of Council are here printed in small type because they will appear in their proper places in a later volume.

Page 134. The idea attributed by the Town Clerk to the Bailiffs, of repudiating the Charter of King James II. on the ground that it "was granted just before the rebellion," is extremely curious.

Page 139. The Opinion on Case V. does not seem to go very directly to the point. Royal Charters granted to the Lords, and Seigniorial Charters granted to the Burgesses, cannot affect the question of the Corporation's power to take toll of residents in the Borough. There can, however, be little doubt that the demand made upon Stanley and his fellow tradesmen was wrongful.

Page 151. The dissertation on the Gaol Files stops short at 1745, instead of being continued to 1830, because it was necessary to print it long before the remainder of the documents had been copied. Footnotes to the text supply the deficiency as regards the later Files.

Page 174, line 17. Aaron Price. This is a very early instance of a Welshman with a Hebrew baptismal name. The gradual introduction of such names proceeded hand in hand with the growth of Protestantism, and was immensely forwarded by the rise of Puritanism in a later generation.

Page 231. Inquest on Charles Stibbs, who was drowned in the Taff. It is rather curious that Charles Stibbs served on the Coroner's Jury which, in 1764, made inquest on the body of a man drowned in the same river and parish. (See page 217).

Illustration facing page 310. The letter of Sir Walter Raleigh runs as follows:—

"Sr William St. Johns. besyds the monie dew to Tite the anker Smith, ther is fifty pound that this bearer Willm : ston hath given bond for to a linnen Draper for shirtts for the companie, I pray yow to speake with Mr Herbert the Pencioner that he will satisfy yt fifty pound out of my Cussen Herberts monie, & in the meane while free this poore man who hath bine arrested for it.

from Lee reddy

Page 457. The date at the top should read [1725]. Abraham Barbour was Sheriff in that year. His Undersheriff was Edward Herbert of Cardiff; but in the previous year Henry Llewelin of Margam was Undersheriff.

Page 458. The Case of 1708 appears to be largely concerned with the antagonistic claims of Borough dignitaries and officials nominated by the Earl of Pembroke before his renunciation of the Glamorgan estates, and those appointed by Viscount Windsor after his accession to the same.

Note that it was Thomas, eighth Earl of Pembroke, who set up a claim to the Glamorganshire estates on the death of Earl Philip; which claim he subsequently relinquished.
